LOSS OF BILLION IS LAID TO C. I. O. ON WEST COAST

Senate Committees Told of Strife.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Joseph K. Carson, mayor of Portland, Ore., told a joint commerce and labor committee of the senate today that strikes and maritime tieups caused by Harry Bridges, C. I. O. leader on the west coast, had cost the people of that region more than a billion dollars in the last three years.

Mayor Carson.

"Bridges cannot vote in this country," Mayor Carson said, "but he exercises more power over the maritime industry of the Pacific coast than all the ship operators and all the seamen combined."

Senator Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah], chairman of the labor committee and a pro-C. I. O. member of the civil liberties committee, which is headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr. [Radical, Wis.], asked Mayor Carson why Bridges could not vote in this country.

"Because he's an Australian—an alien," the mayor replied.

Bridges Warant Refused.

Bridges is a communist, and a warrant for his deportation has been requested by inspectors of the bureau of immigration and naturalization, but Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins has refused to authorize the warant.

Mayor Carson said the shipping and fruit industries of the west coast had suffered not only because of maritime strikes but also because of tieups caused by the longshoremen's unions, which are controled by Bridges.

"The fruit industry is endangered by the present attitude of maritime labor," Mayor Carson said. "The continued disruption of deliveries has resulted in a lack of confidence in our ability to fulfill orders, causing us to lose our European markets to Argentina and South Africa."

The mayor testified that the coastwise shipping of fruit and vegetables decreased from 18,000 tons in 1933 to 3,385 tons in 1936 as the result of maritime tieups. In 1936, he said, ships bringing Christmas goods to Portland were not permitted to unload their cargoes until the following April.

Million Man Hours Lost.

Last year, he said, was relatively peaceful. There was no general tieup, but 91 local strikes resulted in a loss of 1,000,000 man hours of employment.

The mayor testified that Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the maritime commission, settled a strike over a trivial matter which involved only the vessel but which tied up the port of Portland at a cost of $50,000 a week.

Mayor Carson took the position that the government ought not to subsidize the construction of a new merchant marine unless provision is made to assure discipline on the ships and responsibility on the part of labor unions. The joint committee is considering a bill recommended by the maritime commission to liberalize merchant marine subsidies and require compulsory arbitration in labor disputes.

Seaman Denies Hoover Charges.

On the question of discipline at sea, the committee heard the seaman's side of the wreck of the liner President Hoover near Formosa on Dec. 10.

Harry Lundeberg, secretary-treasurer of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, which supplied some of the unlicensed personnel for the President Hoover, denied charges made by passengers that members of the crew drank themselves into insensibility, refused to take orders from the officers, and molested passengers.

Lundeberg, a naturalized citizen of Norwegian birth, said the crew took the men, women, and children ashore and that not one of them was injured. The conduct of the crew was an honor to the American flag," he said. Lundeberg was asked why his union was not affiliated with the A. F. of L. or the C. I. O.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Fifty leaders of American business marched to the White House this evening to pledge their coöperation in the fight against the present business depression on condition that President Roosevelt clarify the future course of his administration.

In a give and take conference, which lasted one hour and a half, Mr. Roosevelt gave his unqualified approval to suggestions for:

1. A limited wage and hour legislation.
2. A truce with public utilities.
3. No general purge of holding companies.
4. Increasing contractual responsibility of labor unions.
5. Increasing the flow of private capital to industry.

No More Money Tinkering.

Other suggestions, including a condemnation of further tinkering with the currency and continuation of pump priming by huge federal expenditures, were met with silence by Mr. Roosevelt, although they came in under a blanket approval given the program presented by the business leaders.

The conferees were members of the business advisory council of the department of commerce. Although their program was presented in conciliatory language and sprinkled with praise for past action, the group, nevertheless, pointed out in unmistakable language policies which the leaders held distasteful and demanded a leadership "around which we can all rally."

Plans Definite Policy.

At the conclusion of the conference the President announced that he will seek the formulation of a definite policy, designed to end the depression and create a framework for steady functioning of the nation's economic life through the appointment of a group representative of all the interests within the country.

The group would consist of as many as twenty-five or as few as five or six persons, who would be charged with the task of sifting over all proposals to aid business and unsnarling all conflicts existing among the various interests with a view toward perfecting an administrative and legislative policy for business.

The 1,800 word statement of the business group said the critical problem before the country today is reemployment. They asserted business stood ready to coöperate. They pointed out that the country has the machinery, private capital, and technique.

Must Eradicate Uncertainty.

"Uncertainties that exist in the hearts of men today must be eradicated," the statement urged. "To that end, Mr. President, we look to you to give us the leadership around which we can all rally."

The statement was read by the council's chairman, W. Averill Harriman, chairman of the Union Pacific railroad. During the reading the President took notes and from these made comments. A give and take discussion followed.

At the conclusion of the discussion the President authorized White House Secretary Stephen Early to make known his answer to several of the suggestions proposed. White House rules were invoked to guard against direct quotation of the President.

The suggestions to which Mr. Roose-

Slays Brother; Will Die with Hired Assassin

Chester, Ill., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Marie Porter will be executed in the electric chair after midnight tomorrow in the southern Illinois penitentiary at Menard. Thus she will pay the penalty for having hired murderers to kill her own brother on his wedding day to prevent his insurance from going to his bride.

Gov. Henry Horner today removed her last hope of a lesser punishment. Because her crime was too inhuman to warant mercy, the governor reversed his own convictions and refused to stay her execution, scheduled for a few minutes after midnight tomorrow.

Never before has a woman been electrocuted in Illinois, and only once has a woman murderer paid with her life. In 1845 a woman was hanged at Lawrenceville for killing her husband, but since then numerous convicted murderesses have escaped execution in this state.

[Details of the Lawrenceville case will be found on page 6.]

Mother of Four Daughters.

The mother of four daughters, Mrs. Porter, 37 years old, a sullen, pudgy faced woman, will go to the chair with Angelo Ralph Giancola, 22 years old, who was convicted with her in the slaying of William Kappen. Joseph Regan, state superintendent of prisons, who will preside at the double execution, said tonight that Mrs. Porter will precede her accomplice to the death chair.

Giancola's brother, John, 20 years old, who was convicted with them Nov. 18, was sentenced to serve 99 years in prison. His attorney has appealed to the Illinois Supreme court.

Attorneys for Angelo Giancola and Mrs. Porter, however, placed their hope for clemency in the governor. In 1935, when he commuted the death sentence of another woman murderer, Gov. Horner said no woman would die in the chair in Illinois as long as he was chief executive.

Horner Explains Stand.

"The petitioner is a woman who for months planned the murder of her own brother," he said today in a letter to the secretary of state at Springfield, which reiterated his personal opposition to capital punishment.

"Because of his affection for her she was made the beneficiary of the insurance policies he carried, and because she was the beneficiary she decreed his death and hired executioners to take his life.

"Certainly her sentence cannot be commuted and the sentence of Angelo Giancola be permitted to stand. She was the instigator of the murder plot. The other two were her tools in the fratricide. The law of this state provides capital punishment as the supreme penalty for murder. It does not provide one penalty for men and another for women.

"As governor I have no right to amend the statutes to read that the penalty for murder should not apply

Report Grave Found in Minnesota.

The territory surrounding St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn., yesterday was the center of concentrated activity for the G-men who are seeking evidence to corroborate Peter Anders' confession that he kidnaped Charles S. Ross and murdered both Ross and his own confederate in crime, James Atwood Gray.

Although the government forces kept strict secrecy, there were well grounded reports [1] that the spot where the kidnaper had disposed of the bodies of the two slain men had been found within 100 miles of St. Paul, and probably near the Wisconsin border; [2] that a third member of the kidnap band was in custody, and [3] that old friends of Anders who had helped in his previous crimes had been questioned.

Await Takeoff for Chicago.

There were indications last night that the investigation was nearing a successful conclusion and that the prisoner might be brought to Chicago early today. An airplane, its tanks filled and its pilot ready, was at the St. Paul airport awaiting orders to take off.

Under heavy guard, Anders remained all day in the St. Paul headquarters of the federal bureau of investigation. And from these quarters, apparently acting on information he furnished, squad after squad of operatives left by automobile to carry on the investigation. They were under the personal direction of J. Edgar Hoover, head of the bureau, the man who let it be known Monday night that the Ross kidnaper had been seized, and Inspector Earle J. Connelley.

Early this morning Edward P. Guinane, head of the bureau of investigation in St. Paul, said activities there were being suspended for the night and there would be no announcements until this afternoon, if then.

Hunt Clews in Underworld.

It was reported that some of the bank robberies in which Anders was involved took place in Minnesota, and information made public so far by Hoover indicates that he had close connections in the powerful Twin Cities underworld. It is assumed that after he had slain his victims and obtained the $50,000 that Mrs. Ross paid in a futile effort to save her husband's life, Anders—and possibly the surviving member of his crime force—turned to these elements for refuge and help in disposing of the money.

Hoover had asserted that the killings took place in Illinois and that the bodies of the slain men were disposed of "in another state." This led to a general belief that the burial place was in southern Wisconsin, where graves could be easily hidden in the rough lands of the Sugar river valley.

Hideout Near St. Paul.

But the persistence of the G-men in spending at least thirty hours in Minnesota was almost enough to convince observers that the central point of the criminal work was close to St. Paul. The best hypothesis was that the hideout of the kidnapers was in that section. There was even a guess that Hoover has since learned he was mistaken—that the double killing did not take place in Illinois.

Lawyers in the district attorney's office said they were assured by a source that they refused to reveal that "this case will be prosecuted in the federal court," indicating that despite Mr. Hoover's original statements the kidnaped Ross may have been taken across state lines.

Anders was not familiar with any part of the Chicago area and he had no Chicago gang record or connections. It is believed now that his crime connections were in Minnesota last September, when the kidnaping of the retired Chicago manufacturer took place. He went to Savanna, Ill., to mail his ransom demand and then collected the payment at a point between Belvidere and Rockford.

Abandon Illinois Search.

One or two of the ransom bills were passed at Belvidere. G-men were there at least six weeks ago looking for a hideout. It is significant that

Bedouins Pitch Their Tents for King's Nuptials

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 19.—This capital was gay with celebrations tonight, though its motley crowds will be given no glimpse of King Farouk's bride on the occasion of the royal wedding tomorrow. Only the booming of a 101 gun salute will tell the country that Miss Farida Zulfikar has become queen.

Special trains brought in crowds of poor fellahin [peasants] who had saved for years for just such an occasion. Among the picturesque arrivals were coal black Nubians from the Sudan, all 6 feet tall and straight as arrows.

Bedouins Bring Camels Along.

Bedouin tribesmen from Egypt's western desert came with their chiefs, wives, concubines, children, and camels. The Bedouins pitched their black tents of skins on the bank of the Nile river on the Giza mud flats and in the shadow of the pyramids. They are here to get their share of a rare luxury—a meal with meat—which is to be distributed tomorrow.

Drums throbbed as dancing girls whirled in the beflagged streets. Richly dressed desert horsemen on Arab steeds wheeled under Farouk's balcony. Brightly robed sheiks came in apparently endless procession.

Last minute changes in plans for the wedding were announced tonight, indicating that the battle between the Moslem clergy and modernist friends of the bride, who is 17 years old, was continuing.

Queen to Have Reception.

So far the ecclesiastics have the upper hand. They will draw up the marriage contract, conforming to all Moslem tenets. The signing of the contract in the presence of 23 royal princes and other dignitaries will constitute the wedding ceremony. Neither Farida nor any other woman will be present and her formal consent will not be necessary.

A concession has been made to Farida. She shall make a semi-public appearance Saturday noon at a reception in the Abdine palace.

TAVERN CLOSES TAPS; PASTOR MOVES IN FOR A HALF HOUR REVIVAL

Marquand, Mo., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Rev. Noel Bremner, Ozarks mountain minister, holds nightly revivals in a tavern, beer sales being suspended for the half hour services.

"The tavern becomes a church the minute I place on the walls my sign, 'Church of the Nazarene,'" he explained.

His arrangement with Bartender Murphy Myers began 10 days ago after Bremner had trouble finding a place in which to preach. Ozarkians come from miles around to sit on the tables, the floor, and the bar. Half an hour of religion, then Myers' place becomes a tavern again.

LOCHINVAR RIDES TO A COURT FOR HIS SECRET BRIDE

Like a knight of old Louis Phillips rode yesterday to the rescue of his secret bride, Mrs. Clara Pavlios Phillips, whom he charges is locked in the tower of her father's castle at 2212 South 52d avenue, Cicero.

In a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed in the Circuit court, Phillips, who is 22 years old, alleged he was secretly married Nov. 7, 1936. Last Jan. 4 when he and Clara revealed their marriage, Phillips said his father-in-law, Sam Pavlios, ordered him not to see his bride again.

Since then, the bill charges, Clara, who is 20, has been kept a virtual prisoner under guard by her father, mother, a brother, Gust, and a sister, Ann. Judge Harry M. Fisher ordered the Pavlios family to bring Clara to court tomorrow. Pavlios and Phillips' father own candy stores. Phillips lives at 1813 South 51st avenue, Cicero.

Union Official Gets 1-10 Years for Terrorism

Gus Novotny, organizer and business agent for the Upholsterers and Furniture Workers' union, local 18, was convicted last night of malicious mischief by a jury in Judge Joseph A. Sabath's Criminal court. He is the first union official found guilty of terrorism against open shop employers, according to Assistant State's Attorneys William Crawford and Harry Posner.

Gus Novotny.

The jury deliberated little more than an hour before finding Novotny guilty under the felony count of the indictment, which carries an automatic sentence of one to ten years in the penitentiary. He will be sentenced on Feb. 14 if his motion for a new trial is overruled by Judge Sabath at that time.

Two Hirelings Heard.

Novotny, according to the state's evidence, hired two youths, Steve Straza, 21 years old, and John Jendrath, 19, to break windows and throw stench bombs in seven shops where employés had refused to join Novotny's union. Straza and Jendrath testified for the state against the organizer.

A confession was obtained by state's attorney's police at the time of Novotny's arrest last November. It was admitted, but at the trial the union agent contended that the confession was forced from him.

State Praises Jurors.

"The jury is to be congratulated on its speedy and just verdict," said Prosecutor Crawford. "Men of Novotny's type do not do legitimate unionism any good. Terroristic tactics such as were employed by Novotny must and can be stopped if juries have the courage to convict."

no further search was conducted in northern Illinois nor in the southern tier of Wisconsin counties in the last few days, while the activity in the St. Paul region has been intense.

After the slaying Anders' great problem was the disposition of the ransom money. He is known to have wandered east with his $50,000. He played the races in New York and in Maryland, then turned south to New Orleans, and finally went to California. He was seized at the Santa Anita race track near Los Angeles last Friday when a clerk signaled federal agents that he was attempting to pass one of the $20 ransom bills.

Fails to Keep Rendezvous.

From Chicago or St. Paul he had made arrangements for a contact in New Orleans with James Threalkill, a Negro with a record as counterfeiter. He was to assist in getting rid of the hot money. Anders did not keep his appointment, but Threalkill was arrested and supposedly is still in custody of the federal bureau.

Some of the investigation was centered yesterday on the identity of the go-between who arranged the meeting that never took place. Anders, it was recalled, had only $14,400 of the ransom cash with him when he was captured, and the whereabouts of the rest has not been disclosed. The G-men, it was said, were hopeful they would find a large part of the remainder in the hands of the confessed criminal's friends in St. Paul.

Viewed by Mattson Children.

It was disclosed yesterday that Anders had been viewed in San Francisco, Cal., on Monday by William Mattson Jr. and his sister, Muriel Mattson, of Tacoma, Wash. He has been suspected of the kidnaping and killing of their brother, Charles Mattson, 10 years old, about a year ago. The Mattson children, it was said, asserted Anders was not the man who seized their brother.

Hoover, in his announcement of the capture Monday night, had said that Anders already had left Los Angeles for Chicago, and the presumption is that the prisoner had been taken to San Francisco before there was any disclosure of his connection with the Ross case. The Mattson children were flown from their home to San Francisco to look at the suspect.

Tells of Seeing Messenger.

Additional information concerning the payment of the ransom to Anders became known yesterday. Mrs. Ella Nichols, who conducts a restaurant on the highway between Belvidere and Rockford, recalled that about Oct. 8 the motorcycle messenger, George Kukovac, who had tossed the money to the kidnapers or their representative, stopped at her place. He was on foot and explained that he had wrecked his cycle. He called to Chicago for transportation and two men arrived an hour and a half later and took him away.

At the Edgewater Golf club in Chicago it was said that a man who greatly resembled published pictures of Anders applied there for work as a greenskeeper last April. He was not hired and Gerald Daeri, the greens superintendent, said he never reappeared. Ross belonged to the club and it was suspected that perhaps some one who knew the members had pointed him out as a fit subject for kidnaping.

150 DIE, 200 HURT IN AIR ATTACK ON BARCELONA

Rebels Seize U. S. Ship

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Authoritative sources tonight said the American tanker Nantucket Chief had been captured by two Spanish insurgent gunboats off Barcelona Tuesday.

The capture occurred while the American tanker was attempting to run insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's blockade of the eastern Spanish coast, the reports said.

The tanker, formerly named the Gulflight, was en route to the Catalan capital with a cargo of Russian oil. The capture was witnessed by French warships which declined to interfere. The ship is owned by the Gulf Oil corporation of Port Arthur, Tex.

BARCELONA, Spain, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Six huge insurgent planes today subjected Barcelona to a terrific bombardment, which officials estimated killed 150 persons and wounded at least 200.

[Reuters (British news agency) said 220 persons were officially reported killed in Barcelona and more than 100 were killed in Valencia. It is said more than 400 were injured in Barcelona.]

Fifty mangled bodies were removed from piles of stones and twisted iron beams in the southern part of the city where it was reported at least forty powerful bombs had fallen.

All automobiles in the city were requisitioned by the medical corps while ambulances and fire engines rushed to the scene in an effort to save those still alive in the wreckage. Two truck loads of bodies were taken to morgues.

Bombers Flee Over Sea.

The attack occurred shortly after noon, after an unsuccessful raid earlier in the day. The bombers, evidently from the insurgent base at Palma, Mallorca, flew back over the sea after loosing their cargo.

A government statement said:

"Shortly after noon six bimotored bombers from Mallorca loosed on very centric points in Barcelona a large number of extraordinarily powerful bombs which destroyed some apartment houses and caused other buildings considerable damage.

"The number of killed and wounded is very high. The anti-aircraft batteries had ceased firing when our squadrons of fighters took off. These were unable to get close to the attackers, who hurriedly flew toward the sea back to their base."

Three Attacks on Valencia.

Valencia also was attacked from the air three times within 12 hours, taking a heavy toll, reports said. Numerous bombs were dropped on a Red Cross hospital, where the number of victims was not known, and on a shore resort. Several other small east coast towns were bombed.

The British ship Clonlara today reported she was attacked by an unidentified submarine which fired a torpedo, but failed to hit her. The Clonlara was off Valencia on the Mediterranean coast. She put into Castellon harbor and reported the attack. The 1,203 ton boat is registered by the Limerick Steamship company.

Madrid Under Attack.

MADRID, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Madrid was shelled by insurgent artillery for half an hour today, the first bombardment of consequence here in nearly three weeks. Several casualties resulted.

Insurgents Have Losses.

HENDAYE, France, On the Spanish Frontier, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Spanish government sources said today the renewed insurgent drive in the Teruel sector had dwindled to a series of "feeler attacks" after the insurgents suffered heavy losses in a night offensive.

Dispatches from Salamanca, insurgent capital, declared Navarrese troops had smashed through the government's hastily built ring of fortifications northwest of Teruel, 160 miles east of Madrid, and had their artillery trained on the city.

GERMANY ABANDONS ITS EFFORT TO HALT WAR IN THE FAR EAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 20 [Thursday].—An official report, published today in the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, admitted for the first time that Germany has been mediating between China and Japan since last October. The newspaper said, however, that "Germany's mediation in the far east conflict is ended."

The German public heretofore was not informed of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's efforts to help reëstablish peace in the far east. The report said that with the publication of the Japanese manifesto of Jan. 16 [which withdrew recognition from the Chinese government] "the conflict entered a new stage." This the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung interpreted as meaning that Germany has abandoned its peace attempt.

The official report said that at the end of October both contending parties "had expressed a desire for German participation in trying to find a peaceful settlement. Germany stressed from the start that she was neutral in the conflict, and that she could no more than relay messages which the two countries wanted to send to each other. This principle was adhered to."

RICH AMERICAN BELIEVED PREY OF PARIS KILLERS

VERSAILLES, France, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Police investigating the Saint Cloud "murder for profit" ring said today that Michael Stein, 67 years old, of Baltimore, Md., a department store director, apparently had been marked for death.

American police were asked to question Stein if he can give any new information concerning the ring, which killed Jean de Koven, young Brooklyn dancer, and at least five other persons. Stein, it was believed, met Eugene Weidmann, 29 year old German ex-convict and confessed slayer of Miss de Koven, when the American was staying at the Ambassador hotel in Paris last summer.

Stein also visited the town of Bagnoles, in Normandy. Colleyye Tricot, mistress of Roger Million, another member of the ring, previously had told an investigating magistrate that she overheard Weidmann and Million discussing a "business trip" to Bagnoles at the time Stein was believed to have been there.

SENATE ORATORY FALLS ON A PAIR OF LONELY EARS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Senate attention to filibuster oratory reached a new low today when Senator Allen J. Ellender [D., La.] spoke to a single colleague. Only Senator James J. Davis [R., Pa.] was at his desk while Ellender continued his five day attack on the anti-lynching bill.

Southern senators said today they would attempt to sidetrack the bill early next week to clear the way for other legislation. Southerners have carried on a filibuster against the bill for twelve days. The fight has prevented senate consideration of President Roosevelt's legislative program.

Proponents of the measure are expected to oppose any attempt to sidetrack it. They said they were encouraged by a statement from Vice President Garner today that henceforth senate debate rules will be strictly enforced.

Ask Blood to Save Life of Policeman in Hospital

BRITISH TROOPS BALK JAP EFFORT TO SEIZE CHINESE

Refuse to Cease Guard of Foreign Areas.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 19 [Thursday].—The Japanese military was rebuffed in two disputes with British troops in the international zones of two Chinese cities, it was learned today.

A clash nearly developed in Tientsin when Japanese troops were on the point of entering the international zone to remove by force C[illegible]nese suspected of anti-Japanese activities. The British said they would resist and the Japanese refrained from making the attempt.

The British also turned down a Japanese suggestion that British troops relinquish guard duty on the western boundary of the international settlement of Shanghai to Japanese troops from Hungjao, the adjacent occupied section.

Chinese Gain Near Wuhu.

The Chinese made claims of advances in several fighting zones. One was near Wuhu, 175 miles west of Shanghai, where, it was said, Chinese troops occupied dominating mountain positions five miles south of Wuhu.

In the Hangchow zone, 120 miles southwest of Shanghai, Chinese troops were said to be crossing to the north bank of the Chientang river and putting new pressure on the Chekiang province capital which the Japanese have held since Dec. 24.

Japanese admitted that firing could be heard in Hangchow, but declared their grip on the city was not menaced. The Japanese said they had withdrawn 20,000 troops from the Wuhu [Yangtze valley] and Hangchow zones to send north to reinforce their drives for the capture of trunk railways in Kiangsu and Shantung provinces. The Japanese yesterday gained full control of the Tsinan-Tsingtao railway.

New Troops at Tsingtao.

From 7,000 to 10,000 fresh Japanese troops have been landed at Tsingtao [Shantung province] since the city was occupied by the navy ten days ago. It was expected these would be used for a westward drive to gain firmer control of all Shantung or sent against Haichow, Kiangsu province, coastal terminus of the Lunghai railroad.

Some 400,000 Chinese troops are concentrated near Suchow, the inland junction of the Lunghai and the Tientsin-Pukow [Nanking] railroads. Japanese columns yesterday were 70 miles north and 110 miles south of Suchow. Chinese said cold weather and snowstorms had slowed down fighting.

Capture of Suchow would give the Japanese an uninterrupted link between occupied territories in the Nanking zone and North China.

Bomb Bursts Near Hospital.

CANTON, China, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Japanese planes attempting to bomb a nearby Canton-Hankow railroad bridge today narrowly missed the New Zealand Presbyterian hospital at Hongchung, thirty miles north of Canton. A bomb fell into an open well in the hospital compound. The explosion shook the buildings but did no damage. Japanese continued to bombard the recently opened Hongkong-Canton highway, over which Chinese have been moving munitions.

Accuse War Lord of Treason.

HANKOW, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Gen. Han Fu-chu, who for many years was war lord of Shantung province, was charged formally today with high treason. He was accused of disobeying orders of his superiors, retreating from Shantung on his own initiative, misappropriating public funds, exacting excessive taxes, and forcing the sale of opium on the people.

[Previous Chinese reports said Gen. Han already had been executed.]

Japs Shift Troops for Drive on Railways

Japanese yesterday shifted 20,000 troops from Yangtze valley and landed 7,000 to 10,000 more at Tsingtao in preparation for major offensives to capture the trunk railways crossing at Suchow. Japanese already had control of the Tsinan-Tsingtao line.

EIGHT LOS ANGELES DETECTIVES QUIZZED ON HOME BOMBING

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Earl Kynett, acting captain of detectives in charge of a special police squad, and seven of his men tonight were identified as tenants who rented a house near the home of Harry Raymond, private detective, who was injured when a bomb exploded last September.

The officers were identified by Mrs. Raymond and six other neighbors who reside in the same court in which the hideout bungalow is located.

District Attorney Buron Fitts said the witnesses told him the tenants bored holes in the rented house and strung wires and tapped the telephone line to the Raymond home.

Kynett admitted that he had been in the vicinity on the day of the bombing, but said he did not remember installing a dictaphone in the Raymond home. He said he had reported his activities, but professed not to remember to whom.

Fitts said the investigation would continue.

SOCIAL SECURITY OFFICE TO MOVE.

Regional headquarters of the social security board at 211 West Wacker drive will be moved tomorrow to room 300 of the United States courthouse at Adams, Clark, and Dearborn streets and Jackson boulevard, it was announced yesterday.

SOVIET POLICE GET U. S. PLEA TO SEE MRS. RUBENS

MOSCOW, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A United States embassy request to interview Mrs. Marie Rubens, identified as an American citizen held on suspicion of espionage, was understood tonight to have been passed on to the secret political police.

The woman presumably is held in Lubianka prison. The soviet foreign office's willingness to submit the request to "proper authorities" indicated United States officials might see her.

LIST 47 PERSONS DEAD BY FIRE IN QUEBEC SCHOOL

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Officials tonight listed 47 persons dead from the fire that trapped students and teachers in the College of the Sacred Heart early Tuesday.

Twenty-two charred bodies lay in the morgue here, but only four were officially identified. Dr. Paul Morin, district coroner, opening an inquest into the tragedy, listed as dead the 25 others missing in the belief their bodies are buried under the frozen wreckage of the school.

The four identified were Brother Jean Baptiste, 64, Sherbrooke, Que., who died of injuries, and three students, Deus Richard, 15; Jean Noel Vincent, 15, and Lucien Leclero, all of St. Hyacinthe.

Twenty-one of those who escaped were in hospitals. Almost all were clad in night clothes.

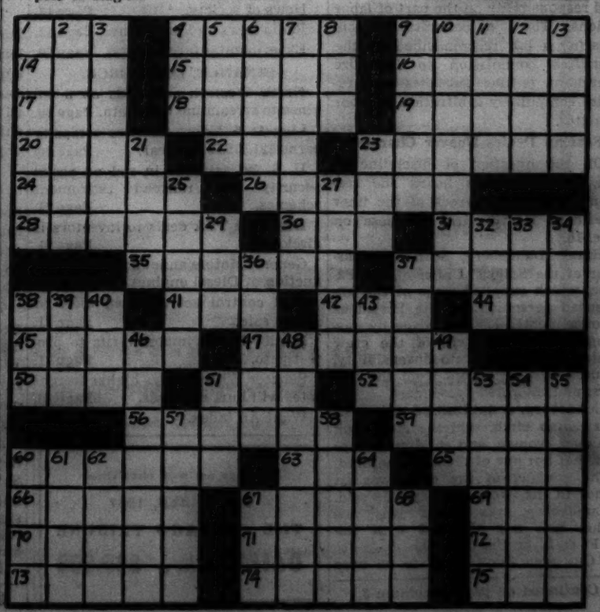
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



STRIVE TO LOWER AGES IN NAVY AND ARMY COMMANDS

U. S. Moves Designed to Increase Efficiency.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—As part of the program to increase and promote efficiency in the country's armed forces, the war and navy departments are working to lower the ages of generals and admirals.

In the rush to speed and perfect military and naval armaments upon the rising of war threats in Europe over the Spanish revolution and in the far east over the Sino-Japanese conflict, army and naval organization was thrust into the background.

A recent survey revealed that commanders of the country's army and navy are too old for active service. In the navy sixty-three rear admirals have an average of slightly more than 60 years. In the army thirty-seven major generals average 59 years and sixty-four brigadier generals average more than 60 years. The average age of major generals is brought down by ranking air men who are under 55 years of age.

Approximates Wartime Level.

The average approximates that of the leaders of American armed forces at the outbreak of the war. In the navy twenty admirals averaged more than 61 years, nine major generals averaged above 59 years and twenty-three brigadier generals averaged more than 61 years.

Virtually all these officers were found too old for active commands during the war. They were, for the most part, relegated to desk work and the actual work of command went to younger men. The high command of the army and navy realizes that history would repeat itself in the event of an emergency today and is seeking to elevate younger men to posts of command.

Unfortunately, the high commands are handicapped in their efforts because at the top of the ladders the jobs are few and the applicants are many. The navy has weeded out applicants to some extent but not enough to lower ages to any great measure, and the army is bogged down by lack of scarcely any competition for promotion on a merit basis.

Navy Better Off than Army.

The navy, in the adoption of its selection system by which lower grades are regularly purged supposedly of undesirable officers, is a shade better off than the army. On the whole, only the better officers become admirals.

Under the navy system, selection boards meet regularly to consider promotions in the various ranks. If an officer is twice passed over by selection boards after seven years in a particular rank, he is forced to retire on pay based on 2½ per cent of his salary for each year he has served as a commissioned officer.

The system, navy officers readily admit, is not perfect, but they insist it is better than nothing. Some hardship is worked in the lower grades where able officers are dropped merely because a certain number of men must be sacrificed to the system along with inefficient men.

Hope to Find Other Jobs.

The navy hopes some day these officers will be placed in other branches of the government, such as various alphabetical units, where their training would be of value. It has been advocated that such officers be offered careers in the American merchant marine.

Even with the system, the American navy is far behind other nations in giving high commands to men in the vigor of life. The age at which promotions to the equivalent of American naval ranks in the various commissioned grades of the navy is shown in the following table:

	Age of promotion
Rank.	U. S.	Eng.	Jap.	France.	Ger.
Ensign	22	19½	23	20	23
Lieut. [J. G.]	25	20	26	22	25½
Lieut.	31	22	28	28	30
Lieut. Cmdr.	37	36½	34	35½	38½
Commander	43	35½	40	42½	43½
Captain	49½	43	45	48½	44½
Rear Admiral	55½	52	50	53	49½

In the other nations special provision is made for especially qualified officers. In the British navy, for example, an officer of special promise can be made an admiral at 40 or even younger by the king.

Army Promotions Automatic.

In the army there is no selection. A second lieutenant becomes a first lieutenant after three years of service and a captain after seven years as a first lieutenant. From then on the rank of general promotion is strictly a matter of seniority.

Generals are created from recommendations of a board which looks into the qualifications of colonels. In the past generals were selected on a basis of seniority, so that most of them got only a year or so of service in their ranks before they died or were retired automatically at the age of 64.

Today the army is passing over all colonels above the age of 58. Through this system, the army has been getting generals who are able to serve as brigadiers a year or two before going on to the grade of major general and to have major generals remain in office for several years.

High Command Topheavy.

Even so, the army high command is even more topheavy with old men than the navy. In comparison with officers of other nations, American army officers fare worse than American navy officers in all ranks, the war department confesses.

The army introduced the general staf system to get around incompetents in key positions. Under the old system of army organization, various bureaus were virtually independent organizations. Shortly before the entry of the United States into the world war the late Newton D. Baker, as secretary of war, ordered the chief of staf to coördinate and supervise the various bureaus through the general staf.

Sound Organization Lacking.

The general staf was thus saved from impotency on the eve of American entry into the war. However, it did not function perfectly in that struggle because there was an absence of sound organization and a lack of definite understanding of general staf functions which the army has been and is endeavoring to correct.

Extensive training has developed a large group of officers efficiently trained in higher command and general staf duties. The army believes that under its present organization it could have men take over the work of command and coördination at short notice in case of emergency. Such men would push older men now into command into obscure desk jobs.

Japan Takes Lead in Naval Race

ARCHBISHOP ADVISES BRITAIN TO BECOME FRIEND OF GERMANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The archbishop of Canterbury added his voice today to the British chorus calling on the United States to support British policy and urging Britain to seek a friendly understanding with Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany.

"There obviously are two lines of policy which ought to be followed," he said: "First, maintain and strengthen coöperation with the United States of America; second, do our utmost, while continuing our established friendship with France, to reach a friendly understanding with Germany."

The chief hindrance to such an understanding with Germany, the archbishop said, is "continued oppression [in Germany] of the Roman Catholic and Protestant churches and interference by the state with the activities of any church."

FRANCE PUSHES FOR CHANGES IN 1936 NAVAL PACT

Urges Parley with U. S., British on Subject.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—French naval circles today put forward the possibility of a conference among United States, British and French naval experts for revision of the 1936 London naval treaty to permit construction of battleships of more than 35,000 tons.

Members of the chamber of deputies naval committee said such a conference may follow an "exchange of views" among the three powers concerning the treaty's tonnage restriction.

It was understood that if such a conference were called, Germany and soviet Russia would be included at least in the later stages because they also agreed to the limitation.

Japs Build Bigger Ships.

Gratien Candace, navy budget reporter in the chamber, reported the "exchange of views" and declared France was favorable to removing the tonnage restriction since "it is well known that Japan is building 46,000 ton ships."

Britain, the United States and France agreed in the London treaty that for the period 1937-1942 inclusive they would exchange information on new naval construction and adhere to certain qualitative limitations.

Chief among the latter for capital ships was a maximum displacement of 35,000 tons. Escape clauses in the pact authorized the release of signatories from restrictions if a non-treaty power should exceed them.

Make Separate Treaties.

Both Germany and soviet Russia came within scope of the pact by separate treaties with Britain in 1937. Russia was exempted from qualitative limitations for vessels stationed in the far east and from exchanging information on vessels constructed and stationed there.

The foreign ministry refused to deny there had been such an exchange of views.

Members of the chamber naval committee asserted they would confer next week with William Bertrand, new navy minister, and Paul Marchandeau, new finance minister, to seek an increase in the 1938 naval building program. They said the increase to be sought would include two 42,000 ton battleships to be laid down when the London treaty was changed.

Favor Bigger Ships.

Members of the committee said they favored construction of two of the larger vessels because Italy would build two new 35,000 ton battleships.

[Premier Mussolini announced on Jan. 7 that Italy would build two warships of that tonnage, the Roma and Impero.]

FAKES HOLDUP; GETS PROBATION.

William E. Dunbar, 20 years old, of 1647 Superior street, who pretended he had been robbed of $116 which he was carrying to a bank for his employer, but actually mailed it to himself, was placed under supervision for one year by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the Boys' court yesterday. He was arraigned on a charge of larceny.

STALIN ORDERS 'PURGE' CURBED; JAPAN WARNED

Parliament Closes; No Laws Enacted.

MOSCOW, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's first parliament adjourned today with a show of martial defiance at external enemies, particularly Japan, but without having accomplished a bit of legislative work.

However, Dictator Josef Stalin curbed purgers of the communist rank and file. The central committee which he heads ordered an end to mass expulsion of party members, which usually was followed by loss of jobs, or worse. Some foreigners thought this might terminate the wave of wholesale denunciations, arrests, and executions.

Pravda, the communist party newspaper, indicated satisfaction with the results of the purge, but assailed "rotten leaders" who played into the enemy's hands. "Under the mask of false vigilance agents of Fascism sought to break up and oust from the ranks our bolshevist personnel," Pravda said.

"Tens of Thousands" Ousted.

"Illegal dismissals," the soviet supreme court said, had undermined industrial production and created dissatisfaction among workers. The court disclosed that "tens of thousands" had been driven from the party ranks.

Before the parliament session ended Premier Vyacheslav Molotov promised to take "drastic measures to end once and for all the hooliganism of agents of Japanese imperialism."

A blare of trumpets introduced detachments of soldiers, sailors, and tank drivers who marched down the alles. A captain shouted:

"We assure the supreme soviet, the people, and soviet leaders they are well defended. At the first call of the party, the government, or Stalin the Red army will rise for defense of the fatherland and will destroy the enemy on his own territory."

A bluejacket promised a more powerful fleet.

The supreme soviet, the first to meet under the new constitution, accepted a new council of commissars [cabinet] which included seven new members.

The New Commissars.

Judge Nikolai M. Rychkov, who assisted Chief Prosecutor Vasily V. Ulrich in the big treason trials of 1936 and 1937, was named commissar of justice to succeed Nikolai Vassilievitch Krylenko.

Nikolai Vosnesenski replaced Valery Mezhlauk as chairman of the state planning commission.

The other five new commissars are Stanislav Kossior, vice premier; Sergei Chvialev, foreign trade; Mikhail Popov, agricultural collections; Abram Gilinsky, food industry, and Arseny Zverev, finance.

The parliamentary session broke up in a huge parade past Lenin's tomb. The parliament concluded its work within eight days, two of which were spent in idleness. Not a single legislative bill was proposed. Not one roll call was taken, nor was a hand raised in opposition to any action during the proceedings.

Functions of the committees on drafting laws which were named by both houses remained a mystery. They may have measures ready for submission at the next session. In the interim the presidium permanent committee of the supreme soviet will have the power to legislate by decrees.

DAVIES STEPDAUGHTER TELLS FEARS OF REDS TO EXPLAIN HER GUARD

Reno, Nev., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Eleanor Close Sturges Gautier Rand, who arrived here incognito last week with a six foot bodyguard, explained today she feared violence at the hands of soviet sympathizers.

She implied that her mother, Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, wife of the former ambassador to Russia, might have offended some Russians, and this was the cause of her fears. Thrice married, Mrs. Rand is establishing residence preparatory to divorcing George W. Post, cereal manufacturer of Battle Creek, Mich.

Davies, who is Mrs. Rand's stepfather, was appointed Russian ambassador by President Roosevelt in November, 1936. He arrived in Moscow in January, 1937, but spent little time at his post. Last November he returned to America and the President transferred him to Brussels as ambassador to Belgium.

BUSINESS WINS PROMISE OF AID FROM ROOSEVELT

Leaders Outline Plans to End Slump.

Wages and hours—The council urged a fresh study of wage and hour legislation and that, before a decision be given to go ahead again with such legislation, government representatives consult with representatives of labor and industry who participated in the administration of the NRA.

Mr. Roosevelt said he approved this suggestion on condition that such a study would not prevent action at this session of congress.

Public Utilities—The council urges that a sound policy be developed as the basis of relations between the government and private enterprises to the end that fear of destruction through government competition might be eliminated. The council said its membership knew of no one thing that would do more to restimulate depressed industries than a sound solution of the public utility problem.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the misunderstanding between himself and the utility industry did not apply to the industry as a whole. The misunderstanding, he said, affected about 15 per cent of the industry.

Holding Companies—The council decried the use of holding companies for financial manipulations, but viewed with grave concern any general move, such as the President recently suggested to outlaw all holding companies.

Mr. Roosevelt agreed that some holding companies have a certain amount of mass efficiency and otherwise operate in the public interest.

Labor Relations—The council urged revision of the Wagner labor relations act to make unions more responsible in contractual relations.

Mr. Roosevelt said he favored legal listing of unions and reporting of expenses of organization. He expressed himself against incorporation of unions and favoring voluntary assumption of responsibility. He suggested problems of labor and industry be worked by common consent, rather than law.

Flow of capital to private industry, the council urged modification of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes as a means of stimulating the flow of capital into industry.

Silent on Monetary Policy.

Mr. Roosevelt in signifying agreement, said another reason for lack of investment is failure of bankers and investment brokers to establish new machinery by which small investors would be enabled to put money into old and new enterprises.

No observation was made by the President on the council's suggestions on monetary policy and on business practices. On these the council said:

Monetary Policy—The recession has led to renewed demands in some quarters for a further cheapening of the dollar and pump priming. We believe the adoption of such measures at this time would seriously interfere with, if not completely prevent, the resumption of fundamentally sound recovery.

Business Practices—Turning to the problem of abusive business practices, the council wishes to pledge its cooperation and recognizes that the antitrust laws are to an extent outmoded. We share the view you have expressed. . . . That coöperation within industries attempted under the NRA held much it is desirable to preserve.

This suggestion was drawn from a recent press conference at which Mr. Roosevelt sighed for the days of the outlawed NRA when representatives of business and government sat down to formulate production programs with an eye to demand and purchasing power.

It is believed that Mr. Roosevelt will seek to revive this phase of the NRA through the creation of the group, which will formulate policy. The creation of the group, he revealed, has been the underlying purpose of his conferences with business leaders.

May Appeal to Congress.

No indication was given as to when and how the group will be formed. If the group is to explore all phases of the problem it will have to have legal status and money. To get these, Mr. Roosevelt may have to appeal to congress in a special message.

The plan was announced through Secretary Early who quoted the President as saying that he and the members of his administration were working with the Business Advisory council and with the other groups, who have been down and are coming down, toward establishment of a simple machinery in respect to policies. All agree, the President said, such machinery should represent all the elements which enter into legislative and administrative policy both from the point of view of geography and different types of interests.

The President listed business, big and little, labor, finance, distribution, agriculture, transportation, credit, investors, and consumers as among the various types of interests to be represented. The government was not mentioned, but is expected to be represented.

No limitation was set on the field of inquiry of the group. It is expected that it will embrace every field of relationship between business and industry as related to the present depression and planning for the future.

Drafted by Advisory Council.

The report of the advisory council was drafted at a meeting with Secretary of Commerce Roper, who accompanied the members to the White House. Before meeting with the President several members of the council went to the Mayflower hotel, where they were seen in conversation with J. P. Morgan. The international banker said his presence in Washington had nothing to do with the meeting.

Among those who attended were Gen. Robert E. Wood of Chicago, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; R. Douglas Stuart of Chicago, vice president of Quaker Oats company; E. R. Stettinius Jr., chairman of the finance committee of United States Steel corporation; John D. Biggers, president Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company; Clarence Francis, chairman General Foods corporation; Paul W. Litchfield, president Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, and Walter Teagle, chairman of the board of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

as powder for fights between individuals," he said.

Upholds Authority of Captain.

Lundeberg won the respect of committee members when he upheld the absolute authority of a master at sea and the necessity for discipline.

"It is ridiculous for a seaman to strike at sea," he said. "He can be charged with mutiny and thrown in irons, and he can be dealt with at shore by the federal authorities. That's true not only in this country but in all others. The federal government has something to say about discipline at sea."

The witness read from a section of the law and added: "The steamship inspection service has all the power in the world to deal with this problem."

Senator Royal S. Copeland [D., N. Y.], chairman of the commerce committee, asked whether it would be advisable to establish training schools for seamen, but Lundeberg replied: "You can't train sailors ashore."

Opposes Compulsory Arbitration.

He said masters ought not to certify a man as an able bodied seaman until he had sailed one year as a deck boy and two years as an ordinary seaman.

Lundeberg said he was opposed to compulsory arbitration of labor disputes because he did not want the government to acquire control of labor relations.

"That's getting too close to the things they have in Germany and Italy and Russia, where the men are told what to do," he said. "That's the danger of democracy running into Fascism."

Senator Josiah W. Bailey [D., N. C.], foe of the Wagner labor relations act and of the C. I. O., shook hands with Lundeberg when he had concluded his testimony.

STEEL WORKERS ASK U. S. INQUIRY ON LABOR BOARD

Weirton, W. Va., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Representatives of approximately 200 Weirton Steel company employés called upon congress today to immediately investigate the national labor relations board.

In a resolution the advisory committee of the sheet mill unit of the Weirton Employés' Security league asked the house and senate:

"To determine to what extent, if any, the board had overstepped its legal authority or violated the constitution of the United States, especially that portion of the constitution known as the bill of rights."

Referring to the 85 day labor board hearing on charges that the Weirton company dominated and coerced its workers, the committee said:

"The long drawn out hearing has caused great expense to Weirton Steel company, its employés, the Security league, the community, and all taxpayers."

Hijackers Seize Cigaret Truck in Downtown Elgin

Hijackers seized a truck laden with $1,200 worth of cigarets and tobacco yesterday in the business district of Elgin. One of the gang leaped into the truck, driven by Donald F. Vollmer is employed by the Philip Schickler tobacco company of Elgin.

C. I. O. UNIONISTS DEMAND SPECIAL RELIEF FAVORS

Lyons Tells Their Refusal to Live in Shelters.

Lake sailors who are affiliated with a C. I. O. union are demanding special privileges from the Chicago Relief administration. Until they came under the aegis of the C. I. O. this year, they were not a problem group.

This statement was made yesterday to the city council subcommittee on relief by Leo M. Lyons, commissioner of the CRA. The subcommittee, of which Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] is chairman, was holding the first of a series of meetings to investigate the administration of relief in Chicago.

Kept Through Depressions.

Lyons said that 300 of the sailors called on him with the demand that they all be given room rent and money for food. The commissioner said that he told the men they would have to go to one of the men's shelters, as other single men and transients are now doing, but that the majority of the group refused to do this.

S. N. Geal, superintendent of shelters for the CRA, accompanied Lyons to the council subcommittee meeting. The two men outlined the type of care given men in the shelters, where each man is given a bed and three meals a day. The committee accepted Lyons' suggestion that they make a tour of the shelters and relief stations.

Tells of Finger Print Proposal.

Geal told the committee that the suggestion that all of the men in the shelters be finger printed was made to him by police after a series of strongarm robberies in the area near the shelter last fall. At that time, Geal said, the police arrested eight transients who were being cared for in the shelter.

Lyons said that he had asked Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes for an opinion on the legality of finger printing all of the shelter inmates. After the meeting Hodes said that work on the opinion was not finished.

Outsiders Aided, Says Alderman.

Ald. James J. McDermott [14th], one of the members of the committee, asserted that many people from outside Chicago are coming here, living by some means or other for the year necessary to establish residence, and then getting on relief. He said this was particularly true in the colored sections of the city.

Ald. Rowan issued an invitation to all staf members of the CRA who have information they think may be of value to the committee to appear and testify. In the event that the person appearing wishes it, Rowan said, his or her name will be kept secret so there will be no chance of any one jeapordizing his or her job.

Ald. George D. Kells [28th], told Lyons that members of the CRA staf have been appearing at meetings and stirring up trouble for the city.

"These people, who are servants of the city, get up in public meetings and say that the city council could raise more money for relief if it wanted to," Kells said. "That's nothing but insubordination."

ABOLISH INCOME TAX, CROMWELL URGES CONGRESS

Husband of Duke Heiress Suggests Sales Levy.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Congress was advised today by James H. R. Cromwell, husband of Doris Duke, America's richest woman, to abolish all income taxes in favor of a manufacturers' sales tax.

Cromwell, who became interested in economic theories after his marriage to the heiress of the Duke tobacco millions, appeared unexpectedly before the house ways and means committee, which is studying suggestions for a revision of the revenue laws, particularly with reference to the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes.

50 Millions Tax Exempt.

Practical abolition of estate and gift taxes also was advocated by Cromwell, who is 40 years old. A member of the committee hinted that Cromwell might have a selfish interest in wishing to abolish income and inheritance taxes because of his wife's fortune.

Cromwell thereupon remarked casually: "My wife and myself have more than 50 million dollars invested in tax exempt securities."

Thereafter the committee did not question his sincerity. Some of the legislators who have been prodding the treasury for its failure to reform the law which permits tax-exempt issues commented later that Cromwell, by this one revelation, had pointed the way to one method of obtaining additional revenue.

Wife Heavy Contributor.

The testimony of Cromwell had added interest to the legislators because he and his wife are frequent visitors at President Roosevelt's Hyde Park estate. Mrs. Cromwell is a heavy contributor to the Democratic national committee. Cromwell recently wrote a work entitled "In Defense of Capitalism."

"In their zeal to correct the social injustices and the concentrations of wealth which result from the undiluted inheritance of large estates, many of our legislators and economists have overlooked the adverse effects which the forced liquidation of such estates exercise upon the public welfare," Cromwell told the committee, "particularly with reference to the maintenance of competitive conditions and the bargaining power of labor."

Would Force Sale of Securities.

He estimated that the estate of Henry Ford, if fixed at 500 million dollars by federal and state appraisers, would be subject to a combined federal and state tax of 65 per cent, or 325 million dollars, before it could be passed on to the beneficiaries. The difficulty of obtaining such a sum in cash within a period of about 18 months was apparent, Cromwell said.

The money would have to be obtained by the sale of Ford securities and the dissipation of cash reserves. In the first case, he declared, the investing public would have less to invest in new productive enterprises and in the second case the company itself would be imperiled and the employment of thousands jeopardized.

Urges Reduction of Gifts.

"I propose that deductions from estate and gift taxes, up to the full amount of such taxes, be allowed for bequests or gifts in trust to recognized domestic charitable, educational, and scientific institutions," Cromwell said.

"This proposal contemplates the repeal of all state inheritance, gift, and estate taxes.

"Assuming, for example, that the federal tax on an estate of 10 million dollars was 25 per cent, the beneficiaries of the estate would be allowed to deduct from the two and a half million dollar assessment all gifts made in trust to recognized institutions during the lifetime of the deceased, as well as all bequests provided for in his will."

Cromwell also argued that all forms of income tax were unjust and should be repealed. In their place he suggested the adoption of a manufacturers' sales tax on finished consumer goods.

Consumers Would Bear Burden.

"Under this system of taxation," he told the committee, "individuals would be assessed at the time money was spent, rather than after it had been spent.

"Owners of tax exempt securities would be compelled to contribute to government support, and those who consumed the most goods would bear a proportionately greater burden. The investor would be taxed only when he used the income derived from his investment to fulfill his daily wants, the hoarder when he dehoarded, and the spendthrift when he spent."

Cromwell contended that the additional costs which would have to be borne by wage earners under this system would be trivial in comparison with the increased independence, increased work opportunity, and the increased real income that would result.

Urges Tax Repeal

LAXITY CHARGED TO ICKES, FACING NEW QUESTIONING

Secretary Is Attacked in Senate Speech.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes will be recalled before the senate committee on public lands to explain what Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.] referred to in a senate speech today as "astounding laxity and inefficiency if not criminal carelessness" in his department.

Senator Pittman made his senate attack on the conduct of official business in the interior department after he had served notice before the public lands committee that he wanted Mr. Ickes recalled. He said he wanted the secretary to explain why the records of expenditures of millions of dollars for emergency conservation work [CCC] through the national parks service have not been audited in five years.

Explanation Demanded.

Mr. Ickes also will be asked to explain why his accounting force failed to compare records of disbursements with the pay roll records for the purpose of determining how many dummy CCC employés were getting government pay checks. Failure to make this reconciliation, according to a confidential report by Mr. Ickes' own investigators, made it possible for Reno E. Stitley, a voucher clerk in the national parks service to embezzle $84,880 over a period of three years and eight months by putting through vouchers for nonexistent CCC employés.

Senator Pittman explained to the senate that the committee is investigating the qualifications of Ebert K. Burlew, administrative assistant to Mr. Ickes, for the office of first assistant secretary of the interior.

"In that investigation," he said, "there has been an astounding revelation with regard to laxity and inefficiency, if not criminal carelessness, in the finance and the auditing division of the national parks service of the department of the interior."

Tells of Defalcations.

Senator Pittman explained that the committee learned how Stitley, the voucher clerk, had carried on his defalcations shortly after Mr. Burlew's nomination was sent to the senate.

"It was so extraordinary that a pay clerk, over a period of four years, through false vouchers, the collecting of government checks, and forging the names of the payees, who did not exist, could embezzle the large sum of over $84,000, that it seemed to reflect on a bureau of the interior department," Senator Pittman said.

"As a matter of fact, the secretary of the department is primarily responsible for the efficiency in each bureau and also for the honesty and integrity of the personnel. Therefore, it might not seem to concern the nominee under consideration, Mr. Burlew. However, testimony before the committee by Secretary Ickes and Mr. Burlew himself discloses the fact that the secretary did rely upon Mr. Burlew and had the right to rely upon him to keep him advised with regard to the various bureaus of the department."

Wait for O'Mahoney.

Today's session of the public lands committee was adjourned after a brief discussion among the members because of the absence of Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], who wants to be present when the subject of administering the Taylor grazing act is taken up tomorrow.

Members of the senate committee revealed that the interior department is conducting a most energetic lobby on behalf of Mr. Burlew's confirmation. It was disclosed that governors of western states which stand to benefit from the largess of the interior department, through the reclamation bureau, the national parks service, or otherwise, have been told to bring pressure upon their senators to terminate the investigation and hasten Mr. Burlew's confirmation. Secretary Ickes has made personal appeals for senators to call off the investigation lest it become a "smearing campaign."

Wants Ickes Back.

Senator Pat McCarran [D., Nev.] asked today whether there couldn't be some assurance that the inquiry would be completed tomorrow, but his colleague, Senator Pittman, said there could not.

"I want to have Mr. Ickes back here," he said. Ickes is out of town, but is expected back Friday.

Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rad., N. D.], who has been endeavoring to place responsibility for the Stitely peculations upon the war department, persuaded the committee to call a former clerk in the army finance office, who, he said, was caused to retire just before the defalcations were discovered in April, 1937.

Other members of the committee, notably Senator Pittman, do not share Nye's professed belief that the war department was primarily responsible. The interior department, through the national parks service, supplies the supervisory personnel of the CCC camps, but the employés are paid by the war department. Evidence before the committee shows that back in the summer of 1935 the war department voluntarily offered to supply records of its disbursements for comparison with the interior department pay rolls.

Pay Records Supplied.

The interior department said it had no need of such records, but a year later, on July 1, 1936, asked for them. Although they were supplied, no use was made of them until the Stitely defalcations were discovered accidentally the following April.

A confidential report by two of Mr. Ickes' investigators said that "unless this check is made it will be impossible to ascertain the number of persons who have taken advantage of the opportunity to unjustly enrich themselves."

LAKE DIVERSION OPPONENTS WIN HEARING DELAY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Foes of Chicago water diversion were granted a delay today until Feb. 15 by the house rivers and harbors committee in which to prepare a case against the Parsons bill to authorize diversion of an annual average of 5,000 cubic feet of water a second from Lake Michigan.

Attorneys general of lake states, including Minnesota, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Michigan, and New York, had demanded a 60 day postponement. The committee, in executive session, decided proponents of the bill would be heard starting tomorrow.

The Supreme court has ruled that effective Dec. 31, 1938, the Chicago sanitary district would be limited to not more than 1,600 cubic feet of water a second from Lake Michigan.

ENVOY WILSON DEPARTS FOR HIS POST AT BERLIN

Hugh R. Wilson, new ambassador to Germany, left Chicago for Washington yesterday afternoon on the Pennsylvania railroad's Liberty Flyer. He was accompanied to the station by his brother, Morris K. Wilson of Winnetka, with whom he had made a brief stay.

He will sail for his new post Jan. 27 on the Manhattan, and Mrs. Wilson will follow in about a month. He has been in Germany twice before in official capacities—as undersecretary with Ambassador James W. Gerard in 1916 and as embassy counselor in 1920-'21. A Sure Way to Heal Dry Chapped Rough Skin

There is one sure way that has never failed to heal chapped, dry, rough skin. The way Doctors, Dentists and Nurses do. They cannot afford to have rough, chapped skin, as it would expose them unnecessarily to dangerous infections. That is why they must keep their skin in good condition.

Your skin gets chapped, dry and red because essential skin elements are destroyed by harsh treatment and bad weather. The way, then, to make it soft and white, is to replace these essential skin elements. To do this, get Mystic cream from any druggist or department store. Mystic cream supplies everything your skin needs to make it soft, smooth and white.

Apply Mystic cream at night before retiring. It is absorbed almost instantly. Mystic cream is not the least bit sticky or greasy, and it won't stain.

Results are quick and sure no matter how rough and dry your skin is. You can always have soft, smooth, lovely skin, if you get the habit of using Mystic cream.

This simple treatment never fails.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

RECALL GALLOWS DEATH OF WOMAN POISONER IN 1845

First of Sex Executed in Illinois.

Ninety-three years ago, for the first time in the history of the state, Illinois exacted the death penalty from a woman murderer. She paid for her crime by hanging.

Details of this old case, of national interest in its time, were recalled yesterday as the hour neared for the execution of Mrs. Marie Porter, who will be the second woman ever put to death by the state. She is to die early tomorrow in the electric chair.

Mrs. Elizabeth Reed was the woman executed in April of 1845. She had poisoned her husband, Leonard, by placing arsenic in his cup of tea.

Neighbors Ask Investigation.

The Reeds lived in Crawford county, not far from Robinson. In August of 1844 Reed died suddenly. Neighbors demanded an investigation. A medical examination showed he had died of poison and Mrs. Reed was arrested.

She was a tiny woman with deep set, beady, black eyes. Never one to mingle, her neighbors thought she was queer. Some even termed her a witch, for the year was 1844 and witchcraft still had its followers in southern Illinois.

Soon after her arrest Mrs. Reed tried to escape by setting fire to the log jail. Thereafter until her trial she was shackled to the bedposts in the sheriff's home.

Trial Held in County Seat.

Because of the high feeling in her home town, Mrs. Reed's lawyer had the trial transferred to Lawrenceville, county seat of Lawrence county. There in April, 1845, a jury found Mrs. Reed guilty of murder.

Supreme Court Justice William Wilson, sitting as a Circuit court judge, thereupon ordered that she be taken to some convenient place within a mile of the courthouse and hanged until dead.

News that a woman was to be hanged spread quickly. From miles around the curious began to assemble, even several days before the execution, camping near the gallows erected in a woods on a river bank.

Witness Tells of Hanging.

"The people came in covered wagons, in ox carts, and on horseback," said Alex McCarter, a witness of the hanging, who told the details just before his death in 1935 at the age of 101 in his home near Birds, Ill.

"My own people, including nine of us children, got up before daybreak to be sure to be at the gallows in time. When we arrived young boys and men were in the trees, and there were many others standing on a small hill overlooking the scaffold.

"Not far from the scaffold was an open grave. I don't know what time we arrived, and it didn't matter. People didn't think so much about time in those days. I remember it was a beautiful spring day, with the sun shining through the trees. I can remember that, and also the incessant hum of conversation.

Sings on Way to Gallows.

"Suddenly the hum ceased. Down the road we saw a wagon approaching, drawn by two white horses. As it came nearer we could make out a coffin, and sitting on the coffin was Mrs. Reed, dressed in white and singing a religious song.

"She didn't seem nervous and mounted the scaffold without hesitation. There was no ceremony. The noose was placed around her neck, and a black cap drawn over her head. Then the trap was sprung."

INDIANA TO LEND CHAIR TO U. S. FOR DALHOVER DEATH

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Al Hosinski, United States marshal at South Bend, today asked Gov. M. Clifford Townsend to lend Indiana's electric chair to the federal government so James Dalhover, last of the Brady gangsters, can be put to death in it at the Indiana state prison April 8. Townsend approved the request. The federal government will pay the costs to the state.

Dalhover will be taken to the prison from South Bend a few days before the scheduled execution for the murder of Paul Minneman, Logansport state policeman. The same rules of attendance that govern executions supervised by the state will prevail for Dalhover, the governor said.

Dalhover was captured at Bangor, Me., at the time Al Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer Jr. were slain in a battle with G-men, Bangor police, and an Indiana state policeman.

IRISH CHEERY AFTER PARLEYS WITH BRITISH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Ireland and his colleagues tonight were preparing to return to Dublin tomorrow, all apparently satisfied with the results of the three day talks with British ministers.

Just what promises the Irish got still is not known, but these things are definite:

1—The British have given enough indication of support for the Irish ambition of eventually having a united Ireland because De Valera has been willing to proceed to trade, finance and defense questions.

2—The British got satisfactory assurance that the Irish would not buck their plans for an Irish defense system organized as a virtual subsidiary of Great Britain's.

3—That some settlement of the thorny problem of land annuities has been found or negotiations for a trade pact could not proceed as predicted—the Irish diplomats expect to be back within six weeks.

A MONTH AFTER START IN CRIME, 3 GO TO PRISON

Just a month after they began a career of crime, during which they held up eleven gasoline stations and robbed homes, three youths were on their way yesterday to the penitentiary.

They are Ray Zemar, 20 years old, 7514 Vernon avenue; John Bukovitz, 19, of 9321 Greenwood avenue; and Lawrence Seles, 20, of 6759 South Ashland avenue. All pleaded guilty, and were sentenced by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington on two charges of robbery with a gun to one year to life, the sentences to run concurrently.

Altogether their loot amounted to about $200 besides seven old pistols which they stole from the home of a gun collector.

to women. The power delegated by the constitution to the governor to pardon convicted persons and to lessen penalties by commutation of sentence is intended only to prevent grave miscarriage of justice."

It was thought Mrs. Porter might try to evade the chair in a sanity hearing in court. Her attorney, Edward S. Bareis, of Belleville, however, said there was no further legal recourse.

Last month Gov. Horner ordered a mental examination of Mrs. Porter and the condemned Giancola. Dr. E. H. Schaller, prison psychiatrist at Menard, reported to the state board of pardon and paroles that both were sane.

Woman Unaware of Refusal.

Fearing an outburst of hysterics, Warden Joseph Montgomery said he would not tell Mrs. Porter of the governor's action until tomorrow. She is confined under guard of two women deputies in a cell in the administration building, fitted up for her use, because the prison has no facilities for women.

The prison tailor has made her a black silk gown, similar to a jumper or bloomer suit. She will wear this in the chair, so that her legs will be bare for attachment of the electrodes.

Apparently expecting an adverse decision from the governor, Giancola took the news that he must die with calm.

Assassin Ready to Die.

"I'm guilty," he told Warden Montgomery. "I had it coming to me. I don't mind going if she goes too."

Giancola confessed he was the killer in the plot which was born when Kappen told his sister he planned to marry Miss Irene Traub of St. Louis, Mo., where all of the principals in the case lived.

Kappen had quarreled with his sister a year before, according to testimony presented at the trial before Circuit Judge Dick H. Mudge at Belleville, Ill. She objected when he refused to give her his $1,000 war veteran's bonus.

When she was told that Kappen intended to change his $3,300 insurance policy to name his fiancée instead of his sister as beneficiary, Mrs. Porter engaged the Giancola brothers to kill him.

Victim Awakened by Gunmen.

After bidding Miss Traub goodnight, Kappen, an electrical worker, went to sleep in his room in his sister's boarding house early in the morning of last July 4. A few hours later the Giancola brothers awakened him at pistol point.

While Angelo threatened him with the gun John drove the car about the countryside for several hours. Mrs. Porter sat beside her brother, trying to persuade him not to change the policy.

His refusal marked him for death. Near the Cat and the Fiddle, a roadhouse outside of Belleville, the Giancolas dragged Kappen from the car. While Mrs. Porter watched, Angelo shot Kappen through the head and tossed his body in a prairie.

Brothers Confess Slaying.

The murder remained a mystery for several days, until police investigated the insurance angle, and arrested the Giancolas, who had been seen loitering about the boarding house. Angelo's arms were covered with poison ivy infection. The field where Kappen's body was found was thick with the ivy. Their confessions soon followed.

Mrs. Porter's four daughters range in age from 4 to 22. The eldest is married. All appeared before the pardon board to plead for clemency. The three younger, who will be left orphans when their mother is executed, are being cared for by a friend in St. Louis. Their father died a few years ago.

PAINT BOMBINGS ATTRIBUTED TO LABOR TROUBLE

Highland Park police blamed labor trouble for paint bombs which were thrown early yesterday against the First National bank and a private residence. Since Dec. 4 four other paint bombs have been thrown in the suburb and one in Highwood.

The bombs were made of electric light globes filled with an unsightly, thick, brown paint. Six splattered the front of the bank building. Two shattered on the new home of Attorney Arthur H. Watson at 648 Carol court.

18 NAVY PLANES SET RECORD FOR MASSED FLIGHT TO HONOLULU

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 19.—Eighteen long range patrol bombers settled to Pearl Harbor before dawn today, ending the longest trans-oceanic flight of that number of planes in history. The planes, brought here by the United States navy to strengthen Hawaii's defenses, made the 2,570 miles from San Diego, Cal., in 20 hours and 12 minutes. This broke the record of 21 hours and 25 minutes made last April in another naval mass flight of 12 planes.

The navy termed the flight a "routine transfer" of new planes, and Lieutenant Commander S. H. Warner, who was in command on the journey, said there was "no trouble of any kind."

This consignment of planes brought to 42 the number of big ships flown to Hawaii by the navy in the last year. It is estimated that the army and navy planes now available in Hawaii number more than 200, including Hawaii number 215.

COLLEGES JOIN IN CAMPAIGN TO CHECK SYPHILIS

Some Require Tests of All Incoming Students.

BY GREER WILLIAMS.

Stimulated by the national campaign to control venereal disease, a few colleges and universities are making syphilis tests a part of the routine examinations required of incoming students. Judging from a survey made by THE TRIBUNE, serological diagnosis for syphilis is not a common regulation among student health services, however.

Instruction on the sexual and social hazards of the disease is far more common. Many universities, in fact, require their freshman men and women to take courses in health or hygiene revealing the character of the disease. Others confine this instruction to medical and sociological courses beyond the reach of most students.

Not a Major Campus Problem.

University presidents, deans, and health directors questioned by THE TRIBUNE were unanimous in declaring that syphilis does not constitute a major health problem on American campuses.

Most of them agreed that students found to have syphilis and gonorrhea should be kept in school where they could have adequate treatment. Prep school leaders, dealing with younger boys, were just as certain that all syphilitics should be barred.

The University of Chicago, University of Iowa, and Dartmouth college are schools which have elected to give Wassermann or Kahn tests to all newcomers. New York university offers free tests to all students, but does not require them.

Testing began on the Midway with the winter quarter this month, taking advantage of the Chicago board of health's program of free and secret examinations, since the university health service lacked funds for this purpose.

One Case Among 650.

Dartmouth college began routine Wassermanns last fall and found one case of congenital syphilis among 650 incoming students.

The University of Iowa started serological testing of freshmen in 1924 and continued until 1930, reported Dr. M. E. Barnes, head of the department of hygiene. It ceased, he said, because of many objections. The university then confined its testing to food handlers, employés, nursing and medical students until 1937. Last fall, however, routine testing of all first year men and women was resumed. There were no objections and, indeed, many upper classmen requested blood tests.

Dr. Barnes attributed the changed attitude in part to the national campaign. Two thousand tests were made from July 1 to Dec. 31, 1937, and not a single positive was found among students, he declared.

Cites Statistics on Collegians.

Dr. J. Howard Beard, director of the University of Illinois health service, and Dr. Warren E. Forsythe, director of the University of Michigan health service, cited statistics presented last month before the American Student Health association meeting in Chicago to show that syphilis is scarce among collegians.

The University of Minnesota's record was two-tenths of 1 per cent infected among 19,000 male and female students who availed themselves of tests offered by the school in the last ten years. Wisconsin had two positives among 3,400, and Syracuse university two among 2,000.

Dr. A. C. Willard, president of the University of Illinois, pointed out that the positive findings averaged one in 500. Said he:

"We recognize syphilis to be a disease of tremendous health, social, and economic importance. We believe that thousands of laboratory tests warant the conclusion that, relatively speaking, syphilis is not a large problem in college students. While we have a laboratory test made on every student with even suggestive symptoms or who may request it, it is not entirely clear to us that best public health administration warants universally compulsory laboratory tests in groups where only one in 500 may show a positive test and even 2,000 examinations may fail to reveal one."

Watch for Syphilis Signs.

Illinois requires a careful physical examination with attention to all syphilis signs and symtoms—short of testing. Other universities which follow this policy are Michigan, Indiana, Northwestern, Alabama, Virginia, De Paul, and Harvard.

Harvard goes the rank and file one better, however, in prevention. Said Dr. Arlie V. Bock, professor of hygiene:

"We have regular army prophylaxis available day and night for students, but I am surprised that it is so little used."

Dr. Bock knew of no cases diagnosed among incoming students in the last three years and only from one to three cases annually among a student body of 8,000.

"No lectures are given here on physical or health education," he said. "When they were given a few years ago, the result was mostly a 'flop.'"

This contrasted with the required courses in hygiene for freshmen men and women at Virginia, Northwestern, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Dartmouth [not co-educational], and De Paul. Instruction on venereal disease at Chicago, Indiana, and Alabama is, as at Harvard, confined to science classes.

De Paul's semester hygiene course for new students appeared typical of those required by other universities. "These lectures are given by the college physician and treat the topics of health promotion, personal hygiene, and disease," said Msgr. M. J. O'Connell, president. "This course treats very definitiy the subject of venereal disease, gives all essential information on causes, effects, and prevention."

Msgr. O'Connell said that students known to have a communicable disease are denied entrance and are barred until cured. Northwestern, said President Walter Dill Scott, holds the same attitude toward incoming students, but would insist on treatment and not disbarment of a syphilitic after his enrollment.

Treated Like Other Diseases.

Schools whose authorities refuse to hold syphilis against new or returning students include Harvard, Alabama, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Dartmouth, Virginia, and Chicago.

Their attitude was expressed by Dr. Dudley B. Reed, health director of the University of Chicago:

"We provide treatment for students with syphilis as for those with other diseases, and we treat the disease like any other communicable disease, barring them from contact with other students when there might be a danger, but not dismissing them from school."

Lake Forest [Ill.] academy, Elgin [Ill.] academy, Manlius [N. Y.] school Wayland Junior college and Wayland academy at Beaver Dam, Wis., and Fountain Valley school at Colorado Springs, Colo., were in accord that syphilis would be intolerable among boys in prep school.

Headmaster Explains Policy.

As Headmaster John Wayne Richards of Lake Forest said: "It would be poor business."

None of the prep schools questioned has required hygiene courses but several provide informal or individual lectures in sex education in keeping with the belief, expressed by many university educators, that over-emphasis on the subject produces phobias which do more harm than good.

For this reason most of the university leaders opposed intensive anti-syphilis campaigns on their campuses, declaring that no special attacks were planned. There was an equally wide agreement that the national campaign had attracted the attention of students and faculty to the genuine problem of eradicating venereal disease.

Death Chamber

Oregon's substitute for the noose, a gas chamber.

Salem, Ore., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Construction of the gas chamber which replaces the noose as a means of execution in Oregon has been completed at the Oregon penitentiary.

An air proof, octagonal metal cell in which the condemned will sit, is provided with five windows for observation purposes. When the executioner pulls the lower lever near the window, cyanide eggs beneath the doomed person's chair are spilled into a crock containing a solution of sulphuric acid. Gas generated by this combination causes the prisoner to lose consciousness in 30 seconds. Death occurs within four minutes.

After the execution manipulation of the upper lever expels the gas through a vent 40 feet above the prison roof.

PRESIDENT SEEKS NEWSPAPER GAG, HOUSE IS WARNED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Representative Paul W. Shafer [R., Mich.] today warned the house of official attacks upon a free press.

President Roosevelt's recent remarks about a press subsidy in mail rates, and the denunciation by Secretary of the Interior Ickes of what he termed a subsidized press and kept commentators was described by Shafer as part of a campaign of suppression.

"The entire system of trying to destroy any individual, any group, class, or agency which opposes the New Deal march toward an authoritarian form of government is behind this attempt to wreak reprisal against the press," Shafer declared.

Tells of Peril to Press.

"The President has taken the position that the press of this country should be denied the mail rates now accorded it, which have been settled rates for scores of years.

"The President must be aware of the fact that if the newspapers and periodicals of this country are forced to pay higher mail rates the cost is not going to fall heaviest on the larger newspapers and magazines. It is going to fall with the most deadly effect on the small newspapers, the secular press, and the class publications. He certainly must be aware that this increased cost will not and cannot be absorbed by the small newspapers and magazines, but must and will be passed on to the subscribers."

Describes Motive for Attacks.

Shafer said he saw an unmistakable motive behind the President's attacks on the press.

"There never has been the slightest tolerance for adverse comment, constructive criticism, or honest difference of opinion in the President and his advisers," he said. "Their attitude has been that any group or any agency that opposed New Deal policies or criticized or disagreed with them did so from the basest motives of greed, selfishness, and treachery."

Shafer said that the effect of the campaign to increase the cost of publications is to turn hundreds of thousands of persons to the radio for their information on public questions. He said that while no method exists for controling the press the federal communications commission controls the radio.

Cites Rule Over Radio.

"The tenor, quantity, and kind of information and comment that goes out over the radio can be controled and regulated," he said. "I think the inference is plain.

"It has been demonstrated in several European countries that suppression of free press and free speech leads straight to dictatorship, just as dictatorship must of necessity suppress and abolish free press and free speech."

CALLS FOR AN ARMY OF FIGHTERS IN WAR ON SYPHILIS PLAGUE

Prof. Reuben L. Kahn of the University of Michigan, inventor of the Kahn test for syphilis, described last night the need for an educational campaign against the disease. His talk before the Covenant club was broadcast over W-G-N.

Failure to eradicate syphilis, he said, lies not with the physicians but with the public. Doctors are no more able to end the scourge alone than officers are able to win a battle single handed. Both need an army of workers, Dr. Kahn said.

DIETERICH, NASH, AND HORNER IN CITY; ALL SILENT

Three important Illinois Democrats came into Chicago yesterday, and all were equally silent on the question of the United States senatorship. They were Senator William H. Dieterich, who has announced his candidacy for renomination; National Committeeman P. A. Nash, who has not committed himself, and Gov. Horner, who has declared war on Dieterich.

Nash was home from a visit to Washington, during which he and Mayor Kelly talked with President Roosevelt about the Illinois outlook. Gov. Horner was passing through the city from Springfield to Washington for a similar talk with the President at a White House dinner tonight. Senator Dieterich came here from Washington to speak at a dinner of an association of employés in the federal customs service which was held at the Hotel Sherman.

VIEWS SYPHILIS AS CONTRIBUTOR TO TRAFIC TOLL

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The nation's huge motor death toll may be partly due to the effect of syphilis, Dr. Charles W. Myers, superintendent of the City hospital, asserted here this afternoon.

"One of the gravest problems is connection between the number of automobile accidents in the United States and the fact that thousands of cases of syphilis of the brain are escaping treatment," Dr. Myers declared.

He said syphilis annually takes a huge toll in deaths, causes mental deficiency, and wrecks lives of the tens of thousands because of society's attitude.

TRIBUNE EXPECTS NEW PRESS TO BE IN USE IN 3 WEEKS

Work on the installation of a new press comprising six black units and one color unit which will be used in the printing of the news and feature sections of the daily and Sunday TRIBUNE had progressed to such a point yesterday that its operation within three weeks was predicted. Another new press of sixteen color units will print the Sunday comic section.

Four of the six units of the black press were in place yesterday on unique floating foundations beneath the auditorium of radio station W-G-N. They rest on rubber cushions so that their operation will not, through vibration, interfere with the broadcasting carried on above. The new press is capable of printing 60,000 forty-eight page newspapers an hour, each with four pages printed in four colors. The total cost of the new equipment is $600,000.

MORON'S ATTACK ON GIRL FATAL; SUSPECT IS HELD

Victim of a sex criminal who beat her into helplessness in an attempt to rape her and then left her lying outside in the early morning, Miss Lottie Dziwulski, 19 years old, died last night in the County hospital. North Racine avenue police are holding Joseph Tabor, 23 years old, of 655 Milwaukee avenue, whom they say she identified several days ago as her assailant.

The girl was a short distance from her home at 1301 Ancona street, on her way to work, at 6:10 a. m. on Dec. 3 when a man seized her. It was half an hour before she was found, and the exposure caused pneumonia. She accused Tabor, a former neighbor, whom Sergts. Edward Kennedy and Joseph Ponicki seized a few days ago after weeks of search. He denied the attack.

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

SCOOP IN SILKS

By CALEB

ON our second floor in piece goods are some shockingly beautiful and original silk fabrics from France. Many of these fabrics will be seen by the buyers of American stores and by many French apparel people for the first time as the French dressmakers get into their spring season next month.

This thorough-going fashion scoop—material evidence of which you can behold in these fabrics—represents the confidence in our name held by a group of eminent French manufacturers of fine silks.

French silks are made in small mills. There is no general duplication in France of the modern production methods of this country. In order to provide us with ample silks to serve our purposes, the manufacturers of these interesting fabrics would require weeks. They would either have to throw their facilities into production for us in advance of the French dressmaker showings or we would have to wait until weeks after the dressmaker showings to provide you these beautiful and unique things.

Naturally we went to every length to avail ourselves of the former alternative.

Therefore—early last November we had samples of these exquisite silks in our store. They were guarded with the utmost care. They were examined, literally, in secrecy. From the time they reached the United States on a French liner until our orders went back on the Normandie November 10, they were viewed by no eyes but those of a few of our people.

We marveled at some of the novelty weaves and textures and laces—at the daringness of many of the prints—at the suave colorings of others—at the pattern drawings reminiscent of modern paintings.

In the world of commerce there are many slips when things are being done confidentially. Yet the French manufacturers, to whom premature copying of these samples would be disastrous, entrusted them to us in full confidence. There are many rewards for a good name.

COMFORTING RELIEF FOR YOUR "HEAVY" CHEST COLD

Tonight—rub your chest with Penetro before you go to bed. It will ease tightness and pressure so that your cold will "feel easier," you'll be more comfortable. Penetro combines 113% to 227% more medication than any other nationally sold cold salve together with a base of mutton suet, to create thorough counter-irritant action, thereby increasing blood flow and stimulating greater body heat.

Because mutton suet is an animal fat, it helps to better "hold in" this heat by conserving and concentrating it. That's why Penetro brings you such comforting relief, relieves the congestion and pressure of your "heavy" cold. Its aromatic vapors are inhaled into nasal passages to help open up stuffy noses, make breathing easier. Keep stainless, snow-white Penetro on hand to use generously on both children and adults. 35c a jar. Accept no substitute—be sure to ask for Penetro. Sold by all dealers.

TRAVELER FINDS TOURIST CAMPS NEED REGULATION

Sanitation Rules Held One Main Subject.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—In the last three nights we have stopped at three trailer camps, each of a type that is common in the mushroom growth of these facilities. They illustrate prevailing conditions in this new form of highway travel that are both unhealthy and unhealthful for camp operators, trailer owners, vehicle manufacturers, and the public as a whole.

In Daytona Beach we found what we have sought nightly in eight states but seldom have found. It was a clean, up to date camp. It was through luck that we discovered it, because there are no reliable guides for trailerites to follow.

This Daytona Beach camp was opened two months ago by the son of a retired Massachusetts shoe manufacturer. The lots were carpeted with pine needles. Each lot had tappets for hot and for cold water. Showers and toilets were ample and sanitary. The rent was 50 cents a night for our party of three persons.

$18,000 Invested in Camps.

In a discussion with the operator, who is 22 years old, he agreed that I probably used 50 cents' worth of hot water and electricity. Aside from the real estate, a hang-over in his family from the Florida boom of a decade ago, he had $18,000 invested in that camp.

"I can't make a profit at 50 cents," he said, "but I have to meet the rates of competition without this plumbing."

On the outskirts of the Georgia town of Cordele we parked with one other trailer in a lot beside a small group of cabins. The only investment for this accommodation was an electric wire extended to a pole with three plug connections. There was profit in the 50 cent rent.

63 Guests in Camp.

On the outskirts of Atlanta we're in a lot with twenty other trailers. The owner estimated he had 63 guests. To accommodate them there are two toilet and shower combinations, one for men and one for women—about 30 persons for each bath room. Grease and soap suds from sinks form puddles under trailers. Garbage is placed in paper bags or old newspapers on the ground for a colored man to pick up. The rent here is 50 cents plus metered electricity.

The conditions found in the three camps are common. The Daytona Beach operator needs regulation to protect him from price competition from the insanitary places. Regulation would put the Cordele camp out of business; his volume is too small to pay for inspection of his water supply and for the expense of sewage disposal.

Rules Would Protect Travelers.

Regulation would protect travelers and residents of the vicinity from cess pools such as in this Atlanta camp.

Enforced sanitation would increase the cost of trailer parking. The rent would be boosted from the usual 50 cents to perhaps 75 or 85 cents. From my observations in more than a month of trailer life, this would eliminate the slum camps and tend to popularize trailer travel.

John A. Neary, 1508 East 73d street, obtained an order from Judge Charles A. Williams yesterday permitting him to see his daughter, Shirley, 8 years old, on alternate week-ends when she is allowed to leave a convent at Springfield. Neary, through his attorney, Norman Becker, sought a contempt citation against his ex-wife, Frances, 4540 North Harding avenue, asserting she refused him permission to see his daughter. When Mrs. Neary's attorney, Jerome Strauss, declared Neary owed $600 in back allmony, Judge Williams also told Neary to pay this and a present support order at the rate of $10 a week.

EXPECT DECLINE IN STORE PRICES OF MILK MONDAY

The price of milk sold in retail stores in Chicago and nearby suburbs is expected to be reduced from 12 to 11 cents a quart beginning Monday. Several dealers have decided to cut their prices to retail merchants from 10½ to 9½ cents a quart, according to information received yesterday by Paul Potter, executive secretary of the Associated Milk Dealers, Inc.

Mr. Potter said that the prevailing home delivery prices would remain at 13 cents a quart, or 2 cents a quart more than the new store price. Consumers will be required to deposit 2 cents on each bottle at the stores.

One-fourth to one-third of the milk used in homes in the city is sold in stores. Farmers receive $2.25 a hundred pounds [4.84 cents a quart] for milk on the basis of 3.5 per cent butterfat.

RELIEFER GOES ON ZION JOYRIDE: THE BILL—$550

Harold Uskell of Waukegan, who was on the relief rolls but owned an automobile, went out joyriding Tuesday with his friend, Theodore Barenklau of Zion. Uskell took some relief money to buy two bottles of liquor. They set out uncertainly down Sheridan road.

As police told the story yesterday, all went well until they arrived in front of Wilbur Glenn Voliva's administration building in Zion. There Uskell's car hit two parked automobiles, veered across the pavement and knocked Lester Koetz, 9 years old, from his bicycle. Then the joyriders smashed into a third machine, coming to a stop. DEATH ENDS ONE PHASE OF QUIZ IN STRAUB SLAYING

With the burial yesterday of Peter Brickie, 55 years old, 4546 North Damen avenue, who died Sunday night, Summerdale police closed one phase of their investigation of the unsolved murder of Louis K. Straub, bartender for the Saddle and Cycle club who was slain Feb. 3, 1935. Brickie was buried in Acacia cemetery.

In the murder investigation, Brickie revealed that Mrs. Melba Straub, widow of the slain man, had owned a revolver of the type used in slaying her husband. The widow said she had given the gun to Brickie, and neither statement was ever confirmed or refuted.

Brickie's wife sued Mrs. Straub for $10,000, charging alienation of her husband's affections. Mrs. Straub collected $20,000 insurance on her husband's death and last week she settled Mrs. Brickie's suit for an amount reported to have been $350.

SPEED UP EFFORT TO UNIFY 'L' AND SURFACE LINES

Mayor Urges Early Transit Settlement.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

Representatives of the surface lines and elevated railway companies, at the urging of Mayor Kelly, are speeding negotiations to work out a unification agreement which will permit a traction settlement.

Guy A. Richardson, president of the surface lines, and William J. Lynch, chairman of the elevated reorganization committee, spent yesterday afternoon together studying financial data of the systems.

They said after the meeting that while they are hopeful of reaching an agreement, the negotiations have not yet advanced to the stage of discussion of terms on which a consolidation might be effected through an exchange of securities.

In Hands of Special Committee.

The traction situation is now in the hands of a special committee named Dec. 14 at a hearing before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. The committee consists of one representative each of the surface lines, elevated, motor coach company, and the city.

Richardson and Lynch represent the two rail systems. The other members are John Ritchie, president of the bus company, and Philip Harrington, engineer for the city council's local transportation committee, named by Mayor Kelly as his representative. Subsequently Judge Wilkerson named Walter A. Shaw, consulting engineer, as adviser to the court in the proceedings and authorized him to work with the new committee.

Mayor Urges Speed.

The full committee has held several meetings, the most recent being in Mayor Kelly's office last Saturday. Mayor Kelly then urged the company negotiators to speed up their work.

The city has taken the lead in the traction matter, Harrington pointed out yesterday. City engineers, under his direction, last November completed a comprehensive plan for modernization of all transit facilities and providing subsidies in the form of subways and elevated superhighways.

"We think that the transit report submitted to the committee and the court speaks for itself in showing what the city wants and it is now the job of the companies to work out someway of giving this to the city," Harrington said.

Settlement Demanded.

Unified operation of all transit facilities is a vital part of the city plan and the necessary first step in a settlement, Mayor Kelly contends, must be taken by the rail systems.

Before a settlement can be reached on the city basis, the companies must work out a unification agreement that will be acceptable to the federal court and permit the improvements and extensions demanded by the city. Both systems are under Judge Wilkerson's jurisdiction in receivership or bankruptcy proceedings.

The surface lines and elevated interests are scheduled to make a report on their negotiations to Judge Wilkerson on Feb. 7. With less than three weeks remaining before the next hearing, the company negotiators must make rapid progress if they are to be in a position to submit at least tentative agreement to the court. Judge Wilkerson on recent occasions has exhibited impatience with the lack of progress in the traction matter.

Expect Early Solution.

However, both he and Mayor Kelly were optimistic of an early settlement after the Dec. 14 hearing. They interpreted the position of the surface lines representatives to mean that the financial interests behind the system had finally accepted the condition that a unification agreement must be reached before the city would grant a new franchise. Previously, these interests had contended that unification should follow a franchise settlement.

Richardson and Lynch are meeting frequently in their efforts to work out this problem. To date, it is reported, their discussions have been concerned chiefly with a study of the financial and earnings position of the elevated, possible sources of funds to carry out improvements and the effect which proposed city subsidies will have on the value and usefulness of elevated properties.

Raid Judge Bonelli's Home as His Daughter, 2, Sleeps

Burglars last night broke into the home of Judge Nuncio Bonelli of the Municipal court on the first floor at 1645 South California avenue and took a mink coat valued at $1,500 belonging to the judge's wife, Margaret. They also stole a handbag worth $25 and a baby bank containing $10, which belonged to the Bonellis' daughter, Margaret, 2 years old, who was asleep. The judge and his wife discovered the burglary on their return home from dinner and notified the Marquette police.

Rose Gennarelli expressing happiness at boy friend's sentence of 1 to 5 years and her sentence of 1 year.

Rose Marie Gennarelli, the little girl who stole $6,200 from her employers to keep her slick looking boy friend progressing happily in a movie career that already had flickered out, yesterday was sentenced to one year in the county jail on recommendation of the state's attorney's office.

The boy friend, Patrick J. Billings, was found guilty Tuesday of conspiracy and yesterday was given one to five years and a $1,000 fine. Judge Rudolph Desort said the fine could be served out in the House of Correction at $1.50 a day after Billings' release from Joliet. An embezzlement charge was stricken, with leave to reinstate. Billings was given twenty days to perfect an appeal.

Rose Marie was well pleased with her treatment at first, but left the court in tears.

JOHNSON FIGHTS PETTY GAMBLING NEAR SCHOOLS

Asks Aid of Police in War on Gum Machines.

Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, disclosed yesterday that he is seeking the aid of police, parent-teacher organizations, and his own truant officer staf to clean up petty gambling near public schools.

The profit of the gambling devices, principally gum and candy machines, is insignificant. But, mothers have complained, they are not only teaching children to gamble, but are gleaning the pennies which parents, some of whom are on relief, give their children for lunch or milk.

As a result of a complaint by a mother that her children were dropping their pennies into these machines, a reporter was assigned to investigate. He found that the problem is regarded as far from trivial by other parents and by school authorities.

Where Lunch Pennies Go.

He found, too, that children, hoping to win the prizes offered, are spending their lunch money for gum they throw away and inferior candy. The gum or candy is given in return for every penny to comply with the letter if not the spirit of the law.

The reporter found the vending machines in school supply stores and in grocerie. and drug stores near schools. Most common were the gum machines, from which a ball drops when a copper cent is inserted. If the ball is speckled, or gold or silver colored, it is not gum but is a token entitling the boy or girl to 5 or 10 cents in trade.

Another machine produces a bit of candy for a cent. But if its center should be pink, or orange, the storekeeper will exchange it for a five cent candy bar.

New but popular are punchboards whose players are sure of a piece of candy for their cent, with the possibility that they may win as much as 20 cents in merchandise.

Near Nixon School.

Children were spending their money freely on the northwest side, near the Nixon Public school, 2121 North Keeler avenue. Across the street at 2108 North Keeler avenue, 20 to 25 children from the lower grades of the school gathered when classes were over to play the punchboard. They spent 38 cents in it in 15 minutes. This store, operated by a woman leader in the parent-teacher organization, also had a gum machine and the candy with the colored centers.

At 2120 North Keeler avenue the reporter saw a boy about 17 years old put 35 cents into the gum machine to win one bar of candy.

S. L. Kell, the school principal, said efforts were made last spring to keep the pupils away from the vending machines. The machines, he said, have increased in number in recent months.

Similar conditions were found near schools of the Humboldt Park and Logan Square districts, and the Harriet Beecher Stowe school at 3444 Wabansia avenue.

PLANS THAT WENT SOUR.

Two recent news items about corn throw light on the planned economy.

One item reported that there is enough hybrid seed corn available to plant 15 million acres next spring. Most of this seed is concentrated in the north central states. There is enough in Illinois and Iowa, the banner corn states, to seed half their corn acreage. It is true that 15 million acres is only about a seventh of the nation's corn plantings, but because the high-yielding hybrid seed will be used on the most fertile corn lands in the world it may be expected to account for a much higher proportion of the crop in all probability.

Attention has been called on numerous occasions to the way in which Mr. Wallace's official acts as secretary of agriculture have played into his hand as producer of hybrid seed. The enforced reduction in corn acreage gave farmers an additional reason for seeking to grow more corn on less land. That placed an added premium on superior seed.

Not so much has been said about the futility of the policy itself. It was supposed to result in a reduction of the annual surplus of corn. To achieve that end the taxpayers have been obliged to pay a bounty to farmers to reduce their acreage and the price of meat has been advanced.

The plan doesn't seem to be working as expected. The crop this year was large. Yields of as much as 80 bushels to the acre from hybrid seed were not uncommon. If next year's weather is anything like normal, another big crop may be expected. Hybrid corn is drouth-resistant and its increasing use is therefore likely to produce large crops even when the weather is somewhat unfavorable.

The other item is found in a recent speech by Mr. Wallace himself. He reported that between 15,000 and 20,000 farm hands were thrown out of work in Iowa alone last year because of the increasing use of mechanical corn pickers. These machines are not given away as souvenirs. They cost money. Many farmers say the machines damage the ears with the result that as much as a bushel to the acre is lost.

In spite of these obstacles why have so many farmers of late bought mechanical pickers? Not because the farmers expected any great savings and certainly not because they deliberately set out to deprive their neighbors of work and wages. In many parts of the country the farmers had to have machines if they wanted to get the crop in. There were no hands to do the work because the men who formerly were available are now on relief and have learned to live without working.

Here, too, something went wrong with the planned economy. The wages of WPA workers were fixed at a rate high enough to force farmers to pay higher wages if they wanted to get help. The result has been that machinery has replaced men.

THE VALUE OF A FLOATING DRY DOCK.

Many years ago the naval command recognized the need for a floating dry dock to be stationed in Hawaii. Eventually congress appropriated 10 million dollars for such a dock, but only one bid was received and it called for a minimum expenditure of 16 million dollars. There the matter rests.

The United States has at the Cavite base in the Philippines a stationary dock at which major naval repairs can be undertaken. Military opinion is almost unanimous that we cannot hold Cavite against an enemy in the western Pacific. If this judgment is correct, the Cavite yard would fall into the hands of the enemy and could be used against us.

We have another permanent dry dock at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, but it is far from adequate for the needs of our navy in the Pacific. More than 4,000 miles of ocean separate Manila and Honolulu. We must expect that some ships in active service against an enemy fleet will be damaged in battle. If our naval strength is to be maintained at its maximum in the zone of operations, wherever it may be, an adequate repair base must be available not too far from the scene of conflict.

It was with such repair bases in eastern waters that the British navy finally drove the French from India. The French, as Admiral Mahan has shown, were almost uniformly successful in the early stages of the naval war, but the British had the immense advantage of adequate repair bases. In consequence, their fleet was maintained at relatively high efficiency, despite heavier damage suffered in battle. The French fleet, for lack of repairs, gradually lost its striking power. The day came when the British navy drove the French from Indian waters.

A floating dry dock in the Pacific, capable of handling the largest battleships, would go far toward preserving the efficiency of the American navy in any operations it might be required to undertake. If, on careful investigation, 10 million dollars is found to be insufficient to buy the dock we need, congress should raise the ante. A modern battleship costs about 70 million dollars. The addition of a relatively insignificant sum to the appropriation for the floating repair base may mean the addition of several hundred million dollars' worth of fighting strength to our fleet at a critical moment.

WIDENING WAR ON THE VENEREAL PLAGUE.

It is to be hoped Dr. Louis Schmidt's suggestion that a syphilis test be required in life insurance examinations in Illinois will be adopted by insurance companies throughout the country. Dr. Vonderlehr, assistant surgeon general of the United States, says that it would be ideal if such tests were made obligatory in all life policies, but that if there are practical difficulties with regard to the smaller policies, at least the adoption of this test for policies over four or five thousand dollars would be a distinct step forward. He points out that it would bring the venereal menace to the attention of many victims who are unaware of its existence.

Dr. Schmidt asserts that if individuals suffering from syphilis were barred from insurance until cured the age of expectancy among policy holders could be raised in actuarial standards and premium rates lowered. In other words, universal tests would be a measure of justice to all insured.

We think an act requiring all life insurance companies doing business in the state to impose this test should be passed by the next assembly. Other states would follow as they are following Illinois with regard to its new marriage license requirement. A drive is now under way in New York for a law to require a serological test for syphilis by all applicants for marriage license, both parties, the test to be made not longer than twenty days before issuance of the license.

A companion bill requires the test to be taken by all pregnant mothers. Its proponents assert that, according to the New York city health department data, 4,000 babies afflicted with hereditary syphilis are born in the city annually, and an additional 9,000 are stillborn as a result of this disease. That gives only a glimpse of the ravages of venereal disease in this country. The war upon this frightful evil is only begun. It must be pressed with ever-increasing vigor and scope until the plague is conquered, as it has been in Scandinavia and can be in the United States.

HOBBLING THE PAYMASTER.

The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce has under consideration at the present time one of the most peculiar pieces of legislation ever drafted. It would forever prohibit a railway from including within a train more than seventy freight cars. It was framed by the various railway operating brotherhoods as a safety measure, but it is suspected, and even admitted, that the principal objective is to make work. Two train crews would frequently be necessary where only one is now employed. To the railways it is a nightmare. It would eliminate all the advantages of a substantial part of their new power.

From the public point of view there are a number of angles. In the first place, it would raise the cost of transportation—and freight rates. It would directly discriminate against the middle west, where favorable operating conditions make long trains not only possible but essential in the movement of the country's great staples.

As to the safety features, statistics definitly fail to support the measure. The number of employé casualties has been going down over a long period of years, while the length of trains has been going upward in the same period. But this is not all. The number of motorists and pedestrians killed at level crossings is far greater than the mortality to trainmen, and two trains will certainly kill more people than one.

As population grows it produces a necessity for larger units. Ships have been increasing in size for a number of years, so have barge tows, trucks, and airplanes. To place a handicap on their own form of transportation seems definitly shortsighted on the part of railway employés, who must be fully cognizant of the present public demand for cheaper transportation. Coal will be one of the principal commodities affected, and this staple freight is already fighting a losing battle against oil, gas, and the long distance transmission of electrical energy.

The bill should be defeated.

LIBERTY—SHANGHAI.

The American ambassador, Joseph C. Grew, in Tokio holds in trust a fund of $2,000 which represents the contributions to date of Japanese citizens wanting to show their friendship for the United States and their regret that the Panay was sunk in the Yangtze river. We have no reason to believe that the Japanese people are not sincere in wanting to do something to make the American people feel that they are not unfriendly, even if their military forces sometimes show a cocky disregard for international amenities.

The use to which the Japanese donation will be put has not been determined as yet. When the French people wanted to show their affection for America they sent us the Statue of Liberty which decorates the New York harbor, sometimes ironically but, we may still hope, with a generally enduring consistency. If no better suggestion appears for the use of the Japanese fund it might be devoted to the erection of another statue of liberty, this time in the international settlement in Shanghai, where it will symbolize the fact that the military government of Japan wishes nothing but peace and freedom for all the peoples with whom it comes in contact.

If the Chinese people wish to contribute a testimonial of their affection and their gratitude to the American people it might suitably take the form of a plaque to be attached to the new Chicago Outer Drive bridge. That was where Mr. Roosevelt threw the force of his rhetoric into the lines defending Shanghai.

TUNG AND SOY.

[Elgin (Ill.) Courier-News.]

When most of us learned our geography the answer to the question, "What do we get from Manchuria?" was always, in part, "Soy beans."

Within the last ten years soy beans have become almost a major crop in the United States. Soon there will be no need to get them from what the Japanese now call Manchukuo.

The same geography lesson listed among imports from China "tung oil," an extract prepared from a tree and used in paint making. Now the Mississippi tung plantations are already in production, and a single company has bought 120,000 acres of land to grow tung trees. Soon we will be producing our own tung oil.

Japan, commonly said to have no petroleum resources, is now installing through the German Krupps huge plants in Manchukuo to distill oil from coal. Within a few years the Japanese navy may have all the fuel oil it wants.

It isn't safe to count chickens today even after they're hatched. You have to wait until they're actually on the table.

The tung tree and the soy bean tell a story.

HOLLYWOOD NOTE.

Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin and now head of the Republican party's committee of 150, in town this week, told the story of the movie-struck girl who went to Hollywood. She was romantic and highly emotional about the glamor of it all. Shortly after her arrival she was forced to go to the throat doctor.

"Say ah-h," said the doctor, adjusting the reflector on his forehead.

"But, doctor, I can't. You don't appeal to me," objected the patient.

ALL RIGHT. DOUBLE DARRIEUX!

I wonder if it would be in order, in view of the coming of the picture "Club De Femmes" (that's the way they bill it), starring Danielle Darrieux, to dedicate that song "I Double Darrieux" number one on my hit parade?

Max Gendel.

CX.

I who have loved these little songs too well
Should not have wished them bound to my poor name;
I would have had each word a perfect bell
To ring out temple high, and in its fame
Owe naught to hidden hands that seek no praise.
I dreamed them strong in deep toned resonance
Above the weakness of my transient days;
Enough if their own beauty might enhance
Themselves, and sensing this I might not die
Entirely; these fair children of my mind,
My songs, should live without a single tie
To one who merely first their thought divined.
Should I, who gave these soaring words their birth,
In vanity now bind their flight to earth?

Quizzicuss.

THE RECENT APPEARANCE of Sinclair Lewis in town to lecture brings to mind that at the time the suggestion was made that his wife, Dorothy Thompson, run for President Mr. Lewis agreed it was a fine idea. "Then I can write 'My Day,'" he said.

S. O. S.

Despite the fact that I gave up punning as a New Year's resolution, I could not refrain from the following: A newspaper story said that the old Morse theater in Rogers Park would reopen in February under the name of "The Co-ed." Would it follow that Rogers Parkers will then use the Morse Co-ed?

Helen of Edgewater.

GIBSON GIRL'S GAVEL.

Annabelle Whitford Buchan, the Gibson bathing girl of the first Ziegfeld Follies, had no gavel when she conducted a recent meeting of the Ziegfeld Girls' Club of Chicago. At the next meeting she brought her own gavel along—a black velvet slipper she had worn in that first Follies in 1907.

A LAKE FOREST WOMAN who had invitations out for a large party telephoned a friend and said she needed an extra man. Could she borrow hers, she asked. The other woman, thinking she humorously referred to her young son, assented, and talked for some time about him.

"But you'll probably play bridge after dinner—and he doesn't play bridge," she added.

"Play bridge?" inquired the party-giver, obviously aghast. There was a moment's puzzled silence; then she saw the light. "O, it's your butler I want to borrow," she explained.

PERHAPS NOT SO HOT—BUT TRUE.

A Russian trio was hired for a tryout by Sam Oman at the St. Clair. While they were there the bartender proudly passed about a clipping from that day's newspaper that read: "Sans dance music and the usual array of entertainment found in so many places, the St. Clair. . . ." One of the Russians saw the item. "Who the hell is Sans?" he demanded angrily. "We're supposed to be the only entertainment here. Call up the union."

DICK TRACY.

If a woman you meet
With a pair of big feet,

With a face that is brown,
A hat without a crown,
With the nose of a clown,
A chin that hangs down,
Sleuthing around uptown
In a loose fitting gown,

It's Dick Tracy in a terrible mess,
Getting used to a Mother Hubbard dress.

A BRAND FROM THE BURNING.

The Adlai E. Stevensons have been heroic about the fire which recently razed their beautiful new country home near Libertyville, destroying much valuable property and family papers dating from the seventeenth century. Mrs. Stevenson speaks gratefully of the fact that a beautiful maple very close to the house was apparently untouched, and that the horse, which had been let out of the stable, had enough sense to go to the Otis barn next door and bump his head on the door until the stable man let him in. There he was, safe and comfortable, while the Stevensons searched the countryside for him.

But the point of this story was to quote Mr. Stevenson's outward calm while his soul was torn with grief. He was watching the blaze, a cigaret in his hand, when a neighbor drove up and, noticing the cigaret, offered him a light.

"No, I've got one," said Mr. Stevenson sadly, lighting his cigaret from a burning fragment. Then he added: "We're still using the place."

IRRITATION—THE CAUSE OF STOMACH PAIN.

I DO not believe that any one would knowingly—if in his right mind—take a drink of poison. Many, however, fail to realize that even small doses of certain things taken with food may inflict enough damage on the mucous lining of the gastric pouch to interfere with its function and bring on symptoms. True enough, the irritation is what is termed "low grade." In other words, the patient is not doubled up with cramps and for some time there may be no sense of discomfort. But let the situation persist for weeks or months and nerves will make a connection with consciousness finally and advise us of the trouble.

Practically every one has had at some time or other what is called a gastric or digestive upset. It may have been associated with spoiled food, particularly custard, ice cream, the filling of eclairs, pies, etc., that had become charged with a pus-producing enemy—the staphylococcus.

The mucous membrane thereupon becomes engorged and swollen, pouring out secretions and assisting nature's effort to dilute and neutralize the poison. If the irritant is in fair concentration, however, tiny hemorrhages will take place. In the meantime the patient is ill, occasionally desperately so, and the intense pain may be evident in waves. Vomiting nearly always occurs and sooner or later there may come a profuse diarrhea.

We all make an effort to avoid contaminated food and our sense of taste should protect us against compounds which contain deleterious substances. Unfortunately, however, bacteria may not taste bad and spoiled food may not smell to high heaven. This indicates that fresh, well refrigerated edibles are the safest. Furthermore, that well scrubbed hands in the kitchen are even more important than clean dishes and utensils.

Many instances of stomach pain may appear because the outlet [pylorus] of the organ will, under irritation, contract violently or, as we say, go into a spasm. There is thus formed a positive obstruction to the exit of food into the bowel and this is what is happening with about one-fifth of those who complain of stomach trouble. But you say, "It is nervous in origin." Well, maybe—and in some cases definitly "yes"—but if a peptic ulcer exists, or if gallstones complicate the picture, the irritation set up by these lesions is sufficient to cause the pylorus to clamp down and remain so for an hour or two. If some swallowed edible is disturbing the mucous lining and is prevented from entering the intestine, the body will try to get rid of it through vomiting.

Obstruction of the pylorus can be serious if it persists or is caused by scar tissue formed during the healing of an ulcer. In most cases, however, dietary management will relieve the difficulty if there is no tumor. This includes a glass or two of hot water before breakfast, which has a tendency to wash out the débris of the evening meal [if any remains] plus a certain amount of secreted mucus. Breakfast consists of an egg and thick cereal with butter instead of cream. The lower bowel is then thoroughly cleansed, using a quart and a half of water as hot as can be borne, in which 3 teaspoonfuls of salt have been dissolved. Noon lunch is composed of one egg, mashed potatoes, toast, and cream cheese.

The point is to use thick edibles, giving the muscle of the stomach something substantial upon which to exercise. This plan provides all the inducement that food can offer to open the outlet. Sometimes atropine or belladonna will prove most helpful.

While the above regimen will serve adequately for the majority of patients, it will have no effect if scar tissue is present, or if some tumorlike growth is obstructing the passageway. X-ray plates after test meals are useful in pointing the way to an accurate understanding of the rôle of digestion.

OTHER ENERGY SOURCES.

C. H. F. writes: I am allergic to starches and have been so for ten years. I have been unable to eat corn bread, and in the past few months have become sensitive to whole wheat. It seems that the hulls work the greatest harm. I believe corn bread would kill me if I should eat it two days in succession. If I take the tiniest piece I have a severe headache, my ears ring, my limbs ache, and I am seriously ill. Potatoes and dried beans produce the same effects. It is hard to keep working when one cannot eat foods that are strengthening. Is there anything I could take to counteract this condition? I live principally on milk, fruit juices, oat cereals, leafy vegetables, and meat, but I nearly starve without some bread and starches. Only last night—after having abstained from bread for several days—I ate two small whole wheat biscuits and now my ears roar like a mill dam and my head aches—but not as severely as if I had eaten a square inch of corn bread.

REPLY.

Since starch is harmful you can secure all the carbohydrates needed through the use of sugar, particularly glucose [corn sirup]. You may try tapioca and sago. Apparently the starch of oats does not bother you. Use oat cakes and oatmeal muffins with no wheat flour at all.

DEPENDS ON SHOES.

G. J. writes: Is it harmful in any way to work on a concrete floor all day?

REPLY.

VARIETY OF CAUSES.

L. W. writes: After I have been asleep for an hour or two I start coughing. Does this ever indicate tuberculosis? I do not cough during the day.

REPLY.

You may be allergic to the pillow or bedclothes. Tuberculosis is doubtful, but bronchitis, or some slight failure of the heart may be responsible.

MAY BE ANEMIC.

J. L. writes: 1. I have to sleep in a living room on a studio couch. Is that harmful to the health?

2. What causes one's gums to get white?

REPLY.

1. Not at all, if the ventilation is good and the bed comfortable.
2. Pale gums frequently point to anemia.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY ANDREAS BACKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OSLO, Norway.—Both the war in the far east and the Spanish civil war have discommoded the Norwegian shipping industry—the Spanish war in that there is a reduced demand for big boats, and the far eastern war in that Norwegian steamers which hitherto were employed in Chinese waters have been forced to seek employment elsewhere.

Neither has Norway benefited by the high freight charges which have prevailed during the greater part of the last year, as have other countries. This is due to the fact that Norwegians run their ships chiefly on a time charter.

In normal times twenty-five to thirty per cent of the Norwegian shipping is employed in this way, and the proportion increased during the last year. Furthermore, a fourth of the merchant fleet is bound by yearly contracts and these contracts were entered into before the general rise in freight rates took effect.

Labor troubles also have added to the difficulties encountered by the shipping industry.

An interesting and characteristic feature of the shipping industry is the distribution of tonnage among Norwegian tankship owners. The tankship fleet consists of 225 vessels distributed among 100 owners domiciled in a number of Norwegian coast towns.

The same distribution holds good for the rest of the Norwegian merchant fleet. Norwegian owners with a fleet of more than 100,000 gross tons can be counted on the fingers of one hand, and only eleven owners have a fleet exceeding 50,000 tons. Official statistics show that there are more than 500 individual Norwegian ship owners, the greater number of whom own from one to four vessels.

The majority of the shipping firms are domiciled in Oslo, the capital and biggest seaport in Norway, and a third of the merchant fleet is registered here. But a large number of the small coast towns still carry on a considerable shipping business, as they did in the days of sailing ships.

For example, the small town of Farsund, situated on the south coast of Norway with a population of only 1,500, is the center of no less than 15 shipping firms with a fleet of 40 vessels totaling about 140,000 tons. This works out at about 93 tons per head, as compared with 1.5 tons per head for the whole of Norway and 0.35 per head for Great Britain. Thus, Farsund can lay claim to be called the greatest shipping town in the world.

During the last year shipping firms have been consolidating their positions by paying up debts, which had accumulated during the long depression, and putting by reserves.

PROPERTY OWNERSHIP.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a married woman living in the state of Illinois all her life buy a piece of property with her own money? This money was earned by her over a period of fifteen years. The woman and her husband have not lived together for the last fifteen years, but they are not divorced. Under the circumstances could the property be put in her name, etc., without the signature of the husband?

2. Also, upon selling same would it be necessary to obtain the signature of husband?

3. A widow is left with a small estate. In making out her will to her children is it necessary to include a dead son's wife [who is childless], who has drifted away from the family?

4. Could she claim anything?

5. Would it be safer to leave her $1 in writing the will? M. S.

1. Yes.
2. Yes, in order to sell clear of his dower interest.
3. No.
4. No.
5. We see no necessity for this on the facts that you state.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROVISIONS FOR MINOR.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a widow with a 3 year old son, with only my widowed mother as a close relative. My problem is that of making a will which will provide for my son in the event of my death and the death of my mother while he is a minor. Estate would consist solely of personal possessions and bank and postoffice deposits.

1. Can I name mother beneficiary, if living, and an aunt to receive the funds for the boy's care in the case of both mine and my mother's death?

2. What legal procedure would the aunt encounter in such case?

3. Would the estate have to be probated?

4. All accounts at present stand with either mine or mother's signature sufficient. The only other proceeds would be life insurance, on which mother is beneficiary with the boy as contingent.

5. My present salary does not permit the employment of an attorney to draw up a will, and the money in the bank was insurance from the boy's father to be used for his education. I would like to provide so that the aunt can have full charge of the funds, to be used as she thinks advisable and without having to be subject to court order.

6. Would a printed straight will form be satisfactory to use? F. M. R.

1. Yes. If you wish to tie the property up you can name her as trustee.
2. Necessity for probate of the estate would depend on the nature and extent of the assets and other facts that are not before us. It is not clear what question you intend to ask.
3. See 2.
4. The Illinois Supreme court within the last month has held that this is not necessarily the equivalent of a joint tenancy.
5. In general we would say that if your assets are sufficient to warant the making of a will they are sufficient to make it poor economy to dispense with the services of an attorney.
6. Yes, as far as it goes, but as we understand it your plan should include in addition the provisions as to rights and powers of the trustees.

EDUCATING THE FEET.

La Grange, Ill., Jan. 17.—With all due respect to our newer methods of education, we wonder what particular good may accrue to the younger generation through the teaching of tap dancing in the schools. It may be a surprise to many readers to know not only that several hours are devoted to tap dancing each week in some of our suburban schools, but that it is compulsory for both boys and girls.

We are strong for manual training and for the vocational work in which pupils are taught to work with their hands, but as yet we haven't heard a single valid excuse for teaching boys to tap dance. We may be awfully old-fashioned, but we know that the boys who are required to learn the dance steps would much rather spend their time in making airplanes or magazine racks or in playing basketball. We know because we have talked to them. H. G.

THE BUILDING CODE.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—The writer would like to know just what has happened to the new Chicago building code that the city has been working on for about the last ten years. Every summer there appear a few items in the paper that the city council is again working on certain chapters of the code, and, after the season is over, it is laid aside, till some one finds it and they start all over again to change this part and change this chapter. In the meantime they are holding back the second largest city in the United States in housing and building activities. We are today the fifth city, with New York at the top, and much smaller cities than ours in between.

I am an architectural draftsman out of work because the code in force at present does not permit use of the newer and cheaper materials which would increase employment in the building industry. The surrounding towns have had more of a building boom in the last two years, while we here in Chicago do a little remodeling work here and there. Look at the real estate pages on Saturday and Sunday and you will note where the building is going on—outside of Chicago. Let us rise up and demand that the code be put through once and for all this spring. SIDNEY I. KLEIN.

VISIBILITY AND ACCIDENTS.

Flint, Mich., Jan. 16.—An article in your column by L. S. W. has aroused my interest. The article blamed the design of automobiles for the present high automobile death rate.

If we did make automobile drivers sit as high as bus drivers and street car motormen where would the advantage be? At present they can see better because they are higher than the traffic. If other vehicles were made that high there would be no advantage to any one.

The cars built around 1932-'35 did have the disadvantage claimed, but consider the 1937-'38 models. The seats are higher and the passengers sit more erect. Also the windshield is higher for greater visibility. It is true that you cannot see the right fender, but you can see immediately in front of the car if that is so essential to safety. The experienced driver knows where his fenders are anyway.

Visibility is being constantly studied by engineers of the research staf of the large corporations. The results are evident on the new cars—higher seat levels and thinner door posts.

My personal opinion is that education and enforcement is the surest method for cutting the toll. J. F. M.

SUGGESTIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Why not a joint announcement by a group of the leading business men of the country to the effect that they stand ready to reëmploy hundreds of thousands of workers if congress will force the President to stand by a sensible policy toward money and credit, and eliminate, or drastically modify, unjust taxes that are now paralyzing thrift and investment, both individual and corporate?

The employers should be conservative in their estimate as to the number of workers that will be most immediately reëmployed; then, when the actual figures, a few weeks after, show that reemployment is much greater than at first estimated, public confidence in the policies of the administration will be entirely shattered. H. L. GRAHAM.

CAUGHT BY THE PANTS.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—I think that L. S. W., along with practically every other commentator on the subject, has overlooked one of the most important factors contributing to automobile accidents, which also is directly a responsibility of motor car designers.

Every one of the classes of vehicles which L. S. W. cites for safe operation—i. e.: buses, trucks, airplanes, street cars, elevated railway cars, and locomotives—has operator's seats upholstered in lether.

Any private motorist has had the experience of feeling, when leaving the fabric upholstered driving seat of his car, that his clothing was clinging to the upholstery. This is quite natural, for the long pile of fabric upholstery tends to intertwine with the fabric of clothing. While the constriction of motion caused by this friction is perhaps infinitesimal, constantly repeated tests prove that it is the fractional seconds of lag in physical response that differentiates the poor, accident ridden driver from the good, safe driver.

Bus drivers, locomotive engineers, and other professional operators of vehicles that maintain safety records don't have to fight the friction of fabric to fabric when responding to an emergency. Instead, their motion is unimpeded as they glide smoothly on the comparatively frictionless surface of lether upon which they are invariably seated.

HUGO CARTER.

AUTOMOBILE DESIGN.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—"L. S. W.," in his letter "Car Design and Automobile Deaths," mentioning low driving seats causing poor visibility and consequently accidents, has overlooked the fact that a great many accidents are due to parked cars which block all visibility of both motorists and pedestrians. It is ridiculous to cut down trees and shrubbery near street intersections as a safety measure and yet permit parked cars to block the view at the same locations.

DAILY READER.

MR. EDWARDS STANDS PAT.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Your correspondent Robert D. Harper's principal protest seems to be against the adjective "imaginative" as applied to the Colorado river tunnel scheme. Not only do I stand by every detail in the story but in particular I believe in the accuracy of the "imaginative" description. If pumping water up a four mile slope of the Rockies, sending it through a thirteen mile tunnel bored through one of the world's great mountain ranges, and then utilizing the downward flow for power and the irrigation of a comparatively small corner of a state, if all this is not imaginative, then I, for one, don't know what the word means. WILLARD EDWARDS.

EVIDENTLY.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Funny ideas people have during serious depressions. While 11 million are out of employment prices of food supplies and all necessities must go up; labor, instead of taking its share of hard times, must have higher wages, hampering industry, expansion, and building operations, which are the sources of employment; the government must squander and tax industry to death. Even the taxicabs prefer to be idle at high tarif than continually busy at prices people will pay. Is this the planned economy which congress is trying to put over? F. H. W.

DESERVED PUBLICITY.

Clinton, Ind., Jan. 13.—In your paper not long ago you mentioned a town somewhere in Illinois that had received no WPA money and needed none.

Why not turn on some smarter psychology than has been used on us? Give us pictures of those people from the street cleaners down to the mayor [for I'll bet their streets are clean]. Get your supersnoopers to find some more towns with self-respect and put them on the map. Give them the publicity usually reserved for the gunmen's molls. MARIAN C. DAVISSON.

NAZIS REGIMENT 23,000,000 MEN IN LABOR FRONT

Workers Must Be Nazis, or They Can't Work.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
ARTICLE 5.

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—The Nazi government plans to be a "corporative" state—i.e., the whole life of the country is gradually being organized into corporations. Consequently, even if Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen may escape much red tape from their block and cell leaders, the family's bread winner must belong to one of the corporations, otherwise he cannot work. About 23,000,000 German workers, employés and employers, are organized in the German labor front.

The professions, or "staende," are grouped in three big bodies: the national culture chamber, the national food organization, and the national economic chamber.

Culture Chamber Divided.

The culture chamber has subdivisions: the music chamber, the chamber of arts, the chamber of the theater, the chamber for writers, the press chamber, and the chamber for broadcasting and for films.

The national food organization oversees everything connected with food.

The national chamber of economics is built on the coöperation of the chambers of commerce in Germany and abroad, and on the guild chambers of Germany's shoemakers, butchers, and all artisans.

Two Economic Groupings.

Economic life is divided into two major groups: business and transportation. Business includes the national groups of banks, electric power, trade, artisans, industry, insurance. Transportation includes navigation, canal shipping, automobiles, railroads, transport companies, and auxiliary companies dealing with trafic.

In their gradual reorganization of Germany, the Nazis are eliminating the old provinces to perfect German unity, but they are still overlapping—coördination between party and state has not been completed.

For the party, Germany is divided into 32 "gaue" or districts. But the German government is composed of 12 different states: Prussia, Bavaria, Württemberg, Saxony, Baden, Thuringia, Hessen, Hamburg, Mecklenburg, Oldenburg, Braunschweig, and Anhalt. Once they boasted of their own kings, grand dukes, and dukes. Now they have a state premier as chief of state directly responsible to Adolf Hitler.

Local Parliaments Abolished.

The old local parliaments have been abolished. Only the Reichstag remains, meeting once or twice a year to act as a sounding board for Hitler. The government ministries are steadily increasing in number. Most of them correspond to those in foreign countries.

Only the office of the "four year plan" under Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering is a Nazi innovation, equipped with extraordinary powers reaching into all walks of life in Germany in its systematic efforts to make the country self-supporting.

Nazis have been angered by the assertion of foreign observers that, through abolition of parliaments and the right to choose his own "leader" in an election, and the state control of the press, the common mortal has lost his chance to express his opinion. Nazis counter that thanks to their organization, which reaches every child and grown-up in the country, the party has "the real contact" with the masses and is able to sift the important from the unimportant and submit the vital reactions and wishes of the people to the man responsible for their fate, their Fuehrer Adolf Hitler.

NAZIS TO TRAIN GERMAN GIRLS IN 'BEAUTY' UNIT

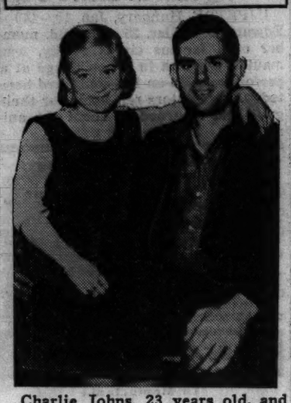
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—German girls between 17 and 21 years of age will be mobilized in new units of the Hitler Youth under the slogan "Strength and Beauty," Baldur von Schirach, the Youth leader, announced tonight.

The girls will be trained to "new beauty efficiency in special physical training and dancing courses," and Germany's leading fashion houses will design new outfits for them, he said. Physical training for elegance and beauty" should inspire German women, and make them better Nazi wives and mothers, he added. Cultural improvement will be carried on simultaneously.

Women who are talented linguists will be trained for work in foreign countries. In Gatow, near Berlin, Von Schirach will open a special house "of foreign countries" to improve the relations between the youth of Germany and of foreign countries.

First Anniversary



Charlie Johns, 23 years old, and his wife, Eunice, 10, who observed their first wedding anniversary yesterday.

Sneedville, Tenn., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Eunice Winstead Johns, 10 years old, and her husband, Charlie, 23 years old, observed their first wedding anniversary today with the plea that they be let alone.

"Of course, we fuss now and then," said Charlie, "but it don't amount to nothing. We've managed fine this last year, and we'd be a lot happier if folks would just let us alone."

There was no anniversary dinner for them; neither did Charlie give his wife an anniversary present. He said he just didn't think about its being their wedding date.

Eunice, still the shy little girl she was when she and Charlie met the Rev. Walter Lamb on a mountain pathway and were married, will not return to school. Instead she is learning to cook, and she and her husband, who now live with Charlie's parents, will build their own home this spring.

PROTEST POLICE BAN ON FILM OF NAZI ACTIVITIES

Asserting that the film "Inside Nazi Germany" is impartial and educational, motion picture officials said yesterday that they will appeal the ruling of the police censor board banning the film from Chicago theaters. The board on Monday held that the film is not a newsreel, but is an unfair criticism of the Nazi government.

Louis de Rochemont, an official of the March of Time, which produced the movie, said in New York that if the board refuses to reverse its decision the matter will be taken to court. J. C. Osserman, branch manager of the R. K. O. Radio Distributing corporation, said no parts of the film were censorable. The picture was to have been released in Chicago tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 19.—Authorities said today the $100,000 villa purchased by the Greek government for Prince Paul and his bride, former Princess Frederika Louise of Hanover, will be ready for occupancy when their honeymoon ends about three weeks hence. Prince Paul is heir presumptive to the Greek throne. His bride now is known as Princess Margarita of Greece. They were married Jan. 9.

RUMANIA CURBS MARRIAGES OF JEWS, GENTILES

Thousands Seek Havens in Foreign Lands.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Rumanian government tonight intensified its anti-Semitic drive by issuing orders making intermarriage of Jews and gentiles virtually impossible.

The interior ministry of Premier Octavian Goga's government instructed authorities to perform no civil marriage unless preceded by a religious ceremony, which often is omitted in marriages joining couples of different religious beliefs.

Several thousand Jews, alarmed by the government's new steps, sought means of escaping Rumania and finding new havens. Jewish committees visited foreign consulates to ask about the possibility of emigration to Brazil, Ethiopia, Madagascar, Mexico, or Australia. Their plight was made more difficult by a finance ministry decree forbidding Jews to take money out of the country.

Purge of Industry Expected.

The commerce ministry started an inquiry which generally was believed preliminary to purging Rumanian industry of Jews. By Jan. 31 all commercial and industrial firms must report to the government the names of corporate officials, the names of workers and executives, and the names of all workers dismissed in the past year. It was explained the objective of the last requirement was to determine whether firms were "firing Jews or gentiles."

A strike of 350 workers in a textile plant at Galaz, Rumania's largest port on the Danube, was reported. Employers contended that they were obliged to reduce working hours and wages because of disturbed markets since Goga's anti-Semitic drive started.

Juliu Maniu, chief of the National Peasants' party, in a protest to the election commission challenged the government's right to change the election law and dissolve the parliament which has never met.

Assails Rule by Decree.

King Carol last night decreed new elections on March 3, and dissolved parliament, giving Rumanians an opportunity to pass on Goga's policies.

Maniu declared government by decree had not been authorized for Goga's cabinet even though the preceding government of Georges Tatarescu had such power in financial administrative matters.

One outbreak of violence was reported when fourteen Jewish lawyers, including a woman, were beaten by gentile lawyers who resented their presence at the palace of justice.

TRACE SABOTAGE AS CAUSE OF EXPLOSION WRECKING HINDENBURG

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The possibility that the explosion that destroyed the German dirigible Hindenburg at Lakehurst, N. J., may have been due to sabotage must be admitted, said a German government report published today.

It was prepared by a committee named by Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, air minister, last May 7, the day after the disaster. "Proofs that an act of force had been committed could not be adduced," said the report, "although every lead in that direction was followed painstakingly. Nevertheless, the possibility of the wanton destruction of the airship must be admitted since there is little proof of any other origin."

The report reviewed the possibility of sabotage from within and without, but admitted many arguments against either theory. It also cited "coincident occurrence of a series of untoward circumstances" as the most logical explanation of the disaster.

STATE ATTACKS WRIGHT'S KISS SLAYING STORY

Defendant's Calm Shaken as Testimony Begins.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—His calm suddenly deserting him, Paul A. Wright, former airport executive on trial for his life, became extremely nervous today as the state began massing evidence in support of charges he murdered his wife and best friend.

The former Chicagoan sat rigidly on the edge of his chair when it became apparent the prosecution was unfolding through its first witness the theory of premeditation. Wright has said he shot his pretty wife, Evelyn, and his airport aid, John Kimmel, in a jealous rage when he found them embracing and kissing.

Through Fred Kohl, deputy county surveyor, the state attempted to show that Wright would have had to traverse some fifty feet before he could get his pistol in the bedroom of his home and reach the position from which it is contended he shot the couple as they sat on a piano bench in the living room.

Piano's Location Shown.

Chief Prosecutor Ernest Roll also endeavored to show by measurements and diagrams which Kohl presented that Wright must have crossed the living room to the piano in a far corner before his shots could have taken effect. He brought out that the lowest part of the grand piano was only about eighteen inches from the floor and the back of the instrument faced Wright's point of entrance, thereby acting as a shield.

Roll previously had said it is the state's contention that premeditation may be accomplished as easily in a minute as in a month, as easily in ten seconds as in ten years.

Kin of Victims on Stand.

Wright's tension grew as Kimmel's young widow, Mrs. Marrene Kimmel, and Mrs. Wright's mother, Mrs. J. E. McBride of Detroit, Mich., were called to the stand, where they identified photographs of the victims taken in life. The women also appeared to have difficulty controling their emotions.

Prosecutor Roll has said Kimmel was picking out chords on the piano when Wright shot him and Mrs. Wright. Wright told police they were kissing. Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler declared they were doing more than embracing and that he would present evidence to show Wright was justified in flying into a blind rage.

Christian Bérard
TURNS HIS WIT TO PRINTS

You've heard of Berard, the red-bearded French painter—Berard, the pet of the couturiers—Berard, the sensation of Paris! You remember his romantic designs for the Ballet Russe's "Symphonie Fantastique"—his wistful ladies, so reminiscent of the Renaissance, in the pages of Vogue. You've seen his astonishing color combinations in clothes by Schiaparelli, Lelong and Mainbocher (particularly his pinks and purples, clarets and pinks). And now you behold the first prints Berard has ever done for America, in Fieldcrest pure dye silks . . . available in ready-made fashions by American designers, and in fabric by the yard. And both fashions and fabric are only at Field's in Chicago!

Grand Salon—Sixth Floor

BERARD PRINT FASHIONS
on the Sixth Floor

1900—a pattern that's fun for play clothes because of its satirical motif: ladies in corsets, old-fashioned tennis figures, a bowl and pitcher! Printed halter and jacket with plain slacks. $45. (Turban from French Millinery, Fifth Floor, $15.)
Sunningdale Shop—Sixth Floor

Grand Salon—Sixth Floor

BERARD PRINT FABRICS
on the Second Floor

Exciting news for you who sew! Today you can buy these same exhilarating Berard prints, in the same Fieldcrest pure dye silks as the fashions above. Five designs to choose from:

VERSAILLES—a lady and a mask, set among Louis XV bows. (This Fieldcrest print-by-Berard is used for the ready-made daytime dress above.) Yard, $3.50

1900—ridiculous ladies in corsets, old-fashioned tennis figures, a plumed hat and other witticisms of 1900. (Halter, jacket and turban of the play outfit, above, feature this same whimsical print.) Yard, $3.50

BANSHEE—weird little birds with human faces symbolizing the supernatural fairies of Celtic folklore. (Used for the evening dress at the left.) Yard, $3.50

VICTORIAN—a grayed impression of a lady's bonnet, a mitt with a lace hankie, a bouquet, and a polite, high-hatted gentleman (not illustrated.) Yard, $3.50

BOUQUET—a romantic Victorian hand holding a bright bouquet of flowers (not illustrated.) Yard, $3.50

Silks—Second Floor

INTERIOR DISPLAYS—all over the store reflect Berard's color schemes, his originality and love of movement, his "impatience" in designing. See these displays on the First, Second, Fifth and Sixth Floors.

STATE STREET WINDOWS—the story of these prints (both fashions and fabrics) is told today in three of our State Street windows.

DRAFT PROGRAM FOR QUICK FRENCH SOCIAL REFORMS

New Ministry Is Courting Popular Front Aid.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Premier Camille Chautemps' new moderate government tonight drew up a plan intended to hold support of the old Popular Front majority in the chamber of deputies.

At the same time he would put into effect the code for social peace which he was starting when dissension with Socialists and communists caused his previous ministry to fall last Friday.

Bills providing for old age pensions and agricultural insurance were designed to maintain Socialist and communist support of the new cabinet which Chautemps succeeded in forming yesterday.

To Debate Social Reform.

The new ministers, formally installed today, will debate their social reform declaration at a meeting tomorrow night before going to the chamber Friday for the first vote of confidence.

The national committee of the Popular Front met tonight for a final study of the political situation.

Most of the delegates favored the more conservative cabinet, without Socialists or communists, but with the Popular Front program as the best way out of the difficulties over labor and financial troubles.

Eighteen of the twenty ministers in the new cabinet are Radical-Socialists, including Chautemps. Communist support apparently will not be needed to keep it intact.

Approves Strike in Lyon.

Recurring labor disturbances still kept the political situation tense. The latest outbreak included a demand by Bordeaux municipal employés that the city council increase living allowances. Jan. 27 was set as the deadline for completing negotiations before issuance of a strike order. Rising costs of living, attributed to fall of the franc, have been the basic cause of recent strikes.

The General Confederation of Labor regional office approved a strike by Lyon laundry workers in a wage controversy. Truck drivers in Paris still were on strike.

The chamber session Friday may give some indication of what communist support the new cabinet may expect. The communist newspaper L'Humanite warned both the government and the Socialist party today it expected strict adherence to the Popular Front principles—which include social reforms.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: This Changing World

A WOMAN KEEPS 3 MILLION ESTATE INTACT 47 YEARS

Manages Own Affairs in 4 Depressions.

In 1890 Conrad Seipp, wealthy brewer and pioneer Chicago merchant, died leaving a $3,000,000 estate to his daughter, Mrs. Marie Lefens. Confident in her business ability, Seipp did not place his estate in trust, a usual arrangement, but left it entirely to her own management.

Mrs. Lefens died March 24, 1937, in her home at 60 East Scott street at the age of 83. In the 47 years since her father's death, Mrs. Lefens successfully weathered four financial depressions, preserving the estate intact for her children and grandchildren.

Files Appraisal for Taxes.

These facts were related yesterday by her son, Walter C. Lefens, appointed executor of her estate, when he filed an appraisal for a state inheritance tax in the County court. Lefens said the state tax should be $76,991 and the federal tax $490,602.

Mrs. Lefens' husband, Thies, a prominent capitalist and real estate dealer, died in 1913. Four years later Mrs. Lefens gave thirteen pieces of real estate, principally in the loop, valued at $1,000,000, to her children. These properties, it was disclosed then, had been developed largely by her husband.

This left the original Seipp estate valued at about $2,000,000. It consisted for the most part of municipal bonds and other securities in banks and railroads, as well as several stock holdings in other corporations.

These securities, it developed yesterday, were kept intact, despite periodic declining markets, during the depressions of 1893, 1907, 1921-'22, and the last one which started in 1929. Today the estate has a value for taxation purposes of $1,912,315, according to the petition presented yesterday in the County court.

Like her father, Mrs. Lefens believed that her children are able to manage their own estates. Consequently she did not place her fortune in trust, except for bequests to the grandchildren, which will be held in trust until they reach their majority.

The children are Walter, Katherine, and Mrs. Marie L. Porter. The grandchildren are Jane Chatillon of Syracuse, N. Y., Ralph Chatillon, and Mrs. Mary C. Dunning.

REFUSE TO INDICT YOUTH IN LOOP ALLEY SLAYING

The grand jury yesterday refused to vote a true bill against Harold L. Patterson, 21 years old, 4544 North Western avenue, who admitted being responsible for the death of Ralph W. Thompson, 31 years old, whose body was found in an alley behind 79 West Lake street Jan. 2.

Patterson had told police that he and Thompson, who edited a publication for the National Safety council, met New Year's night in a tavern at 52 West Randolph street.

"He bought me a drink or two," said Patterson, a clerk, "and suggested we go to a show. He made several remarks I didn't like, I went into an alley and he followed. I hit him and he fell."

On Jan. 5 Patterson's father surrendered him. He said he had no idea his blow killed the man.

PARTY HOSTESS SUED BY GUEST MUST PAY $25

A jury before Judge Walter J. La Buy yesterday decided that Miss Blanche West, 48 years old, 4442 Beacon street, had slandered her friend Miss Veela Acord, 44 years old, 6540 Glenwood avenue, and awarded Miss Acord $25 damages.

Miss Acord, a milliner, said Miss West accused her of taking $3 from Miss West's home during a party in honor of Miss Acord in 1935. The accusation, Miss Acord testified, was made in the presence of their fellow church members and damaged her reputation. Miss West is a restaurant owner.

MELROSE PARK CLUBS LOSE TWO GOOD MEMBERS

Several years ago Lewis Peters, a real estate salesman, founded a bachelors' club in Melrose Park. As head of the organization he enforced $200 fines for any members who succumbed to matrimony.

The feminine counterpart of this group is the Melrose Park Spinsters' club. Miss Margaret Misch, a nurse in the Westlake hospital, was a member and advocated a $25 fine for marriage.

Miss Misch and Peters, who is 28 years old and lives at 4501 Washington boulevard, met in Florida several weeks ago. Club rules were forgotten. They were married here last Saturday. Yesterday Peters cheerfully paid $200 to his employer, Peter Paul Gaddy, now temporary chairman of the bachelors' club. Mrs. Peters handed over $25 to the girls.

JUDGE ARRANGES QUIET NEW YEAR IN 1939 FOR JOE

Joseph Zahora, who doesn't like to be awakened by roisterers returning at 3 a. m. of a New Year's day, was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction yesterday on each of two charges of assault, the sentences to be served concurrently.

Ted Paholski and his wife, who live in the same building as Zahora, 4526 Justine street, and Frank Ganster and his wife of 4830 South Bishop street, said Zahora rushed out at them with a butcher knife because the noise of the front door when they returned home woke Zahora up.

LONDON PONDERS OVER RUPERT; IT'S METAL BUT IT TALKS, BY JOVE!

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The mysterious Rupert of the artificial larynx has stirred up a sensation in London. When he made his debut at the Savoy hotel recently those privileged to meet him marveled that he had at least some of the accomplishments of man.

Albert Creuziger introduced Rupert, who is a metal mechanical man. The robot talks, pours himself a drink, smokes a cigaret on occasion, and has been known to drive a car, it is said.

Rupert looks something like a man, and his varied abilities interested scientists. He is said to be the only one of his kind and his replacement cost was set at $20,000.

FOOT TRACKS IN STONE GIVE KEY TO A DAWN MAN

Berea, Ky., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Discovery of footprints in sandstone, so human in appearance that they may have been made by one of the earliest ancestors of man, was announced here today by Dr. Wilbur Greeley Burroughs, head of the geology department at Berea college.

The tracks, ten in all, Dr. Burroughs said, are about 150 feet above the bottom of the Pottsville formation of the upper carboniferous system. He added that if investigations bear out present indications the track would indicate that the origin of man goes back millions of years beyond the earliest time dreamed of.

Dr. Burroughs described the tracks as showing five large, distinct toes spread well apart. The width across the toes is six inches and the tracks are nine and a half inches long. There were distinct right and left foot tracks, and everything indicated the creature that made them walked on only two feet.

"Each teacher will keep adjustment and guidance records of the pupils in her home division room and will in turn coöperate with the adjustment teacher in charge of the program in her school," he said.

All the heirs are cousins of Kelly, who died without making a will.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1938.

For Both Miss and Matron

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This rather dressy frock is graceful and becoming to both misses and matrons, although it was designed expressly for the latter, especially those with rather heavy figures. There is a lot of overweight-concealment inherent in the smart lines of this dress. It has a great deal of detail, but is exceedingly simple to make. We suggest all types of silks, especially satin, for this style.

The V neckline is surrounded with graceful folds originating in shirring at the shoulder seams. The sleeves are cut raglan fashion and are full all the way down. A loop detail lends just enough trimming to the waist. While the bodice is shirred for fullness, the skirt is paneled for slimness, an ideal proportion for both figure flattery and up to the minute chic.

If you're bored with somber colors make the dress of a neat print or of a neutral but rather light shade.

Style No. 2059 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Men to Pour at Tea Party of Cliff Dwellers

BY JUDITH CASS.

ENOUGH tea will be consumed in Chicago today and tomorrow to cause a rise in the tea market, perhaps, for there are several large tea parties planned for the two days. The coffee market might be affected, too, for usually that beverage is dispensed along with the one that gives late afternoon parties their name and many women prefer coffee to tea as a "pick me up" after a busy afternoon.

Instead of charming ladies, distinguished gentlemen will be serving tea tomorrow at the Cliff Dwellers' usual Friday party. The gentlemen are past presidents of the club and among them are Herbert E. Hyde, who has been the efficient and affable head of the club for the last two years; Dr. Frederick Stock, Thomas E. Tallmadge, Irving K. Pond, William A. Nitze, Carter H. Harrison, and Ralph Clarkson.

Mrs. Arthur Bissell New Tea Chairman.

Elmer A. Forsberg, who just has been elected president, will be there, too, but he has not been invited to pour because he will be busy acting as host. He has appointed Mrs. Arthur Bissell, chairman of the committee for the weekly after-the-concert teas, to succeed Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, who was Mr. Hyde's tea chairman.

Mr. Hyde and Mrs. Carpenter have managed during the last two years to make the weekly teas decidedly chichi, and it is anticipated that Mr. Forsberg and Mrs. Bissell will carry on in the same capable way. Under Mr. Hyde's leadership the club has become imbued with new life and its evening parties are among the most delightful of each season.

The Cordon, which also has popular after-the-concert tea parties every Friday, will have John H. Storrs, the sculptor, as its special guest tomorrow. An exhibition of Mr. Storrs' sculpture and painting now is at the Roullier galleries in the Fine Arts building, the same building in which the Cordon has its attractive rooms.

Antiquarians Hold Victorian Tea Today.

Looking like ladies who lived the sheltered, leisurely life of the Victorian era rather than the hustling, busy ladies they really are, the officers and directors of the Antiquarian Society of the Art Institute will be at home today from 3 until 5 o'clock in galleries A4 and 5 of the institute. They will not look out of place either, for the galleries in which they will receive have been transformed into perfect Victorian rooms.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne, president, and Mrs. Phillip Miller, vice president, will receive, and Miss Elizabeth McCormick will stand with them, for she is the guest of honor at this Victoria Centenary celebration, not only because she has loaned some of the handsomest Victorian things that are in the exhibition but because she is such a loyal and generous member of the Antiquarian society. The Victorian bedroom furniture that will be on display is hers, and so is the old red Bohemian glassware that will be used on the tea table.

Hostesses Will Wear Old Gowns.

Assisting will be Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster and Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson. Mrs. Thorne's French Victorian dress is the only new one; Miss McCormick is wearing an old one that was worn by a lady in England about a century ago, and Mrs. Miller's is of the same style. The highlight of Mrs. Dewey's costume is a locket depicting a man kneeling at a grave; Mrs. Patterson's gown belonged to her mother, the late Mrs. Harlow Higinbotham. Mrs. Dempster's lavender and green taffeta gown will be partially covered by a rare old Spanish lace shawl and her head will be bonneted in the best Victorian fashion. Mrs. Hamill's dress is a hoop-skirted one.

The costumes worn by the hostesses will not be the only Victorian ones at the party, for on display will be some costumes of early Chicagoans that are the property of the institute. Kisses [the cake sort], pound cake and all the other delicious things that were served at a tea party in

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Behind the Scenes

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 19.—It is trite perhaps to say that movie audiences don't realize, when they see a picture, just how much detail has gone into its preparation. Trite but nevertheless accurate. For instance, how many of you noticed in "Wells-Fargo" that in one scene Chinese servants, without pigtails, were seen working shoulder to shoulder with white servants?

It would have been historically and tonsorially correct to have shown Chinese of that period with pigtails, but it would have been internationally disastrous. The pigtail, in modern China, is a reminder of coolie slavery, and were the picture shown with pig tailed Chinese it would lead to theater riots in China and the banning of all Paramount pictures for perhaps 12 months.

All foreign nations, with the exception of England, are sensitive about showing their nationals on the screen as servants, so in "Wells-Fargo," whenever you saw a Chinese servant, you saw in the same scene a white servant working shoulder to shoulder. Experts in the foreign departments of picture companies must pass on every script and every picture that goes out of Hollywood.

For much the same reason all screen villains must always be identified as Americans. Italy, Germany, Japan, France, England, Mexico, and all South American countries would bar immediately a picture that showed one of their nationals as a "menace," a "heavy," or a scoundrel. So the impression is fairly general abroad that all villains are Americans.

Italy bans any picture showing an actor eating spaghetti, on the grounds that it is always treated with ridicule. Mexico will delete any scene in which a performer is shown praying, and scissors any church scene. Japan lifts out any kissing scene. Japanese have never seen an actor kiss an actress on the screen. It's strictly censorable.

England, strong in its own assurance of strength, is the most tolerant of foreign markets, but the young nations and the dictator nations have no sense of humor. England, however, insists on two things —utter respect for royalty, and complete, authenticated proof that in any picture which uses animals no cruelty has been practiced to make the animal perform.

England, for instance, deleted all scenes from "Rasputin and the Empress," which showed the czar and czarina walking in the garden and talking of everyday things. Royalty never talks of everyday things. They must be kept aloof, a race of superior beings. Japan, of course, is just as strict in this regard, and any picture touching on royalty is censored rigidly.

Each of the major companies maintains stock companies of vocal standins at Paris, Rome, Buenos Aires, and Berlin, where foreign voices are dubbed in, in place of the Hollywood voices. Myrna Loy, for instance, has a French voice, an Italian voice, a German voice, and a Spanish voice, and so have all the other stars. Often these foreign doubles are, vocally, greater actresses or actors than the stars for whom they speak.

One American star's tremendous popularity in certain foreign countries is due to the fact that her vocal stand-in conveys so much emotion in her voice. Long after the star started sliding in this country she was a terrific foreign favorite, just because of her ghost talker.

Boxoffice strength of Charlie Chaplin, apart from his great comedy talent, has been the fact that he made silent pictures. Chaplin's stories are pantomimic, and the foreign markets eat 'em up. For the same reason Laurel and Hardy are tremendous favorites abroad, and it is nothing unusual in Italian cities to see five Laurel and Hardy comedies playing simultaneously at five different theaters.

The foreign departments of major companies recognize pantomime to the extent that when they want to test a picture for foreign distribution they run it silent, with the sound track switched off. You can understand the foreign honors and decorations that have been showered on the master of pantomime, Walt Disney.

Every foreign nation resents the far flung popularity of American pictures, with some reason. For instance, if England buys $20,000,000 worth of machinery from this country, the money flows out of England, but the machinery remains. But when England pays $20,000,000 into the coffers of American picture companies the money flows out and nothing remains there but the memories, which are not marketable.

So each country, in its own way, attempts to correct this by earmarking the box office shillings and lira and pengos for use within their own borders. Japan, Germany, and Italy, in fact, refuse to permit American film companies to take the money out of these countries. Other countries, not so dictatorial, draft picture quota laws. So that American film companies, to distribute four United States pictures, must also distribute a picture made in that particular country.

Despite all these restrictions, however, American film companies get forty per cent of their total grosses from the foreign market, and that isn't hay. Of that forty per cent England and her colonies contribute half. Australia, by the way, has the greatest per capita movie audience of any country, including us.

Young Reveal Scant Faith in Politicians

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Two years of scientific investigation now is beginning to show what American youths from 16 to 24 think about liquor, love and politicians, and many other things. Results made public yesterday before the annual meeting of the national conference of church related colleges, Stevens hotel, by Dr. Homer P. Rainey of Washington, D. C., were described as startling by the nation's church educators.

Here are some of the findings that caused concern:

More than half [83 per cent in New York state] of the American youths of the age studied drink liquor; half of whom are drinking more now than they did two years ago.

Fewer girls drink than boys, but abstaining girls are more tolerant toward liquor and drinking than the boys who don't drink.

And Johnnie will never grow up to be President, to say nothing of being a senator, congressman or even mayor, just because he has decided that he does not want—would not accept—public office of any kind. At least, only 2 per cent of the youths studied in some sections of the country said they were interested in public service as politicians, with but 1 per cent in other parts of the country.

Dr. Rainey said that some youths probably outgrow this attitude toward political service.

This rejection of politics as a career was explained by Dr. Rainey as the result of cynicism concerning politics generally. In Maryland, he said, this phase of the question was studied. Six per cent of Maryland youths believe that officeholders are elected on their merits, against 31 per cent who said this almost never happens. Half of the youths said the meritorious candidate is now and again elected.

Money, graft, bribery, political machines, propaganda, false promises, and ignorance of voters are listed by youth as the way to success at the polls. Personality of the candidate, the study added, accounts for only 5 per cent of the candidate's success.

Marriage has been postponed until the age of 26 in sections where studies have been made. In Douglas county, Wisconsin, the studies showed that 83 per cent of youths between 21 and 18 are still single.

Dr. Rainey is director of the American youth commission to which the Rockefeller general education board gave $500,000 for making the studies. Newton D. Baker headed the commission until his death.

Miss Louise Miller, Granddaughter of Carnegie, Engaged

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The betrothal of Louise Carnegie Miller, granddaughter of the late Andrew Carnegie, and J. S. Gordon Thomson, lawyer of Edinburgh, Scotland, was learned today by cables from London and the engagement will be formally announced here tomorrow.

Miss Miller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Miller, her mother being the former Margaret Carnegie. Graduated from the Spence school last June, Louise has never made a debut here as her family has an aversion to social fanfare. The Carnegie granddaughter moves only in a close circle of friends here.

Her fiancé, who is the son of the late William Thomson, Edinburgh businessman, announced in Edinburgh today that he and Miss Miller plan to marry next August.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The eyes should be the most arresting feature of your face. If nature gave them no quality of drama see what makeup can do. A touch of darkening to lashes, a deft blend of shadow and the unexaggerated but flattering brow line will give any face a "lift".

You can't get around the fact that it's the light that lies in a woman's eyes that makes them interesting, but eye grooming can do a lot more than most women realize.

Making the most of your eyes calls for a varied, but not really a complicated, program. It begins with good health. Unless your health is up to par you can't expect the whites to be really white and you can't hope for the luster that is so all important. It's not at all fashionable these days to look wan. Quite the contrary. The fashion is to look alive, to have vivacity and sparkle. The eyes can make or mar your performance.

You've simply got to get enough fresh air and enough sleep if you want to keep step in the beauty and pep parade. There aren't any short cuts. Occasionally we hear of women who can take drink for drink with the men, smoke like well dressed chimneys, and keep hours that would make an owl look like an amateur and get away with it, but we've never known it to work for more than a year at the most.

The right health program, then, is the starting point. After that come the common sense rules about not straining the eyes, about bathing them daily and wearing glasses if you need them. The makeup end of eye dramatization is superimposed on a sane foundation.

If the brow line is peculiar have an expert do it over for you. There are one or two around town who specialize in this. The line they recreate isn't fantastic, though it may not be what an unkind nature drew for you. Use mascara, by all means, if the lashes are mousy in color. And if they're sparse use an ointment that helps make them long and lustrous. Use a gadget to curl them up if you like. It's perfectly legal and surprisingly effective, even though the results are temporary.

Use shadow in a color that harmonizes with the natural eye color or with your favorite costume colors. The shadow should be soft and creamy and applied with a delicate touch. Use soft pencil to extend the eye line at the corners—but practice this in private until you've mastered it!

American Folk Songs Are Hit of Lund Recital

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Thorne hall last evening was the scene of a most unusual proceeding. Engel Lund, Danish-Icelandic folk singer now making her first tour of the United States, presented before an American audience the folk songs of the American hinterland. And they sounded, strange to say, more exotic than a great many tunes whose point of origin was many thousands of miles away.

These American folk songs, which were found among the clearings of the Appalachians, constituted only a tiny part of the wealth of national music in Miss Lund's program. Iceland, Germany, France, England, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and the Jewish communities of eastern Europe all contributed a share.

The performance was marked by great simplicity and directness and by the singer's generous use of staple tone colorings. Miss Lund introduces each of her songs with a few words about its character and place of origin. Her informal manner seems to be the result of a deft blend of genuine friendliness and a highly developed stage sense.

Ferdinand Rauter, arranger of many of the songs, played the piano accompaniments. The program was sponsored by Northwestern university as an event of its history and enjoyment of music series.

René Le Roy, French flutist, will play at the Arts club next Sunday evening. His program promises Bach, Handel, Gluck, Mozart, Debussy, Honegger, and Enesco.

Wool Jersey Styles Extra Size Handbags

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The big surprise of the week—handbags of wool jersey. And if you sniff at the utilitarian sound, prepare for a shock. For these bags are the best looking outsize models we have ever inspected! Some are so large they could easily carry supplies for a winter at the south pole, complete with radio; others are modestly sized to tuck under your arm. The linings and stylish swank make them instantaneous hits.

The linings are colored linen. These bags were designed for resort wardrobes, but appreciative shoppers are carrying them now. The outside has a stunning effect of cross tucked wool jersey. The dull sheen of the jersey makes the bags extra smart costume accents for wool or tweed street suits.

Some large black numbers are lined with kelly green linen, brown models are lined with flaming red, and others flaunt turquoise or yellow. The colors are irresistible for dark days. A stunning old gold is slick with brown coats as well as blue or black. An aquamarine tint of blue will go with dark toned tweeds or dubonnet red. The grays are delightful finds for knitted dresses in deep blue or copper.

The big bags measure a good twenty inches, they're capacious, and come in two styles . . . without strap handles and one with a wide band strap. Shorter, chunkier affairs also come with these wide band-like straps. See these new arrivals. They are new, smart, and moderate in price.

GUNHAMMERED GOLD

By Luke Short

[Copyright: 1938: By Frederick Dilley Glidden.]

SYNOPSIS.

Poco St. Vrain arrives in the western town of Christian City, escaping a pursuing troop of cavalry. There Two-Way Hornbeck approaches him with a scheme. Abe McCandless, who framed Poco and made an outlaw of him, owns a gold mine on a mountain peak. Two insurance agents sent to meet at the mine and bring down the gold are murdered by two different bands of outlaws. Two-Way wants Poco to pose as one of the agents, Jake Finger, whose papers he has, and get the gold.

INSTALMENT IV.

A BOY'S TRAGEDY.

Two-Way leaned back against the headboard and watched Poco, who was scowling a little, his eyes dreamy no more.

After a long moment, Two-Way said, "It's a tough proposition. I wouldn't blame you if you turned it down."

"Conaghan killed this Finger to get the papers. Is that it?" Poco said.

Two-Way nodded.

Poco said, "Is the snow gone enough so a man could reach the camp?"

"I've inquired around," Two-Way said, trying to stifle his growing excitement. "Some say it is, some say it isn't. You can try."

Poco lounged erect. "All right."

"You'll do it?" Two-Way asked quickly, and when Poco nodded once, he smiled broadly.

"Good. All that's left is the agreement." He looked seriously at Poco. "What do you say we make this a two-way proposition—fifty-fifty split?"

Poco almost smiled at this familiar phrase, the one that had earned Two-Way his name and lost many a man his life and fortune. He knew the arguments Two-Way would use to clinch his right to a half—arguments about brains, about furnishing the opportunity and papers and the means whereby all this would be made possible.

He only said quietly, "I'll take sixty. You take forty."

Two-Way stood up, protest on his face.

"I don't haggle," Poco said gently, flatly. "Take it or leave it, and do it now."

Two-Way's own frustration gagged him. He started to speak and then checked himself and sat down on the bed, glaring at Poco. "Now look here, Poco. I wrote——"

"What'll it be?" Poco cut in.

Two-Way glared at him in impotent fury. Then he laughed quietly, ruefully, grudgingly, shaking his head slowly. "I'll have to take it, I guess. I called you in on this, though, because I knew you were one man I could trust, a man who would be fair and stick to his word. Maybe I made a mistake."

Poco regarded him a moment with blank eyes, then walked over to the bed and laid both hands on the footboard. "Maybe you did," he said flatly. "Do you think you did?"

Two-Way shook his head emphatically, his eyes uneasy.

Poco continued, "I'll tell you why you called me in here. Because you don't have the guts—never did have, never will have—to carry out a thing like this. You're a rat, Two-Way. With any guts, you'd be a real crook. But you've got a big, wide, woolly, yellow stripe down your back that a shirt won't cover. And it won't wash off. Remember that."

Two-Way's face was flushed with anger, but he said no word. Poco smiled crookedly, gently at him, and then he said in a pleasant voice, "I'll have a look at those papers."

* * * * *

It was a two days' ride from Christian City to the foothills of the San Jons, the first half of it through gaunt-ribbed, switchback canyons that wove their maze tilting to the San Jons tableland to the west. This gently rolling and grassy plateau, Poco remembered, was part of the McCandless holdings, as were most of the unfenced and lush grazing lands in a half dozen counties to the south. He recalled with a quiet and impassive bitterness that it was on just such a range as this, only farther south, that he had served his apprenticeship under Abe McCandless. He had been a youngster then, tough, eager to learn, and he had accepted their starvation wages, the endless work, the primitive living of their frowsy and unlovely home ranch without complaint.

He had been loyal, caught in the fever of helping to build a cattle empire, and the twenty a month Abe paid him seemed a generous sum for which to fight and maverick and risk his life a dozen times a week. But the day a conscientious sherif rode into the home ranch and was closeted with big Abe McCandless for several hours Poco learned and digested a large slice of life.

The memory of it, undimmed by years, came back now. Stretched out under the lone cottonwood by the blacksmith shop, on that day years ago, he was smoking contentedly when a hand told him McCandless wanted him. In the office he faced Abe and the sherif. Abe started the ball rolling by announcing that even a kid must pay for his mistakes, that the sherif had positive evidence against him, and that he, Abe, proposed to harbor no murderers.

"Murderer?" Poco had echoed.

The sherif said, "A nester over here on the Cuerva rim was beefed yesterday. He must have put up a fight, because there were signs of a struggle, on horses and off. A TC iron was found nearby. You were seen over that way. McCandless said he gave orders to you to talk to this nester. How about it? Will you confess?"

"He's yours, sherif," Big Abe said, when Poco did not answer. "I hold no brief for a killer, young or old, and I'm a hard man."

Those long, still nights in jail, the hot, quiet days, had shaped Poco more than he knew. He accepted the fact that it was a frameup; that McCandless had sacrificed him, a friendless orphan, as the least important cog in his vast machine that was strangling and digesting this country with the rapacious hunger of an octopus. It fed his fury until it burned like a still, cold flame inside him. The jail couldn't hold him, and he escaped.

In later years, when he had been hunted over a thousand trails, when men held their peace when he walked into a room, when his name had become at once a threat and a curse, he looked back on his days under McCandless with a kind of wry affection. They had put him on his feet, had opened his eyes, had made him realize that a man stands unutterably alone in this world. He had never forgotten. He knew some day he would have to kill McCandless, but he wanted to hurt him first, to make him crawl, beg for his life, to walk always in the shadow of death.

Nothing Two-Way Hornbeck had told him had fooled him. He knew Two-Way, the day they met to split up the gold, would have recruited a gang of hard-cases who would hunt him from border to border to retrieve his share, but he was unworried. A third of a lifetime spent with Two-Way's stripe had taught him only a contempt for them.

And now he reflected that Two-Way had the makings of a great man, crooked or honest, because no detail had been too small for his cunning mind. Two-Way had even ridden this way and had carefully mapped out a route that would take him to the trail that led to the San Jons peaks.

By midafternoon Poco had picked up the freight trail and followed it. Crossing a packpine cienaga in late afternoon, Poco saw the tracks of a single horse in the mud. They were more than a day old, and going his way. That, he reflected, would be the man posing as Herb Shelton, the other insurance agent who had been downed on the Tularosa stage. Who would it be? A man with brains enough to accept Poco as a partner until they got the gold down from the peaks, a man that would call him Jake Finger and ask after his days on the trail and engage in small talk of mutual friends while Shayne looked on and suspected nothing? Or would it be a fool, who would try to give him away as an impostor?

When dusk fell, he was a little short of timber line, and he made his camp in the V of two recent windfalls, and built a fire.

By noon of the next day he was high in the boulder fields above timber line, with a steady, frost-laden wind riding off the peaks toward him. There was snow here on the north side of rocks, and as he threaded his way higher, spotting an occasional spoor of the other man's horse, these spots of snow increased.

Zoological Society Discusses Purchase of Another Panda

The whereabouts of Mrs. W. H. Harkness Jr. and Mei-Mei, the second baby giant panda she has captured, was one of the chief questions at the annual meeting of the Chicago Zoölogical society yesterday at the Palmer house. Newspaper accounts placed Mrs. Harkness in Hongkong on Jan. 8, but the society, which may buy Mei-Mei as a companion for Su-Lin, hasn't had word from her since the first of the year.

Three okapi from somewhere in Africa also came in for a share of attention during the annual report of Herbert E. Bradley, animal committee chairman. The okapi, animals rarely found in zoos, are being considered for purchase. The animals are related to the giraffe.

All officers of the society were reelected. They include John T. McCutcheon, president; John T. Pirie, John P. Kellogg, and John Wentworth, vice presidents; Graham Aldis, secretary, and Solomon A. Smith, treasurer. Attendance at Brookfield zoo increased from 1,573,671 in 1936 to 1,762,457 last year.

Gifts of $85,000 Made to Presbyterian Hospital During Year

Endowment contributions and special gifts to the Presbyterian hospital last year totaled nearly $85,000, John McKinlay, president, said in his report at the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Hospital society yesterday in the hospital chapel. Charity work of the hospital during the year cost $165,428, said Asa S. Bacon, superintendent.

Free patients included 786 children, largely cared for in beds endowed through the woman's board. Operating expenses of the hospital and the school of nursing totaled $1,056,275, as compared to $942,701 for the previous year, said Solomon A. Smith, treasurer.

Officers of the society were reelected. Managers elected for the term ending in 1941 were Horace W. Armstrong, Arthur G. Cable, John B. Drake, R. Douglas Stuart, and J. Hall Taylor.

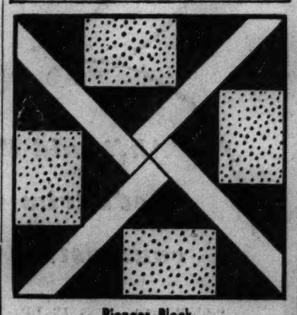
Woman's Aid.

Jacob Tarshish [The Lamplighter] will talk on "How to Live on 24 Hours a Day" at a radio and motion picture breakfast of the Chicago Woman's Aid today.

TODAY'S QUILT



Pioneer Block.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Pioneer Block" is one of the old pieced patterns, but may not be classed among the antiques. At first glance it has the appearance of being difficult. Actually, it is one of the easiest blocks to piece in any quilt collection. Blue, yellow, and white are the colors included in the decorative scheme, and the pieced designs are set together with 1½ inch bands of white material. The squares measure 10 inches completed, and 49 blocks are required for a single coverlet. A 5½ inch border surrounds the quilt, and the over-all dimensions are 90 by 90 inches.

Victoria's time will be the refreshments.

The exhibition will be open to the public for one month, starting tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Thorne will be having tea, along with many of her friends and acquaintances, on the south side at the Lakeside Press galleries, where a preview of an exhibit of aquatints from Mrs. Thorne's famous collection will be opening. The exhibit will be open to the public from 9 to 5 o'clock Mondays to Fridays, until April 29.

The preview and tea tomorrow will be from 4 to 6 o'clock and receiving will be Miss Naomi Donnelley and her brother, Thomas E. Donnelley, Mrs. Elliott Donnelley, Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr., Mrs. Herbert P. Zimmerman, C. C. Littell, and his daughter-in-law and granddaughter, Mrs. William Littell and Miss Jane Littell.

Miss Donnelley is going to California next month to see her niece, Mrs. Pardee Erdman, and Mrs. Thorne also is taking a trip to California early in February.

It is unfortunate that the party planned for this afternoon at the Casino comes on the same day as the Antiquarians' tea [which was postponed from the 12th because of the death of the institute's director, Robert B. Harshe] for many will be torn between the desire to attend both. C. Martin Wilbur, curator of Chinese archeology and ethnology of the Field Museum of Natural History, will give a lecture at 4 o'clock at the Casino. Mr. Wilbur will talk on the Chinese jades that were recently bequeathed to the museum by Mrs. Frances Gaylord Smith. Of the museum's collection numbering 100 pieces, 25 have been photographed in natural color by Clarence Buckingham Mitchell.

Musical Program At Alliance Causerie.

Mrs. Ralph James has arranged a musical program for the causerie of the Alliance Francaise this afternoon. Joan Alizier will play the piano and Desault Kirk will sing French songs. Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift will be hostess at tea following the program, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. A. Thomas Taylor, and Mrs. Alden B. Swift, and Mrs. C. Daggett Harvey.

Many members of the America Opera society will go to the Goodman theater this afternoon to hear two one act operas in English, "A Christmas Tale" and "The Court Jester," both by Eleanor Everest Freer.

Woman's A. C. Sponsors Lecture.

The Woman's Athletic club will have as its speaker this morning at 11 o'clock Sir Charles Morgan-Webb, whose subject will be "An Englishman Looks at America."

Feminine companionship is being welcomed at the annual dinner tomorrow night of the Williams Alumni association. Wives, sisters, and sweethearts of Williams graduates have been invited. The dinner will be held at 6:30 o'clock at the Union League club. Dr. James Phinney Baxter III., who is the tenth president of Williams college, will be the speaker.

Dr. Baxter will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Wilson during his Chicago visit. Mr. Wilson and William P. Sidley, trustees of the college, will give a luncheon today for Dr. Baxter, at which President Hutchins of the University of Chicago will be among the guests.

Among the Williams alumni who have made reservations for the banquet are James B. Forgan, Fletcher Durbin, Scott Durand, Willard N. Boyden, and George A. Mason.

At the annual meeting of the board of managers of the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum Mrs. David B. McDougal was reëlected president. Other officers are Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr., first vice president; Miss Louise Forgan, second vice president; Miss Jane Morton, third vice president; Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Carroll H. Sudler Jr., assistant treasurer; Mrs. J. McWilliams Stone, secretary, and Miss Bette Rich, assistant secretary.

Home Training Foundation of Good Manners

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Just let me relax!" and she heaved a sigh as she sank into the loppiest chair in the room.

"Such a week-end! I wish I didn't get so tense over these visits of my relatives. Really Joe and Henry are a headache. Watching son with eagle eyes. Always harping on what beautiful manners the Franklin boys have while, of course, son never shows to such poor advantage as when his uncles, Joe and Henry, are around.

"It does get me down. I hate to have him seem rude and he truly isn't—you know son. Why, when the Cliffords come, or the Gibsons, he's so, well, almost sweet with them and so polite and considerate. But, of course, he senses Joe's and Henry's attitude and something always happens and there's this tight-lipped disapproval." She stopped a minute, then laughed.

"I suppose I lose my sense of humor after about three days of it. But, as I look back, it was funny, too. Here were these two judges so superior and the slips they made themselves!

"Half a dozen things happened, some of them really crude.

"Well, it's over and I suppose I shouldn't take it so hard. But at least this time I kept my head enough not to correct son in their presence nor call him down afterward for the few little things he did do that they scowled at."

Out of that recital emerge several facts worth noting:

Real courtesy all the time—not "company manners"—will produce courtesy in a child, with a few necessary reminders and explanations as training.

Children respond with the best that is in them in spirit and politeness when they feel warmth and approval in the air, as this "son" did when the other visitors were around.

And by the same token, through a sensed tension or antagonism, they often automatically offend.

The last point worth noting is that you want to stick by your child in these situations. Take him aside if he needs a reminder or help in "taking it," but be loyal to him before this little social world of the moment.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Gutstadt of Chicago, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miriam, to David Apter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Apter of Chicago and the engagement of their daughter, Sylvia, to Irwin Olcott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Olcovich of Denver, Colo. The wedding of Miss Sylvia Gutstadt will take place on April 9. No date has been set for the wedding of Miss Miriam Gutstadt.

Baking Imparts Distinction to Friday's Fish

Entertaining the bridge club? There are menu suggestions and recipes in the Tribune's booklet, "Catering to Bridge Appetites," on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, Tribune Tower and 1 South Dearborn street, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents in stamps. Address mail requests to Mary Meade.

It's a fish's misfortune to be fried more often than he is baked or broiled. Yet many times baking or broiling would give more distinction to his dinner time appearance.

A fish large enough to be stuffed and baked whole presents a regal appearance on a platter garnished with lemon slices and parsley. Oily fish is better for baking than the dry fleshed types, but dry fish may be buttered or larded so that it will bake satisfactorily. Whitefish belongs to the "fat" class of marine food, haddock to the "lean" group.

Baked Stuffed Whitefish.

3 or 4 pound whitefish
1½ cups bread crums
2 tablespoons chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 beaten egg
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Melted butter

Have the fish cleaned at the market. Head and tail should be left on the fish. Stuff it with remaining ingredients, combined to make a loose dressing. Use enough melted butter to moisten well. Sew the opening. Rub fish on the outside with salt and soft butter, dredge in flour. Place on oiled cheesecloth in a baking pan and arrange several strips of bacon over the fish. Bake at 350 degrees, moderate heat, 30 to 40 minutes, basting several times during the baking with a mixture of melted butter and water. Lift from baking pan to a hot platter and serve with lemon slices and curry sauce.

Five Stations to Broadcast Games of Sox

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Five Chicago stations — W-G-N, WBBM, WCFL, WIND, and WJJD—have made contracts with the White Sox and the American league outlining provisions for broadcasting baseball next summer. Contracts previously submitted had several features which broadcasters sought to have eliminated. Contracts with the Cubs had been negotiated previously.

League officials insisted that microphones may be set up only in booths and in the dugouts. A clause providing announcements of the next day's games several times during the afternoon was eliminated. Courtesy announcements to the club and league are to be made before the game starts and at the close.

Last year's rule limiting the number of sponsor's announcements to eight, not to total more than 1,000 words a game, has been amended to provide that no commercial copy shall interfere with the play by play reporting. The league also may curb "excesses" in sponsors' copy.

Prof. Lyman Bryson, chairman of CBS' new adult education board, yesterday announced a threefold plan for bolstering radio's service in education. The board proposes a series of half hour dramatic programs depicting "Americans at Work," to give listeners glimpses into what their neighbors are doing. It also would establish a series of half hour evening programs dramatizing the processes of learning, and recommended the use of evening periods withdrawn from the sponsored program schedule for experimental broadcasts in the educational field. The board also invited listening groups in schools and colleges, civic and cultural groups to criticize its experimental programs.

Employers Give High Rating to Fine Grooming

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

From a survey made a short time ago it was determined that employers prefer girls who are exceptionally well groomed. They are willing to sacrifice some ability for good grooming, feeling that first impressions are important. The girl of average ability who makes an excellent appearance stands a mighty good chance of winning out when she applies for a position. The supposition is that a girl who appreciates the importance of grooming will, in the course of her duties, realize the importance of doing good work and will eventually become an efficient worker. So, let every girl strive for a position on the well groomed list.

To be well groomed a woman must give careful attention to many details. There is the daily shower or bath. A warm, lathery bath several times a week, in addition to the daily shower or bath, to remove all traces of dead skin and any possible perspiration odors, is essential. The daily bath alone is not enough, for one may start out from home as fresh as can be, but spending time in warm rooms, or working under a nervous strain, may cause perspiration to start, with the result that there are perspiration odors to combat. That's why the use of a deodorant is so essential if one is to remain dainty throughout the day.

The importance of fresh underclothes and stockings can't be too strongly stressed. Shoes must be shined or brushed. Hair should be washed frequently and brushed daily, nails manicured, dresses aired after each wearing, kept neatly pressed and frequently cleaned. Powder puffs must be kept spotless, bags kept orderly. All these things are necessary if you are to earn for yourself a place on the well groomed list.

Seventh Signature of Shakespeare Is Declared Genuine

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Shakespeare laboratory of the University of Utah announced today it had authenticated a hitherto unknown signature of William Shakespeare.

Six other signatures of the English dramatist exist. The seventh, subject of nineteen months of research by Prof. B. Roland Lewis, is four inches long on a piece of paper eight by two inches, apparently cut off an old document.

The dramatist's signature read: "William Shakspere," the professor said.

Prof. Lewis declined to set a value for the scrawl but said "$75,000 has been paid for Shakespeare objects of less value."

The signature was given Prof. Lewis for study by a friend and he said he was not at liberty to disclose its history.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I am sending you a hand that gave considerable difficulty and, incidentally, a punk match point score, to my partner and myself in a duplicate game last night. Obviously we should have reached a slam but, shamefully enough, we staggered up to five odd and then hung tremblingly, both of us afraid to take that final step. You will be amazed to hear that each of us blamed the other for pusillanimity. Will you please consider the bidding and comment on our respective claims?

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Match point duplicate.

	SOUTH ♠ A K Q J 3 2 ♥ K 8 ♦ A 7 3 ♣ 9 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 spade	1 no trump
2 diamonds	Pass	4 spades	4 no trump
5 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

"West's bidding was, of course, simply calculated to hold us down. He succeeded, although whether he deserved credit, or we merely deserved discredit, is a moot point. North claims that South should have bid four no trump over two diamonds, that his solid spade suit, distribution, and honor strength waranted this conventional bid. South claims that with a partner who had passed originally such a bid would have been needlessly dangerous; that it would automatically force the bidding to at least the five level, with the chance that North's hand was something like six diamonds to the king-queen-jack and, possibly, the queen-jack of hearts, and that a five bid would meet defeat by being off two club tricks and the heart ace. South claims, further, that his jump from two diamonds to four spades was strong enough for all practical purposes; that it indicated a long trump suit which North, with the 10-9 small, could then figure solid, and also indicated his outside ace and king. South claims that North, having passed originally with a hand just short of a bid, and with distribution which, according to the way the bidding developed, North should have known to be excellent, should have jumped to six spades over West's obviously phoney four no trump bid. South further deposes that in the final analysis the success or failure of the slam depended squarely on North's club length and that South could not go to six on the assumption that North held precisely the distribution that would insure twelve tricks. So what?

"Yours truly, F. R. C., Chicago."

I suspect that my correspondent was South, because South's case has been stated with vigor and persuasiveness. Regardless of that, however, there is no denying the complete logic of South's stand. The slam did depend not merely on North's diamond and heart holding, but more specifically on the singleton club. I agree with each and every one of South's points, which is just another way of saying that I think North should have jumped to six spades instead of bidding merely five.

DEFENSE FOR OIL MEN BLASTS U. S. POLICY CONFLICT

Ickes' Name Drawn Into Conspiracy Trial.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Confusion and uncertainty of governmental policy toward business generally, reflected in the specific conflict between the department of the interior and the attorney general's department over the conduct of the oil industry, marked the final defense pleas in the oil conspiracy trial today before Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, through a letter, a speech, and his 1935 annual report, was brought sharply to the foreground of this three and a half months' trial, which has cost the defense well over 2 million dollars, in the jury addresses of Col. William J. Donovan, chief defense counsel, and Attorney H. H. Thomas of Madison, associate counsel. The government prosecutors will begin summations tomorrow.

Question of Subpena Raised.

Ickes, it was learned, had been approached by a defense lawyer during the trial on the question of whether he would respond willingly to a subpena as a witness in this trial. It was reported he said he would testify if it were regarded necessary, but that by so placing himself in conflict with the attorney general he might have to resign from the cabinet. The matter was not pressed.

"It seems to me unthinkable," said Col. Donovan, who at one time expected to be appointed attorney general by President Hoover, "that any prosecutors, representing one branch of our government, could ever prosecute men for coöperating with another great department of the government in accomplishing a great result [the stabilization of the oil industry]."

Col. Donovan had not completed his summation when court adjourned, so he will make his final appeal to the jury tomorrow.

Defendants Confused.

Many of the 36 defendants, particularly the presidents of the 16 companies involved, seem frankly mystified as to why they are in criminal court at all, subject to the possibility of a guilty verdict and a jail sentence, when, as they express it, they were only doing what the secretary of the interior and his petroleum administration started to do in the Blue Eagle days.

Col. Donovan took personal responsibility for keeping all the defendants except two from the witness stand. Whether they will all sink or swim together, or whether the jury will distinguish between them in the verdict are questions debated today. The defendants have been worried and gloomy over the outlook, but today's events brightened the skies.

Charges Government Aided.

The gasoline buying program, on which the indictment is based, was disclosed to the government repeatedly and the government aided the defendants in carrying it out, Col. Donovan told the jury.

"The final and conclusive answer to the charge of the government," Donovan declared, "is found in Ickes' annual report, where it is asserted that in the spring of 1935 they had finally achieved 'the desired parity between the wholesale price of gasoline and crude oil.'

"Observe the magnificent inconsistency of the government. They would like you to believe that we caused the public to pay more for gasoline, but in the only instance where they claim the jobber was hurt their contention is that the jobber was hurt because the public didn't pay enough for gasoline. Does the government know its own mind in this matter?"

Quotes from Ickes' Speech.

He quoted Ickes in a speech to the planning and coördination committee of the industry as telling the oil men:

"Gentlemen, we have a solemn duty to perform. Our task is to stabilize the oil industry upon a profitable basis. That is the keen desire of the administration, and we will work with you constantly to that end."

Thomas based his address to the jury on Secretary Ickes' letter of July 20, 1934, appointing Charles Arnott, the so-called master mind of the conspiracy, as stabilizer of the oil industry. The defense contends the letter started the chain of events which led to the conspiracy case.

SEIZE SWINDLE SUSPECT; HINT $100,000 FRAUDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Jan. 19.—Alfred Moray Seaforth, known in Newfoundland as a Scottish barrister, was arrested here today in connection with alleged swindling activities that may involve $70,000 to $100,000.

Seaforth, alias Alfred John Walker Greig, was seized when he arrived on the steamer Fort Amherst from New York, where United States authorities deported him. He was given a preliminary hearing before Magistrate O'Neill in which Harry Carter, crown prosecutor, opposed anw motion for bail. Seaforth, or Greig, was jailed until trial.

Seaforth's activities, authorities charge, involve many persons in various sections of the country.

Linked to Insurance Fraud.

Seaforth, one charge alleged, obtained $600 from Harold Taylor of Petries, Bay of Islands, to invest in the British Professional and General Insurance company. It was said Seaforth represented the company as having $400,000 in a bank in Montreal, Que. In February, 1937, he allegedly got $1,000 from Charles Bartlett of Petries as part payment on stock to qualify him to become a director of the insurance company. Bartlett agreed to pay a second $1,000.

Francis, a son of Seaforth, or Greig, was captured here Friday as a stowaway on the steamer Nova Scotia. He now is held in a penitentiary. Another son, Sandy, is held in Toronto, Ont., awaiting deportation, it was said.

WHAT RECORDS SHOW.

Newspaper clippings show that in October, 1922, a man named Alfred John Walker Greig or Grieg, who said he was the Scottish "earl of Dunblane," was convicted in Charlevoix, Mich., of a stock swindle. He started to state prison on Nov. 22, 1922, the clippings reveal to begin serving a two and a half year term.

Greig's wife was the former Sara Turngren, daughter of S. J. Turngren, wealthy Chicago contractor. The couple lived in North Michigan in a house known as Dunblane castle.

At the time of the trial a woman who said she was Mrs. Christina Greig or Grieg of Toronto, Ont., stated she was the defendant's wife and that they were married twenty-seven years before in Scotland. She had eight children.

In 1928 Greig admitted the title "earl of Dunblane" was a fake. At that time he and two sons were in jail in Toronto on fraud charges.

EDITORS OF CO-ED BATH MAGAZINE GO UNPUNISHED

Northwestern university officials said yesterday they will not discipline the editors of the Purple Parrot, campus humor magazine, who planned to run a two page supplement of candid camera photographs of co-eds in the bath taken by their sorority sisters.

Authorities seized the issue, ready for publication today, and confiscated the supplement. Prof. Ward V. Evans, chairman of the faculty committee on publications, said the matter came to the committee's attention when the editors asked for advice.

The identities of the girl photographers have been shielded by Kyle R. Morris, the editor, and Rodney Daly, business manager, who arranged the stunt.

WORLD'S CHAMPION IN POCKET BILLIARDS

"HEALTHY NERVES ARE A MUST WITH ME!"

FOURTEEN different times the news headlines have flashed: RALPH GREENLEAF WINS WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP. He is cool under fire. Sometimes pulling from behind with brilliant runs of 59 and 76 to win the title.

"Even before I won my first big championship, I'd picked Camel as my cigarette," said Ralph in a special interview during his recent championship play in Philadelphia. "I'd say the most important rule in this game is to have healthy nerves. It pays to be sure of the mildness of your cigarette. And on that score, I think, Camels have a lot to offer. One reason why I've stuck to Camels for twenty years is—they don't ruffle my nerves."

And America as a nation shows the same preference for finer tobaccos that Ralph Greenleaf does! Camels are the largest-selling cigarette in America

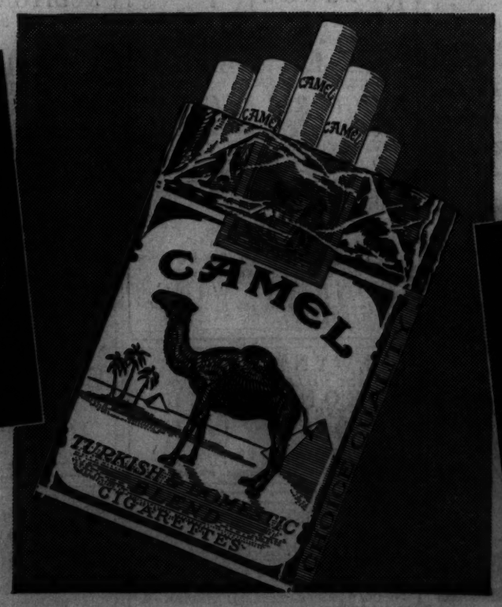
Fencing experts, too, appreciate Camel's finer tobaccos. As BELA DE TUSCAN, the famous instructor, says: "Fencing is very tiring, and I welcome the quick 'lift' I get with a Camel."

"The way these light boats bounce around knocks the daylights out of my digestion! Camels help my digestion to keep on an even keel," says MULFORD SCULL, outboard motorboat racer.

JAMES L. CLARK, famous scientist and explorer, says: "I always carry plenty of Camels with me into the wilderness. 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!' Many's the time I've actually done it."

"I'm devoted to Camels," says HELEN HOWARD, springboard diver. "They don't irritate my throat—not even when I'm sitting around in a wet suit, a target for irritation."

DO PEOPLE APPRECIATE THE COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN CAMELS?



CAMELS ARE THE LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

• Camel spends millions more for COSTLIER TOBACCOS. They are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.

HE IS COUNTED THE GREATEST POCKET-BILLIARD PLAYER OF ALL TIME. Here Greenleaf executes a difficult massé shot, requiring split-hair accuracy, faultless stroking, and healthy nerves. And the world's two famous masters of the cue—Ralph Greenleaf and the 18.1 balkline billiard champion, Willie Hoppe—are both Camel smokers.

BRADDOCK ENDS HIS DRILL; FARR FOLLOWS SUIT

Work Out on Each Other Tomorrow.

Joe Louis.

Six rounds of spirited sparring featured the ex-champion's final workout and at the conclusion of this drill Louis said he was deeply impressed with Braddock's showing.

"Braddock appears faster than he was in Chicago," said Louis. "It is the first time I have seen him in a gymnasium workout and he seemed to be using his left in a jab or a hook well. At least he was jabbing and hooking to better advantage than he did against me.

Won't Predict Result.

"He does not appear to be depending too much on his right hand, as he did against me, although he always has it poised, ready to strike. I don't want to forecast a result. Braddock punches harder than Farr, but Farr has youth and speed with him."

Braddock sparred three rounds against George Nicholson of Yonkers and three more against Jack McCarthy, Boston. His weight was said to be 195 pounds when the drill ended.

At his Summit, N. J., quarters, Farr did no boxing. He skipped rope for half an hour, engaged in calisthenics and bag punching and, with a little shadow boxing, discarded the gymnasium equipment until he is called upon to use it again after Friday's battle.

Baer Thinks Farr Will Win.

Unlike the cautious Joe Louis, Max Baer, who has fought both Braddock and Farr, ventured to predict the winner. Baer, in a wire from Oakland, Cal., today, said he thought Farr would win.

Conquered by Braddock in a heavyweight championship contest in June, 1935, and outpointed by Farr last May in London, Baer respects both for their ability, but also points out their shortcomings.

Max's message said:

"Farr should win the fight and will if it isn't stopped before the finish. Braddock has the better punch, but the trouble is you have to connect to hurt the other fellow. I know all about that.

"I have no alibi, but if the Tommy Farr I fought in London last year was a 'Fainting Phil Scott,' as some people had written, he must have changed a lot by the time he met Joe Louis, our world champion. He didn't look so bad that night, did he?"

GAINS CLAIMS TITLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Tommy Farr's British empire heavyweight boxing championship today was claimed by Larry Gains, Canadian colored boxer, who wrote to the British Board of Boxing Control asserting that he should be recognized champion. Gains recently knocked out Presidio Pavesi, Bill Wainwright, and Charles Rutz, the last named holder of the French title, and won a decision over Hans Schonrath of Germany.

PLATAK, JOHNSON ADVANCE IN A.A.U. HANDBALL PLAY

The state defending doubles champions, Bob Quinn and John Stenson of the Madison A. C., also advanced to the third round by virtue of their 21-11, 21-9 victory over Sam Edelcup and Bernard Libby of the J. P. I. last night.

Memories.

It only seems a little while
Since both of them were small,
It's hard to recognise them now
For both have grown so tall.

Sometime I cannot yet believe
The childish years are done,
When rooms were filled with trains and dolls,
Hilarity and fun.

Those busy years—how sweet they were—
I wonder where they went,
Until they're gone one never knows
How much they really meant.

Today I'm proud of both of them
And so I shouldn't fret.
But baby pranks—and teddy bears—
Those things I can't forget.

BANK APPOINTS MACPHAIL BOSS OF DODGER CLUB

Ex-Red Official Is Given Complete Charge.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Larry [Red] MacPhail, who attempted to kidnap Kaiser Wilhelm after the armistice and wound up with the imperial ash tray, accepted an even more hazardous assignment today when he became executive vice president of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Terms of his contract were not announced, but it is believed to call for $20,000 a year for three years.

MacPhail's appointment represents the most drastic step yet taken by the bankers to untangle the snarl which has gripped the Dodgers for thirteen years. Ever since the deaths of Charles H. Ebbets and Edward J. McKeever within ten days of each other in the spring of 1925, the affairs of the Brooklyn club, on and off the field, have been a succession of errors.

Bank Sends Out S. O. S.

MacPhail was called to Brooklyn a fortnight ago when the Brooklyn Trust company, whose stake in the ball club has reached such proportions that it virtually dominates the organization, sought help from Ford Frick, president of the National league. MacPhail, who has been in the banking business in Grand Rapids, Mich., for the last year, conferred with bank officials and Dodger officials.

McPhail is the third business manager the Dodgers have had in the last four years, but the first with any authority. Bob Quinn, now president of the Bees, came late in 1933 and lasted two years. John M. F. Gorman went in last season and was released before Christmas. Neither Quinn nor Gorman knew where he stood with the Dodger directors or the bank, but MacPhail, going in with the bank's backing, will have full sway.

Inherits All Disputes.

MacPhail will handle all disputes arising from the contracts he had no voice in arranging. He is to have complete charge of the Dodgers as regards trades, their minor league holdings and the running of the ball park.

His first official act was the signing of a working agrement with Nashville in the Southern association. Nashville is managed by Charley Dressen, whom MacPhail put in as manager at Cincinnati in 1934.

Every member of the club is subject to trade, MacPhail announced. At least four National league teams are interested in Van Mungo, the Dodgers' star pitcher, and can have the big right hander provided they surrender sufficient player material.

Cards Make Offer.

The St. Louis Cardinals, he revealed, have offered to top any bid the Dodgers may receive for Mungo. An offer from the Cubs already has been rejected by the directors because the Chicago club was unwilling to give the players Brooklyn wanted.

MacPhail resigned as business manager in Cincinnati in 1936 and was out of baseball last season. He is 46 years old, red-haired, red-faced and freckled. He was one of a group of American officers and enlisted men who tried to kidnap the kaiser after the armistice. He wears snappy clothes, exudes perfume, and could sell Mussolini a red shirt.

FELLER RETURNS INDIAN CONTRACT FOR ADJUSTMENTS

Van Meter, Ia., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Bob Feller, Cleveland's schoolboy pitcher, said tonight he has returned his 1938 contract for "minor adjustments."

Feller said he was satisfied with the flat salary offer made by the Indians, but added there were some details he wanted changed in arrangements for a bonus. He added he did not want to be classified as a holdout and said he was certain he and the club soon would come to an agreement.

Feller did not say how much had been offered, but friends said they understood Cleveland suggested a $17,500 salary and a bonus.

SAD RED WINGS MEET NONE TOO JUBILANT HAWKS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Detroit today is perhaps all agog, more or less, about tonight's impending hocky battle there between the comatose Detroit Red Wings and the fainting Chicago Blackhawks. The teams will decide whether the Hawks will wake up tomorrow morning 3½ games ahead of the Red Wings as the result of a victory, remain 2½ games ahead by tying, or shave the Chicago advantage to 1½ games by losing.

Tonight's engagement will be the fifth meeting of the Wings, world champions the last two years, and the Hawks, who finished in the American division cellar last season. The Blackhawks have enjoyed a noble advantage over the wilted champs to date. They have whipped the Wings here twice, both times by 3 to 1 scores, and in Detroit lost 4 to 1 and then tied 2 to 2.

A look at the league statistics would indicate the game tonight will be between teams which play without goalies. This is not literally true.

Look at Records and Moan.

The Wings still have Normie Smith, Vezina cup holder, and the Hawks so far haven't made a move to replace poor Mike Karakas, who has been informed that sixteen goals have whizzed past him in three games he's played since last Saturday. During the season, just past the half-way mark, seventy-seven goals have been scored on Smith and sixty-eight on Karakas. Earl Robertson of the New York Americans has allowed only forty-six in his first season as a National league regular.

Jack Adams, rotund manager of the Red Wings, who has been in a horrible dither since the early weeks of the season, has been sending away players, then having conductors put

Paddock, the Crime Crusader, Relives His Track Triumphs

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Charley Paddock, the rapid redhead whose flying limbs gave him a place with Jack Dempsey, Babe Ruth, Bill Tilden, and Bobby Jones during the spirited sports era of the '20's, ran a conversational sprint in fifteen minutes flat in his room at the Blackstone hotel last night. Taking off with a fast spurt on the subject of racketeering in Long Beach, Cal., he stepped up his stride through styles of running Jesse Owens, 1940 Olympics, and finished with a driving burst on the topic of A. A. U. and collegiate control of Olympic track athletics.

Charley Paddock.

Paddock is pausing here for a few days, following a visit to the east, where he conferred with District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York on methods for eliminating racketeering as it is being practiced in Long Beach, where Paddock is business manager of four newspapers. The man who formerly held the title of "world's fastest human" is representing the Committee of 10,000 which has been organized to stamp out the racketeers who have been hampering business in southern California. He will leave by train for the Pacific coast tomorrow.

Charley's in Shape.

The California redhead, now 37 years old, has not changed noticeably since the days of his running peak. He now weighs 180 pounds, only five more than he did in competition. He attributes this maintenance of his former condition to a two year training down program in which daily jogs and trots enabled him to taper off. Paddock's last competitive appearance was in the 1929 National A. A. U. meet in Denver, where he collaborated with three other men in establishing relay records at 440 and 880 yards.

Running styles have not varied appreciably since his time, Paddock said last night, with the possible exception of the pickup. The 100 yard dash originally was broken up into three departments—the start, the stride, and the finish. Loren Murchison was the forerunner in introducing the pickup, but it was Frank Wykoff, former Southern California star, who really popularized this as a definite part of the dash technique. Wykoff was not a particularly fast starter, but his short, driving steps within the first twenty or twenty-five yards after leaving the start made up for this tardiness in getting away, and became known as the pickup.

He Enjoyed This Triumph.

Paddock's greatest thrill running occurred during the Olympic games of 1920 at Antwerp, when he won out over his California rival, Morris Kirksey, in the last few strides of the 100 meter finals.

The one-time peer of world dash artists was outspoken in his opinion of the recent application for reinstatement as an amateur by Jesse Owens, colored star of the 1936 Olympics. Paddock said that if it can be proved that Owens, whom he admires as a great sprinter, received remuneration for any athletic endeavor, such as his match against a Cuban race horse, he should not be granted reinstatement, but advises leniency if Owens can show a clean bill of health.

Will Know More This Spring.

Asked what American prospects for the 1940 Olympic track and field games are, Charley pointed out that the present time is a middle period as far as these go, but that by this spring the American team will begin to take shape. Southern California

KAUTZ, NOVAK GET 37 POINTS FOR RAMBLERS

Notre Dame Beats Pitt Five, 51-41.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Loyola university's basketball team shook off De Paul's doggedly fighting quintet and drew away in the closing stages to score a 53 to 40 victory in the annual meeting of these old rivals last night in the Chicago Stadium. A crowd of 12,356 watched Loyola gain custody of the Bishop Sheil trophy for the second consecutive year in the series sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization.

Approximately six minutes of highly effective maneuvering late in the second half changed the entire complexion of the game. This drive carried Loyola from a lead of 36 to 34 to one of 51 to 38.

Loyola's winning rush started when Mike Novak stretched his long arm nearly to the basket rim and rolled one in to make the score 38 to 34. Bill O'Brien followed with a free throw. Then Wibs Kautz, maneuvering along the sidelines well down the floor, took a pass from a teammate and fired for the basket. The ball arched lazily and flicked through the net. Almost immediately thereafter Kautz repeated this shot.

After Stan Szukala had made one for De Paul Novak flashed in for two short scoring tosses in quick succession, after which Kautz dribbled in for another to make it 49 to 36. Bob Neu of De Paul got one, but immediately Kautz was back again for the shot that made it Loyola, 51; De Paul, 38, with only five minutes to play. Loyola then went on the defensive and had no trouble holding its advantage.

Up to the time of that one brilliantly sustained offensive De Paul had hung on with determination, never letting Loyola get more than a few points ahead. De Paul had taken a 4 to 0 lead at the outset, but Loyola went to the front at 9 to 7 and never was headed thereafter, although De Paul tied it at 17 to 17 late in the first half. Loyola held a 23 to 21 advantage at the intermission.

De Paul Fights Back.

As the second half began Loyola seemed about to step away quickly, running the score 27 to 21, but De Paul came back ruggedly and cut that advantage to 36 to 34.

Kautz lived up to all expectations by scoring twenty points on eight field goals and four three throws. Novak was close behind him with six field goals and five free throws. Neu made eleven points for De Paul and Pat Howlett eight.

Following the game, Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, director of the Catholic Youth Organization, presented the trophy to the Loyola team.

In a high school game that opened the program, Mount Carmel defeated Fenwick, 36 to 27.

STATE CONTINUES TO EXPERIMENT ON 'NEW' BIRDS

Sticks to Yearly Basis Instead of Long Range Policy

BY BOB BECKER.

The announcement that the Illinois department of conservation is going to discontinue its attention to the dark mutant pheasant and concentrate on ringnecks at the game farms indicates once again the policy of experimentation with "new" species of game birds each year, rather than the fostering of a long term program to produce by practical game management species that already are in our fields.

In practically every case sound application of the knowledge that skilled men possess about game management, about game birds' habits, cover requirements, and food would have produced plenty of birds for shooting. Instead conservation departments have wasted time and money experimenting with something new.

Tall Claims Made.

We can recall the first announcements about the mutant, what the state was going to do with them, and how they would be the answer [?] to the sportsman's prayer. It was claimed that they would "hold" better to a dog than the ringneck or other species of pheasant and generally were a more satisfactory type of pheasant. So Illinois went for mutants and the hopes of sportsmen again were given a lift.

We have hunted mutants a number of times on a Wisconsin pheasant preserve before the state began to get interested in them. We had seen dogs [spaniels and setters] work them, and we had discussed the qualities of the bird with game breeders in an effort to learn all we could about this new bird which was supposed to be eminently more satisfactory than any other pheasant.

Chukar Partridge Next?

When we ventured the opinion that the mutant would sprint about as quickly as any pheasant and, with the exception of being darker in plumage and more "streamlined," differed little, if any, in habits from the regular pheasant, we found ourself very much out of order. Now, after spending money in experiments and again postponing the establishment of practical game management methods to increase birds in our coverts, the department of conservation gives up the mutant and goes back to the ringneck.

The next promise of game birds very likely will be the Chukar partridge. Only one state—Missouri—ever has made a test to determine whether the Chukar will survive in its coverts. Yet most states have wasted their funds to go pell-mell into Chukar partridge production.

STANFORD PARK SENDS 17 AFTER GOLDEN GLOVES

Near South Side Fighters Feel They're Ready.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Seventeen amateur boxers from Stanford park, 650 West 14th place, yesterday entered the Chicago sectional Golden Gloves tournament. The park entry was submitted by Norm Volz, who has developed amateur boxing in his district until he now believes that these boys are ready to test their skill in the novice division of the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament.

Stanford park will be represented in all weights except 175 pounds. The list of entries follows:

126 POUNDS—Ed Dodson, Wiley Brown, Reedy Evans.
135 POUNDS—Tony Gomez, Peter Galvin, Severe Robinson, Lewis Hennes, George Weathers.
147 POUNDS — Emmett Jones, James Wright, Singfield Branson.
160 POUNDS—William Berry.
HEAVYWEIGHT—Jessie Golden.

Entries Close Jan. 30.

These boys will be assigned to the third physical examination in Trafton's gymnasium. No date has been set by the officials of the tournament. In all probability this examination will be held Jan. 31. Entries for the four Chicago tournaments will close at midnight Jan. 30, and thus a fourth examination will be set for the final group of contestants prior to the start of competition with the west side tournament at the Madison Athletic club on Feb. 9.

All contestants must pass a preliminary examination before they will be assigned to a sectional meet. And all boxers must bring parental consent cards to their examinations.

C. Y. O. Examinations Monday.

Contestants examined tomorrow night in Trafton's gymnasium and those who will report for the C. Y. O. examination Monday night may choose the section in which they wish to compete. Any boxer who has received instructions to report for these examinations and cannot do so, must file another application with THE TRIBUNE or notify the C. Y. O. In this event he will be assigned to a later examination.

These regulations apply to boxers entering either the novice or open division of the Chicago sectionals. The experienced boxers in the open division will compete in the Tournament of Champions in the Chicago Stadium Feb. 28, March 1 and 2. Each of the thirty-two boys who qualifies in the sectionals for this tournament will receive a gold qualifying medal.

The novice sectional tournaments will be held at the same time in Chicago as the open tournament and from the four sections will come thirty-two boys who will compete in the semi-finals of this meet in the Stadium on March 1.

Sad Red Wings Meet None Too Happy Hawks

Tonight the Hawks will face one Eddie Wares, a right wing for whom Mr. Adams has just paid $12,500 in real money. Wares, the property of the New York Rangers, had been starring with the Philadelphia Ramblers, Ranger farm team. Wares may be a bust, too, but he at least has fame as a Canadian sprinter who represented his dominion at the British Empire games in South Africa in 1936. We forgot to ask whether he won his events.

Has Employed 29 Players.

Mr. Adams so far this season has employed twenty-nine players, not counting repeaters, and this is said to be a record for a half season of bolstering a defending world champion team.

Manager Bill Stewart of the Hawks is said to have showed up in Detroit a bit slapsey, although no one could make out the speeches he seemed to be making to himself. In one of his lucid moments Bill muttered that he would start his newly formed first line, composed of Paul Thompson, Doc Romnes, and Earl Seibert.

After tonight's struggle the Hawks will return to Chicago and rest for a Sunday night engagement in Chicago Stadium with the league leading Boston Bruins.

GIRLS TEAMS PLAY.

Bill Rand's Co-eds and the Queen Anne Aces of Hammond, will play a basketball game Wednesday evening on the stage of the Norshore theater.

SIX C. Y. O. BOYS WIN IN FINALS OF I. A. C. BOUTS

Frankie Kainrath of the Catholic Youth organization stopped Berlin Hadnott, also of the C. Y. O., in the first round to retain his Illinois Athletic club bantamweight championship in the finals of the annual I. A. C. amateur boxing tournament in the club gymnasium last night. Kainrath, three time C. Y. O. titleholder and 1937 Golden Gloves champion, was one of six C. Y. O. boys to win titles before a capacity crowd of 750. He was the only defending champion.

Alois Kainrath, young brother of Frankie, scored a surprise victory by conquering Joe Du Pont, C. Y. O. featherweight champion, in a hard fight of three rounds.

Fifth Straight for C. Y. O.

The C. Y. O. won the team award for the fifth straight year. In addition to the two Kainraths, Willie Moon, flyweight; Anthony Motisi, welterweight; Hiner Thomas, middleweight, and Clarence Brown, heavyweight, recorded victories for the C. Y. O.

Moon whipped Walter Cavalieri, also holder of a C. Y. O. crown; Motisi knocked out David Walker, his teammate; Thomas defeated Frank McBride, and Brown stopped John Surrino, C. Y. O. Walker was substituted for Jake Lampkins, who appeared with an arm infection.

Two Savoy Entrants Win.

Johnny Pleasant, Savoy Athletic club 135-pounder, and Orlondo Trotter, Savoy light heavyweight, were the other winners. Pleasant whipped Pete Ferrand, King's gymnasium, South Chicago, and Trotter conquered William Duncan, Caustin's gymnasium, St. Charles, Ill. Results:

112 POUNDS—Willie Moon, C. Y. O., beat Walter Cavalieri, C. Y. O., [3].
118 POUNDS—Frankie Kainrath, C. Y. O., stopped Berlin Hadnott, C. Y. O., [1].
126 POUNDS—Alois Kainrath, C. Y. O., beat Joe Du Pont, C. Y. O., [3].
147 POUNDS—Anthony Motisi, C. Y. O., knocked out David Walker, C. Y. O., [2].
160 POUNDS—Hiner Thomas, C. Y. O., beat Frank McBride, Savoy, [3].

Varias Milling, Filipino featherweight, yesterday finished boxing drills in Trafton's gymnasium in preparation for his ten round bout with Jackie Wilson, Pittsburgh star, at Rainbo Fronton tomorrow. Milling went three rounds with Johnny Helstrom. The match is one of the most important in Milling's long career, for his chances of being named Henry Armstrong's opponent in a proposed match in this city Feb. 25 depend on his showing against Wilson.

Wilson, who fought a draw with Leo Rodak recently, also relishes the fight with Armstrong, but his selection as the 126 pound champion's first Chicago opponent is improbable.

The victory was Notre Dame's ninth in the series. The Panthers have won eleven. Lineup:

OFFICIAL CLAIMS LOUIS-SCHMELING BOUT FOR DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Reports from New York that Joe Louis would defend his heavyweight boxing championship against Max Schmeling in Detroit, under "present plans," were confirmed tonight by State Boxing Commissioner Frank MacDonell.

"I'm certain," MacDonell said, "that the fight will be here, but I can't discuss details now."

The fight, which Detroit had sought almost from the moment the match was made, might be lured to this city rather than New York or Chicago for several reasons, fight circles pointed out.

The state of Michigan, besides permitting 20 round title fights, levies only a 5 per cent tax on boxing shows, compared with 10 per cent in other states.

Paddock, Foe of Crime, Tells of Track Feats

high schools, he said, again will produce plenty of Olympic material. He said Pole Vaulter Bill Sefton is a certainty, but that one of his chief rivals, Earle Meadows, probably will not join the team, as he is planning a coaching career.

He also advised track followers to watch Jack Robinson, colored star of Pasadena Junior college, who is now rated a faster sprinter than his brother Mack, whom Owens beat only by inches in the 200 meter run at Berlin in 1936.

As long as the Amateur Athletic union is the only organization in this country which is recognized by the International Athletic federation, the colleges can have little to say about control of Olympic athletics, Paddock said.

"The A. A. U. officials will see to that," he said. "And as far as the plan suggested that the colleges levy a 1 cent tax on football admissions for Olympic funds is concerned, don't forget that through the American Olympic committee the A. A. U. still holds the balance of power over the colleges. The colleges will hardly raise the money for the Olympic fund when the A. A. U. will have the authority to spend that money."

C. Conacher Retires from Active Hocky

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 19.—Charlie Conacher, younger of Canada's famed brother team, today said that he would retire from hocky. Conacher has been captain of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National eague.

Conacher made the announcement of his retirement just after the Leafs had completed a workout at the Maple Leaf Gardens today. The big right wing told Con Smythe, manager of the club which is leading the Canadian section of the league, that he was through as a player. He feels that his legs no longer are capable of the speed which made him one of the most feared forwards in the league since his debut as a rookie in 1929. A complete physical examination by Dr. J. B. Rush, Leafs' physician, verified Conacher's guess at his own condition. Dr. Rush said that if Charley continues playing the ultimate effects might be serious.

Conacher played his last game in the Leafs' 7 to 2 victory over the Blackhawks at Chicago last Sunday night. It was noted during that game that the big wing was used only sparingly, and did not appear to extend himself.

TULEY SENIORS, AUSTIN JUNIORS AND DU SABLE WIN

Parker Five Advances in Private League.

The Austin juniors and Tuley seniors remained in the west sectional races in the City High School Basketball league yesterday by winning third round victories.

Austin juniors beat Tuley, 29 to 24 and the Tuley seniors defeated Austin, 39 to 26, virtually eliminating Austin as a championship playoff possibility.

Opatowsky, Levin, and Roberts were the Tuley stars, accounting for 32 of the 39 points.

In the junior game Freiden of Tuley almost alone prevented his team from being completely routed. He scored six of his team's eight field goals and four of the eight free throws.

In the central section, senior division, Du Sable beat Farragut, 32 to 27, largely because of the scoring of Taylor, who sank nine baskets and four free throws.

Francis Parker, Harvard, and Christian won their games in the Private School league heavyweight division to keep well up in the race for the title. Parker beat Central Y, 32 to 8; Harvard defeated Wheaton, 34 to 28, and Christian beat North Park, 28 to 25.

Christian led North Park only 13 to 12 at the half. A big third quarter in which Christian scored 14 points to North Park's 7 gave Christian the decision. Von Deel paced the winners with 10 points.

UPSET IN BUDGET HELD DARK SPOT IN BANK OUTLOOK

Reduction in U. S. Debt Urged by Graettinger.

The weak spot in the banking structure today is the lack of balance in the federal budget, Martin A. Graettinger, vice president of the Illinois Bankers' association, told the midwinter conference of the association last night at the Palmer house. He pointed out that a large proportion of bank funds is invested in government securities.

M. A. Graettinger.

"Serious minded bankers without political and partisan motives," he said, "look upon this condition as the weak spot in the banking structure. As long as the market for government securities holds up there is no immediate danger, but the fear exists that unless the budget is balanced the market will weaken."

Bankers Are Apprehensive.

Bankers are apprehensive, he said, that further increase in the government debt will result in a decline in prices of government securities. The administration is counting on the social security reserves to absorb increases in the government debt and permit a reduction in bonds now held by the public, but developments may upset these calculations, he said.

Graettinger said that the only safe course is the balancing of the federal budget and the gradual retirement of outstanding government debt.

Would End Double Liability.

Floyd E. Thompson, former justice of the Illinois Supreme court, urged the adoption of the proposed amendment to the state constitution eliminating the "double liability" on stock in state banks. Failure to adopt the amendment, he said, will mean the end of the state banking system in Illinois. The double liability of national bank shares has been abolished and other states are taking the step, he said.

Philip A. Benson, first vice president of the American Bankers association and president of the Dime Savings bank, Brooklyn, N. Y., told the bankers that coöperation between government and bankers is necessary for recovery. With out coöperation, he said, the recession in business could be halted.

Compania Swift Internacional.

Investors' Guide: What do you think of Compania Swift Internacional as an investment for an elderly widow, whose means are small?—Mrs. E. A.

Answer: Compania Swift Internacional [Swift International] operates the South American, Australian, and New Zealand business of Swift & Co. It is a holding company organized in 1918. Through ownership of stock, it controls operating companies in Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil, Australia and New Zealand.

Principal products of Compania Swift Internacional are chilled and frozen beef, canned meat, some cured pork, beef extract, hides, skins, wool, tallow, oleo oil, fertilizers, and blood. Most of the hides, skins, wool and fertilizer are shipped to the United States. Europe and Great Britain are principal markets for the meats.

Earnings of the company have been comparatively stable in recent years, although exchange restrictions have proved a handicap in transacting business in some European countries. The volume of the company's business is, of course, dependent in a large part on the freedom with which trade between nations can be conducted. Under normal trade conditions, the diversified nature of the company's products and sources of supply should promote stability of earnings.

The 1937 report has not been issued. Net income in 1936 was $5,640,000, or $3.76 a capital share, after credit of $946,000 from foreign exchange adjustment. Before such credit, net income was $4,693,770, or $3.13 a share. Net income in 1935 was $4,496,000, or $3 a share, after deduction of $512,000 on foreign exchange adjustment. Before such adjustment, net income was $5,007,847, or $3.34 a share in 1935.

U. S. IN THE RED ON RETIREMENT, SECURITY PLANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Expenditures under the social security and railroad retirement acts were $294,681,344 more up to Jan. 1, 1938, than was received by the treasury from taxes imposed to finance these programs, it was disclosed today.

A special treasury statement, first of a series to be published on the 10th of each month, showed total income under the two acts was $666,294,315 and total expenditures $960,975,659. The treasury said this condition would not hold permanently, and that the social security taxes were being used primarily to build up a reserve for old age pensions which began operating the first of the year.

A great portion of the expenditures was used in grants to states to set up social security machinery. It was reported that 1,162,000 persons in twenty-one states and the District of Columbia filed claims for unemployment insurance during the first week of operation.

Call Many Claims Invalid.

Social security officials estimated that about one-fourth of unemployment insurance claims were not valid.

While several phases of social security, including old age assistance, aid to dependent children, various health services, and aid to the blind, were started before the first of the year, one of the biggest, unemployment insurance, did not become generally operative until that time.

The treasury statement showed social security receipts of $597,632,759, derived from taxes on employes and taxes on employers hiring eight or more persons. Expenditures included administrative costs of $28,436,400, grants to states of $326,537,805, and transfers to old age reserve account of $514,000,000.

The railroad retirement program received $68,661,556, expended $3,018,877 for administration, and transferred $92,000,000 to the railroad retirement account.

Grants to States.

The grants to states included: Old age assistance, $236,617,900; aid to dependent children, $28,697,981; aid to the blind, $8,429,804; for administration of state unemployment insurance laws, $26,428,055; maternal and child health services, $6,001,270; crippled children, $3,966,693; child welfare services, $1,795,187; public health, $14,600,912.

Since Jan. 1 a score of states have withdrawn $8,075,000 from their unemployment insurance deposits in the treasury. Latest withdrawals, not previously reported, include Minnesota, $1,000,000; Utah, $250,000; Oregon, $500,000, and Texas, $250,000.

All taxes collected under the social security and railroad retirement acts go into the general fund of the treasury and are not earmarked for carrying out of the acts as was proposed in congress before the acts were passed. The expenditures under these acts come from the appropriations provided by congress.

POWER OUTPUT BELOW WEEK AND YEAR AGO

Production of electricity in the United States in the week ended Jan. 15 dipped 1.1 per cent from the preceding week and 6.6 per cent from the corresponding week of 1937, the Edison Electric institute reported yesterday.

Production was 2,115,134,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 2,139,582,000 in the preceding week and 2,264,125,000 a year ago. In the week ended Jan. 8 output was 4.7 per cent less than in the corresponding 1937 week.

In the Chicago area the output of the Commonwealth Edison company group amounted to 135,259,000 kilowatt hours, a decline of only 1.6 per cent from the 137,494,000 total in the corresponding 1937 period. Chicago output in the preceding week was 134,477,000 kilowatt hours.

The general decline in production was said to exceed the usual seasonal dip.

GOLD AND SILVER PRODUCTION IN U. S. SHOWS GAIN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Refinery production of gold and silver in the United States was substantially larger in 1937 than in 1936 and closely approached the output in 1915, the year of largest production, the bureau of mines reports.

Gold production in 1937 aggregated 4,792,097 ounces with a value of $167,723,400, compared with 4,357,394 ounces valued at $152,508,800 in 1936.

STEEL OUTPUT GAINS SLIGHTLY, SAYS IRON AGE

Steel making operations have crept up to 30 per cent of plant capacity this week from 28 per cent last week, Iron Age estimated yesterday. The publication said the production outlook remains uncertain, however.

"Small as this improvement is, it has not been uniform as to districts," it said. "Flow of business is so irregular that no definite upward trend is indicated. Buying is on a hand to mouth basis because delivery can be obtained quickly."

The biggest gain reported was from 46 to 56 per cent of capacity in the Wheeling-Weirton area. Chicago gained 1½ to 27½, due to one producer's activity. Pittsburgh remained at 24 per cent, with other districts showing operations unchanged or slightly lower.

The Iron Age composite scrap price remains at $14 a ton for the third week.

URGES PRUDENT INVESTMENT AS RAIL RATE BASE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The National Coal association proposed to the interstate commerce commission today a revision of railroad rates on the basis of "prudent investment," as President Roosevelt has suggested for utility rates.

Henry J. Saunders, speaking for the coal association, asserted the present railroad rate basis was "at least 25 per cent too high."

He estimated that a prudent investment valuation would be 70.36 per cent of the value arrived at by economists of the Association of American Railroads.

Saunders was a witness at the I. C. C.'s hearing on the request of the railroads for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates.

GEN. MOTORS TO START MASS DIESEL OUTPUT

Chicago Operations Will Be Expanded.

Mass production of small, light Diesel engines, suitable for many purposes, will be started at once by the General Motors corporation, officials announced yesterday at the dedication of the corporation's new Diesel plant at Detroit. These engines will be "priced to meet competition," it was said.

This is the first time that General Motors has entered mass production of Diesel engines, although it has been building Diesels at its Cleveland plant for years. One of the few mass production Diesel engine plants in the world is that of the Caterpillar Tractor company at Peoria, Ill.

Chicago District to Benefit.

R. K. Evans, vice president of General Motors in charge of Diesel development, disclosed details of the corporation's plans for increasing the business. The Chicago district will benefit from this expansion through enlargement of operations of the La Grange plant of the Electro-Motive corporation.

The Detroit plant will build smaller engines of 22 to 160 horse power, both portable and stationary. The Cleveland Diesel engine division of General Motors [formerly the Winton Manufacturing corporation], will build a line of medium sized engines ranging from 200 to 400 horse power. Larger engines running up to 1,200 horse power will be built at La Grange. A plant for this work is under construction and is expected to go into production in about two months.

Where Sales Are Directed.

Sales activities of the commercial Diesels built in Detroit and Cleveland will be centered in Cleveland. However, Electro-Motive will continue to direct its own sales operations, because its business is largely with railroads, and Chicago is the center of railroad operating control.

Heretofore, Diesel engines for railroad locomotives built by Electro-Motive have been obtained from the Cleveland plant. Electro-Motive already has produced locomotives with a total of more than 8,000,000 miles of railroad service.

Although General Motors will push the sale and use of Diesel engines, the day is far distant when they will be used in passenger automobiles, it was indicated.

Charles F. Kettering, General Motors' inventor and research genius, said it is impossible to get the refinements of the modern gasoline automobile in the Diesel powered automobile.

"We will have to do a lot of practicing with Diesel engines," he said.

RAILROAD CHIEF BLAMES GREEN, LEWIS FOR SLUMP

Pocatello, Ida., Jan. 19.—(AP)—William M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railroad, said today a major share of blame for the current business recession can be placed on the shoulders of Labor Leaders William Green and John L. Lewis.

"They are doing a more effective job of tying up factories than any quarrel between laboring men and business," Jeffers asserted in an interview.

"Among the most serious contributing factors to the present recession are these runaway strikes of undisciplined labor unions. The Committee for Industrial Organization is more or less a runaway situation with no discipline at all.

"We have no quarrel with labor, provided it is run by responsible leaders. These rival labor groups are not working and they will not let each other work—but all go on relief and the taxpayer pays the bills."

BLANKET DELAY ON JOBLESS TAX REFUSED BY U. S.

Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, said in Washington, D. C., yesterday that his office would not grant a blanket extension to Illinois employers on the federal unemployment tax due Jan. 31. He had been urged to take the step by the Illinois Manufacturers association and other business groups.

Helvering announced earlier that employers showing need could obtain extensions on written application to district collectors. The district collectors, he said, have been authorized to allow extensions where circumstances warant.

Mexico Raises Import Tarifs to Guard Peso

Order Oil Pay Boost

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 19.—(AP)—British and American oil companies in Mexico today were notified they must put into effect immediately the wage increases and other benefits granted their 18,000 workers last Dec. 18 by a government arbitral board. Oil men estimated the wage increases allowed would boost operating costs 41,000,000 pesos [$11,400,000] annually, and have refused to pay. The arbitral board's decision was appealed to the Supreme court.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 19.—(AP)—President Lazaro Cardenas today materially increased tarif schedules on virtually all imports into Mexico in a drastic move to protect the peso in foreign exchange and at home.

The decree raised rates in all nine major categories by 10 to more than 200 per cent, striking heaviest on luxury articles. It appeared in the Official Gazette for Dec. 31, which was released today. The increases become effective Friday. Whether the rates apply to goods in transit was not made clear.

Two Schedules Provided.

Two tarif schedules were provided for the remainder of the year, one to be effective until May 1 and the other until next Jan. 1. Until May 1 many rates will be double and triple those in effect last year and in some cases quadruple. During the eight following months they will be revised downward somewhat.

Automobiles are representative of the list. Four cylinder cars will be charged 300 pesos to May 1 and 250 thereafter. The tarif last year was 180 pesos. For cars of six cylinders the rates are: 1937, 200 pesos; first part 1938, 700; second part 1938, 600. For eight cylinder cars they are: 1937, 1,000 pesos; first part 1938, 2,500; second part 1938, 2,000.

Finance Minister Explains.

Finance Minister Eduardo Suarez declared the increases were designed "to reduce the volume of imports." The decree, he said, was part of a group of measures taken "to strengthen our money in the interior of the country as well as in foreign exchange."

This was taken as a reference to an agreement Saurez has concluded in Washington for the United States to continue purchases of Mexican silver and the reported American agreement to help stabilize the pesos at 27.75 cents.

Writ Ties Up Celotex Deal for Stock of Certain-Teed

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Supreme Court Justice Aron Steuer today granted two plaintifs a temporary injunction restraining the Celotex corporation from buying 9,496 shares of preference and 109,360 shares of common stock of the Certain-Teed Products corporation from the Phoenix Securities corporation. The purchase had been authorized Tuesday at a meeting of Celotex stockholders in Chicago.

Coal Control Act Blow to Stoker Sales

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

After having made marked progress during the last few years, manufacturers of automatic coal stokers are forced to put up a harder fight for new business as the result of the Guffey-Vinson coal act, manufacturers of stokers said yesterday.

The national bituminous coal commission, which administers the act, recently set up a schedule of minimum coal prices. Under this schedule prices of a considerable part of the coal used in automatic stokers have been boosted 10 to 60 cents a ton, with much of the eastern Kentucky and southern Illinois stoker coal 35 to 45 cents a ton higher.

Price Spread Narrowed.

Besides the other advantages of coal as a fuel, stoker salesmen in recent years have been able to emphasize the economy of this fuel in comparison with other kinds. Since the setting up of the minimum price schedule for bituminous coal, however, the spread between the price of coal and other fuels has been narrowed.

For many years retail coal dealers were forced to stand by and see rival fuels take business away from them. The advent of the stoker was hailed as a boon to their business and consequently the retailers have strongly opposed any attempt to raise the prices of coal to levels that would injure its competitive advantage.

Four or five years ago few automatic stokers were sold for home use. Marc Bluth, secretary of the Stoker Manufacturers' association, estimated yesterday that in 1937 about 7,500 stokers were sold in the Chicago area, of which from 65 to 75 per cent were for use in single family dwellings or one and two flat buildings. In 1936 about 5,500 stokers were sold, of which about the same percentage went for home use.

Selling Argument Weakened.

Retail coal dealers have been active in promoting the sales of the stokers because each one that went into a home meant that its user would take a certain amount of coal a year.

"We can't stress economy as much as we used to in selling stokers," a sales official of one company said, "and consequently we have to depend more on our other arguments in favor of coal. Naturally, in selling anything the economy argument is one of the best selling points. We don't like to lose this argument."

Chicago users of stokers in homes buy largely the eastern Kentucky coal on which the price in the last few years has increased from $6.50 a ton to about $8. A large part of this increase has been the result of the enforcement of the new minimum price schedule. A little southern Illinois and some Indiana coal is used for home stokers. The southern Illinois and Indiana coals are taken in large quantities by industries and large buildings.

COAL BOARD SETS MINIMUM PRICES AT TRUCK MINES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The coal commission established minimum prices for hundreds of small truck mines in the eastern soft coal producing areas today, ranging from $2.05 to $3.70 for mine run. They will become effective Jan. 27.

The commission said the new prices for trucked coal were made to coordinate with rail shipped coal and adjusted in the majority of districts to allow for the difference in cost between the two methods of transportation.

The mine run minimum prices include: Illinois, District 10, $2.05 to $2.50, with a minimum of $2.85 at the mine for truck hauls into the Chicago area. The rail price averages $2.35 for mine run into the Chicago area. Indiana, District 11, $2.90 to $2.10, compared with a $2.10 average by rail. Iowa, District 12, $2.85 to $3.70, the same as the range for rail shipped coal.

General Electric Receives $5,706,000 in Navy Orders

Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The General Electric company said today it had received orders for $5,706,000 worth of naval construction from Brazil and the United States. The Brazilian order calls for $3,800,000 worth of electric power units and control equipment for six new destroyers, the company said. The American navy ordered $1,906,000 worth of "electric units" and $12,500 worth of equipment for the Norfolk, Va., navy yard.

DISCLOSE LOSS THAT TVA DEALS TO INVESTORS

Strong Firm's Bonds Fall to 78.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—Chairman Andrew J. May [D., Ky.], of the house military affairs committee, today made public a letter he had received from a middle west life insurance company executive telling of the injurious effects of federal competition from the Tennessee Valley Authority on the Tennessee Electric Power company securities.

Rep. A. J. May.

"In the light of statements by David Lilienthal, majority director and dictator of TVA, that the splendid earning record of TVA's chief private competitor, the Tennessee Electric Power company, is indicative of the financial soundness of that corporation, I am making this letter public," May said. "The letter speaks for itself. I am not privileged to make public the name of the writer nor of the company of which he is an officer, but the letter is on file in my office for private inspection.

Letter from Chief Sufferer.

"The letter is important because it comes from the chief sufferer from federal competition, the investor. At a later date, I shall make public some studies as to institutional losses of bonds and preferred stock in companies affected by federal power competition."

The letter, in part, follows:

"A newspaper article states that you will probably be the next chairman of the house TVA investigating committee. Whether or not that be so, I should like to present to you one of the effects of the TVA development from the angle of an investor of trust funds, in the hope that you will allow a sympathetic hearing.

"Our company, on behalf of its 35,000 policyholders, owns nearly $200,000 of the mortgage bonds of the Tennessee Electric Power company which serves Chattanooga and Nashville and certain smaller communities.

Worth 78 Cents on Dollar.

"A Chicago bond house phoned us yesterday with a recommendation that we liquidate our Tennessee Electric Power company bonds which have declined in market price to around 78 cents on the dollar. The reason for their recommendation is the PWA grant to the city of Chattanooga to be used for the construction of a distribution system in direct competition with the existing facilities of the Tennessee Electric Power company.

"As long ago as Aug. 24 last, Moody's Investment Service had reported that the PWA would make an outright grant of $1,950,000 to the city of Chattanooga and then would lend the city another $2,380,000 to provide a total of $4,330,000. I understand that the latter figure is sufficient to provide a complete electric distribution system for the entire city, resulting not only in wasteful duplication of facilities, but also a destruction of the savings of policy holders and bank depositors in the existing facilities of the Tennessee Electric Power company.

PWA Puts Up All the Cash.

"Apparently Chattanooga's general credit is not strong enough to stand a bond issue, so the PWA not only had to make its 45 per cent grant but went further and loaned the remaining 55 per cent.

"It is evident that no life insurance company or savings bank is likely to be destroyed by whatever loss they sustain on the Tennessee Electric Power company bonds, but why should we hope for any better treatment ultimately on the other utility bonds in which trust funds have been placed? For life insurance companies alone there are 3 billion dollars in utility bonds. Our utility bond analyst tells me that life insurance companies hold 60 per cent of the bonds of Memphis Power and Light and one-third of the bonds of Alabama Power company. Similar percentages apply to other operating

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—A buying rush near the close reduced fairly broad declines in stocks and final prices of active issues were within fractions of yesterday's finish. Early losses ranged from fractions to about 3 points. Sales increased to 998,851 shares.

Nearly all classifications of shares benefited in the late recovery, although industrial shares profited most.

Carrier shares led the list downward at the start with the Erie situation the adverse factor, according to some observers. However, the late support enabled Erie common to push to $4 for a small fractional net gain.

Closing prices for favorites, including Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern railway, New York Central, and Northern Pacific were within ¼ to ½ of Tuesday's finals. Erie first preferred closed unchanged, and the second preferred off a minor fraction.

Steels, motors, and coppers made the best showing in the late rally.

Power and light issues resisted selling for a while, sagged in the early afternoon, than came back strongly. The group as a whole gave the best performance of the day, many leading issues moving into the plus column.

Aviations ruled steady to fractions lower, with Douglas most active. Oils sagged. Some of the largest losses of the day were recorded in the chemical division. Gold shares continued to hold buying favor.

New York Bonds.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Values of a long list of railroad issues tumbled again in the bond market today as this group proved unable to stem the tide of liquidation let loose by the fall of the Erie road into bankruptcy. There were many new lows.

Strangely enough, however, the selling pressure against most of the direct loans of Erie and the Baltimore and Ohio, the two carriers whose acute financial condition started the decline, was lifted somewhat and other carrier obligations were pressed on the market in volume. Declines ranged mostly from fractions to 5 points, but there were losses of 6 to 27 points on some of the less active issues.

Prices in other sections of the market drifted irregularly lower. United States government obligations were irregular in decreased trading volume.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks declined yesterday in moderate trading. Of 92 issues traded, 18 advanced, 47 declined and 27 were unchanged. Volume totaled 23,000 shares, against 19,000 shares on Tuesday.

Commonwealth Edison was among the most active of the issues traded, selling off ⅛ to close at 26 on a turnover of 1,900 shares. Heilemann Brewing declined ⅞ to close at 5¾, also on a volume of 1,900 shares. Other active issues included Cities Service, unchanged at 1⅞; Marshall Field, down ½ at 8¾, and Middle West, off ⅝ at 5⅜.

THE TRIBUNE's averages closed at 10.52 against the close of 10.69 Tuesday. Yesterday's high was 10.59.

Bank Stocks.

First National bank stock declined yesterday for the third consecutive day. It was quoted at $221 bid, $225 asked, a decline of $3. So far this week it has lost $12 of the $20 advance registered last week. Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company shares eased $1 at $103.50 bid, $105.50 asked. Chicago Title and Trust dipped $4 at $145 bid, $150 asked. One dealer, however, quoted the stock as high as $148 bid, $152 asked. Other bank stocks were unchanged.

RATE HIKE WOULD HURT RAILROADS, SAYS WHEELER

Calls Cut in Fixed Charges Only Solution.

Higher freight rates sought by the railroads will, if granted, result ultimately in injury to the railroad industry and to all business, Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] said in a speech here yesterday.

Senator Wheeler.

Declaring that the proposed rate increase is not an effective solution of the "railroad problem," Wheeler said it must be met by reorganization of overcapitalized systems. The senator spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Federated Advertising club at the Morrison hotel. He is chairman of a senate committee which has been investigating railroad financing.

The fixed charges of the railroads in shaky financial position must be scaled down and the longer the industry postpones reorganization the longer business recovery will be delayed, Wheeler asserted.

"Too Much Faith in Regulation."

Competition of trucks and buses, Wheeler said, has revived railroad enterprise in recent years, but railroad management persists, he added, in placing too much confidence in government regulation of rates.

The railroad industry, like all business, Wheeler said, is unwilling to give up the protection of government regulation. Ninety-five per cent of the railroad presidents, he said, would oppose repeal of the act establishing the interstate commerce commission if it were proposed.

He warned that business must be prepared to accept competition if it wants the political and economic freedom that goes with it.

Calls Competition Essential.

"Competition is essential to the preservation of a democratic republic," he said. "We need only look at events taking place in the countries that have turned their back on free competition to discover what government regulation of business brings."

The political confusion in Washington, he added, is a reflection of the uncertainty in the minds of business men as to the direction which government should take.

Temporarily, Wheeler said, the Roosevelt administration is embarked on an anti-monopoly crusade—going in a direction opposite to that in which it was headed four years ago. The shift in policy, he said, would be more reassuring if one believed the administration capable of following one course for any length of time.

N. Y. BANKS HOLD MEETINGS; U. S. POLICIES LASHED

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Declaring business cannot flourish under constant political attack, Percy H. Johnston, chairman of the Chemical Bank and Trust company, told stockholders of his company today that government policies are responsible for the current recession. Stockholders of several other large New York banks also met today.

Johnston urged repeal of the undistributed profits tax and said the business outlook is "fraught with uncertainty." He told the stockholders net operating profits of the bank in 1937 were sufficient to add $1,243,094 to the undivided profits account, compared with $3,494,499 added in 1936.

The Guaranty Trust company informed stockholders that total earnings in 1937 were $13,660,810 compared with $13,409,158 in 1936.

The Irving Trust company reported operating profits of $3,646,400 in 1937 compared with $3,600,862 in 1936.
